BEDDING.

There is perhaps no part of
HOUSE-FURNISHING
as to the genuineness and value of which the public are so entirely dependent upon the PRACTICAL KNOWLEDGE
and
COMMERCIAL MORALITY of vendors
as
BEDDING,
and certainly the importance and the necessity for PURE, SUITABLE,
and
PROPERLY MANIPULATED MATERIALS
cannot be overrated.

A rickety and badly-finished article of furniture may annoy, and an ill-designed sideboard or cabinet offend good taste; but, even then, no serious harm occurs. But with improperly-purified or badly-made BEDDING how different the tale, for then you have that which is INJURIOUS TO HEALTH and undoubtedly SPREADS DISEASE.

Comparatively few
FURNITURE WAREHOUSES IN SYDNEY
manufacture the bedding they sell, but, buying from wholesale makers,
have to offer their customers
MADE-UP GOODS,
of the contents of which they actually know nothing.

Let us consider for a moment that one-third of one's life is spent in bed.
Does it not concern you to know that so great a part of life's short span ought to be carefully and properly provided for!

Have you ever
TAKEN THE TROUBLE
to EXAMINE YOUR MATTRESS to find out what is in it! Whether HORSE HAIR or HOG HAIR!
WHITE COTTON FLOCK, SCRIBBLED,
and
DRESSED BLACK WOOL, or only that
VERIEST OF RUBBISH,
the old black rag flock!

JAVA KAPOK
or
that short, seedy,
Indian Cotton Kapok!

CEYLON FIBRE
or
Fiji Waste Fibre?

Be wise, be wise.

Do not let another day pass until you have thoroughly
EXAMINED YOUR BEDDING.

Those DRAPERS, IRONMONGERS,
CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETIES,
and
who simply take orders for bedding from the PRICE LIST of CHEAP MAKERS, are still worse off, having no knowledge whatever of its MANUFACTURE;
and,
what is worse,
SPREAD the RISK of CONTAGION, as they are governed simply by CHEAP PRICE LISTS,
and,
in many instances,
just place the order with whatever wholesale maker
OFFERS THEM
the
GREATEST DISCOUNT.

Nor is this the
ONLY ADVANTAGE THEIR CUSTOMERS SUFFER, as too frequently the BEDDING is SUPPLIED by SMALL MAKERS, who have neither adequate MACHINERY
to prepare the materials nor suitable premises in which to carry on the work.
Indeed, if the purchasers of bedding could only see the CONDITION and SURROUNDING of some of the
MAKERS of BEDDING, they would not allow the bedding to come within
COO-EE of their BACK YARDS, let alone their bedrooms.

LAWLER has for many years
MANUFACTURED all BEDDING
upon his own premises,
BUYING the MATERIALS DIRECT, EMPLOYING the most IMPROVED MACHINERY, and having the work turned out under the
SUPERVISION of THOROUGHLY PRACTICAL MEN.
He, therefore, can GUARANTEE UNPRECEDENTED VALUE
and
UNRIVALLED PURITY in whatever
BEDDING or UPHOLSTERY leaves his steam factories.

The enormous increase in this department is, perhaps the best proof that LAWLER'S efforts
TO SUPPLY ONLY
PURE and WHOLESOME and HEALTHY
BEDDING,
at MODERATE and POPULAR PRICES, have been thoroughly appreciated.

THE MANUFACTORIES ADJOIN THE WAREHOUSES in GEORGE-STREET (608), and customers are invited to see the machinery in motion and witness the process of manufacture.

NEW ISSUE OF SHARES.
AUSTRALIAN MUTUAL INVESTMENT AND BUILDING COMPANY, Limited.
The rapid growth of the Company's Business has induced the Directors to issue 20,000 NEW SHARES at 70s per share, and as only 10,000 of these are reserved for the Sydney market, it is necessary that speedy application be made by those intending to take up shares.
The present issue of shares will return from the first, £9 11s 8d per cent., with every prospect of still larger dividends in the future.
The New Issue will increase the Paid-up Capital from £20,000 to £40,000, and the Reserve from £40,000 to £90,000.
This Reserve will be larger than that of any other Building Company in the colony, and as a consequence of the large Reserve, the cost of money to this Company will be less than to any other Building Company.
The total Receipts during the year ending December 31, 1886, amounted to £427,420 13s 10d, and the sum of £321,712 11s 9d was received on deposit; larger than the amount received by any other Building Company in the Colony, and this is the time of the widespread depression in trade.
The fact that this Company has always paid the highest rate of Dividend, and at the same time carried substantial sums to Reserve every year, is a guarantee that in the future the same good results may be anticipated.
The Directors have every confidence in recommending these Shares as the soundest investment in the market.
For Forms of Application, Balance-sheet, Prospectus, and all information, apply

NEW ISSUE OF SHARES.
This Society has recently made great and rapid progress, as will be seen by the following extract from the last annual report and balance-sheet (June 30, 1886):—"The deposits have increased from £12,618 8s 7d on June 30, 1885, to £45,611 19s 3d on June 30, 1886; the amount of balances due by borrowers and land purchasers has increased in the same period from £26,698 18s 5d to £60,858 15s 1d, while the total receipts from all sources show the marvellous increase of upwards of £100,000 over the previous year. . . . . The balance to the credit of Profit and Loss Account of June 30th last was £3,178 18s. 4d. Out of this the directors carried the sum of £3475 to the Reserve Fund, which now stands at £10,000. The wonderful increase in the society's business, however, brought with it the necessity for an increase of the capital, which, when compared with the magnitude of the society's operations, was deemed to be too small. The authorised capital of the society is £50,000, in shares of £25 each, of which only £20,000 is subscribed for. The directors now consider it advisable to place upon the market the unsubscribed balance of the authorised capital, viz., £30,000, and upon terms which should ensure their being speedily taken up. The existing paid-up £25 shares have been sold in the open market at £32 10s each—that is, at a premium of £7 10s per share. In consideration, however, of the fact that it is not intended to call up more than half the amount of the new shares at present, the board have decided to offer them at only £2 10s per share premium; but should it be necessary in the future to call up the balance, the purchaser will not be required to pay any additional premium. The new issue (which will be called Series No. 4) will receive the same rate of dividend as the paid-up shares, which for the year ending June 10, 1886, was 15 per cent. Subscribers to this new issue will also be allowed the privilege of depositing the amount required to make the shares fully paid up at 1 per cent. in advance of the highest current fixed deposit rate. That is to say, a person wishing to take up eight shares may, upon payment of the premium of £2 10s per share, pay the sum of £100 down, upon which he would receive, according to last year's rate of dividend 15 per cent. per annum; and the balance—viz., £100—he would be allowed to deposit, according to the current rates for fixed deposits, at 8 per cent. per annum. The total interest he would thus receive on his £200, plus the premium, would be £23, or a little over 10 per cent. per annum. But it is not compulsory for the whole of the £12 10s per share to be paid down at once. Upon payment of the premium of £2 10s per share as a deposit, an investor may secure the number of shares he wishes to take up, and pay the amount in calls of 5s per share per month, with the right to pay the whole of the £12 10s at any time."
Copies of last report and balance sheet, application forms for new shares, and all other information respecting the Society may be obtained on application at the office, 95, Market-street.

HEAD OFFICE: 153, ELIZABETH-STREET, BRISBANE.

THIS COMPANY has been formed for the purpose of acquiring, as a going concern, the well-known Brewery and Wine and Spirit Business, established for some years in Brisbane, and known as "The Queensland Brewing Company," together with its valuable freehold property in Brisbane, and its interest in sundry freehold and leasehold hotels.

The freehold property upon which the Brewery and other buildings are erected is one of the most valuable blocks of land in Brisbane. It is situated on the River Brisbane, one and a half miles from the General Post Office, and comprises subdivisions 18, 19, 36, 37, 101, and 102, of suburban allotment No. 60, Parish of North Brisbane, and contains an area of 6 acres 1 rood, 28½ perches. The river frontage is 1000 feet. The value of the land alone, exclusive of the brewery and other buildings and improvements, has been estimated by the well-known valuators, Messrs. Arthur Martin and Co., the Government auctioneers, at £35,940, being £30,000 for the river frontage, and £5,940 for the remaining area. The brewery and buildings have been valued by Richard Gailey, Esq., C.E. and architect, at £6,000, and the plant and machinery at £5,000. Copies of their certificates of valuation may be inspected at the offices of the respective brokers, or at the head office of the Company.

The buildings comprise the brewery, bottling department, stables, coachhouse, cart-sheds, cooperage, manager's residence, and brewer's cottage. These are all substantially built, and are in first-class order. The cellars are laid with cement and asphalt floors. The engines and plant are of the most approved design, embrace the latest appliances, and in all the modern improvements, and are complete in every respect.

The existing output capacity of the brewery is about 400 hogsheads of beer weekly, but this can be indefinitely increased by addition to the plant at a comparatively small outlay.

The beer manufactured by the brewery is well and favourably known throughout Queensland; and the extraordinary rapid expansion of the business has been such, and the prospects of a continually increasing demand for the beer are so well assured, that it has been considered expedient to augment the capital in order to cope therewith.

The following is the certificate of Mr. Hugh Agnew, public accountant, Brisbane, who has been employed by the Provisional Directors to examine the books of the company:—

"I have carefully examined the books of the Queensland Brewery, and the balance-sheet and profit loss account for last year, which I have verified, and which show a profit of over thirty (30) per cent. on the capital invested, and I hereby certify that under similar management, and with the increased capital, there will be no difficulty, after making ample provision for depreciation in rolling stock and plant, in paying a dividend of at least ten per cent. on a capital of £150,000. I also report that the business of the said firm has been of a substantial and rapidly progressive character.

"HUGH AGNEW, "Certified Accountant.

"Brisbane, 22nd November, 1886."

"I have since had an opportunity of examining the balance-sheet and profit and loss account to 31st December, 1886, and find the results equally satisfactory.

"HUGH AGNEW, "Certified Accountant.

"Brisbane, February 2, 1887."

The price to be paid for the properties, exclusive of the Stock-in-Trade and Rolling Stock, and the Hotels (of which the leasehold ones will be transferred at net cost and the freehold ones at valuation), is £58,940, made up as follows:—

Freehold Land, with Brewery and Outbuildings ...	£36,940	0	0
Plant, Machinery, &c. ...	5,000	0	0
Retaining Wall to River Frontage, which has been completed since above valuations ...	7,000	0	0

It will be observed from the foregoing figures that a reduction of £5000 has been made on the valuation of the landed property.

The Stock-in-Trade and Rolling Stock consist of Ale, Malt, Hops, Sugar, Wines and Spirits, Lorries, Horses, Casks, and all the necessary appliances for the proper conduct of a large Brewing and Wine and Spirit Business. These will be acquired by the Company, either at net cost price, or at a valuation, at the option of the Directors.

The whole of the freehold and leasehold hotels now attached to the business will also be transferred to the Company.

The Book Debts will be retained by the vendors, or guaranteed by them if taken over by the Company.

The vendors will take 20,000 shares paid up to 15s per share in the new company in part payment of the purchase money, and will deposit the scrip in trust as a guarantee which they will give, and which will stand for three years, undertaking that a dividend of not less than 10 per cent. per annum on the paid-up capital will be paid to the shareholders during that period. Remainder of purchase money to be paid as follows:—One-third cash, balance at 6 and 12 months, by bills carrying interest at 6 per cent. per annum.

The public need hardly be reminded of the remarkable and profitable development which has attended recently-formed brewing companies in the colonies, and the confidence with which these undertakings have been supported is fully justified by the results attained.

The share lists of the Australian Brewing and Malting Companies as published in the "Australian Brewers' Journal" afford a practical explanation of the reason for the popularity of this class of investment. Of all the associations therein named, in no single case is the dividend that is paid less than 10 per cent. per annum, whilst the major part of them are paying from 12½ to 15 per cent., and the shares of these companies are quoted at figures varying from 25 to 90 per cent. premium.

Through the adoption by the Legislature of the Government proposal for the extension to the Valley of the Southern and Western Railway, the Brewery Property has already materially increased in value, and more especially has the value of the large river frontage been enhanced. The plans and estimates of this extension have been sanctioned since the valuation mentioned was made, and the Government are pledged to commence the work without delay.

The Company propose erecting a Malting Establishment on the pneumatic principle, as it has been proved that first-class barley can be grown on the Darling Downs. This will be the means of effecting a large saving in the cost of material, and thereby adding to the profits of the Company.

The Company will take over the property, as a going concern, as from 1st March, 1887.

The Board of Directors will be appointed by the Shareholders at a meeting to be held immediately after the floating of the Company.

The services of Mr. Henry Bolton, the present part-proprietor and manager of the brewery, will, if so desired by the Directors, be given to the new Company for three years or a lesser period.

The progress and development of Brisbane and the colony generally are such that within a comparatively few years the land owned by the Company and not required for the business will be saleable at a considerable advance on the price paid. The river frontage owned by the vendors being at the city side of the river, adjoining the Queensland Mercantile and Agency Co.'s wharf, and having deep water, will be invaluable for wharf purposes.

The only charge upon the Company will be the usual expenses for brokerage, advertising, printing, &c.

The vendors guarantee not to engage in similar business in Queensland for ten years.

All deposits will be returned in full if the Company be not floated.

Form of Application for Shares to be obtained from MESSRS. T. J. THOMPSON and SONS, Eldon-chambers, 92, Pitt-street.

THE BABY'S SKIN

AND SCALP CLEANSED, PURIFIED, AND BEAUTIFIED BY CUTICURA.

... UNBLEMISHED SKIN ... the CHARM of BABYHOOD ... INTERESTING FACTS relating to HEALTH and BEAUTY of THE SKIN ...

"Happy the parents of so fair a child" ... Taming of the Shrew.

SINCE THE BEGINNING of THINGS the WORLD HAS BEEN READY TO ACKNOWLEDGE the BABY'S CHARM, and men have been moved by even more knightly reverence for the LITTLE CHILD than for the BEAUTIFUL WOMAN.

When MARIA THERESA held up her baby to the wild Hungarian lords, and bade them behold their King, THEY ACCORDED THE CHILD A HOMAGE which they might have refused to the great Queen herself, for by virtue of his infancy alone, he was ... UPON HIS BABY BROW the ROUND AND TOP of SOVEREIGNTY.

In looking at the likenesses of the CÆSARS, among them all ROBERT BROWNING lingers only upon "A baby's face, with violets there, Violets, instead of laurels, in the hair, As those were all the little locks could bear," the purple splendour of mighty monarchs fading before the baby's smile.

The whole story of SACRED ART, moreover, shows the power of the YOUNG CHILD to move the heart with its tenderness, its helplessness and its beauty, and the picture of the Holy Babe with its limpid gaze, his rosy flesh, HIS ABSOLUTE INNOCENCE, repeated in every form of fact or fancy, has been a tremendous element in the life of the CHURCH.

But, in all these instances, the supposition is that the baby is perfect in form and feature, and of the unblemished skin which is the essential charm of BABYHOOD.

"Of nature's gifts thou may'st with lilies boast, And with the half-blown rose;" cries CONSTANCE to her little son, PRINCE ARTHUR.

And what mother looking at her BABY, does not unconsciously echo the hapless Queen, if the baby has any of the wholesomeness that should be his birthright? Every mother's baby is the ideal baby, the heir of all the ages, the thing for which the world has waited, and to whose existence everything has tended.

IF SHE SUFFERS when she sees THIS WONDROUS CHILD varying from perfection, developing the teeming humours or its INHERITED SKIN DISEASES, only those can say who as mothers themselves have feared the ordeal.

WHEN THE SKIN, that should be soft and sweet as a flower petal, becomes only WITH DISGUSTING SCURF, when the skin, that should wear over its lustre the velling bloom which the wild plum wears, becomes red with a cruel rash; when the skin, that should be smooth and downy as a peach, becomes rough with SCABS AND SORES, whose itching and irritation rob the little victim of rest and sleep and appetite, TORTURING THE CHILD into fever and the mother into horrid apprehension; when this on any part of it happens, then the mother sees that after all her baby is NOT THE IDEAL BABY, and looks about her in desperation for a REMEDY, while every other mother fears for her own, and asks with equal ardour for a PREVENTIVE.

For what came to Lilith, the first wife of Adam, in the old Talmudical story, when she saw her fair little first baby darken into a demon; what came to Eve in the Anglo-Saxon legend, ... her child the changeling of a witch, ... darling suffering and blemished and disfigured in its tender skin.

It is like a BOON TO THESE AFFLICTED and ANXIOUS MOTHERS that the CUTICURA MEDICATED TOILET SOAP has been added to our blessings. For by its use, as by that of no other intermediary, THE MOTHER IS ENABLED to CLEANSE THE SKIN of HER CHILD, to open its pores, TO PREVENT CONTAGION, to destroy parasites and to avert disease.

So wonderful a part of the structure is the skin, with its innumerable millions of pores and capillaries conducting to the surface and shedding the refuse and morbid matter constantly forming, that unless perfect health is secured to it, PERFECT HEALTH can be had nowhere else in the system.

Neglected in the outset, the neglect can never be atoned nor the damages repaired; for many of our most cruel ailments may be traced to their source in a neglect of this GREAT PURIFIER of the body.

Moreover, the skin abused in infancy bears the marks of such abuse in roughness, redness, itching, and inflammation, moles and warts, and eruptive tendencies for ever.

The baby whose skin is not thoroughly cleansed is a thing to make one shudder as much as the wholesome baby is to make one glad; and such a child is not only the natural prey to every cutaneous disorder, but to every zymotic disease as well.

If the chemists and cullets of the SECRETORY PROVINCE OF THE SKIN are kept in THOROUGH CLEANLINESS, the child over whom hangs the possibility of HEREDITARY SCROFULA is far less liable to it, and the DISEASE may be kept long in ABEYANCE, while the comfort and happiness of the child are apparent through its good nature, ... FAT WRINKLES OF THE NECK, the folds behind the ears and elsewhere, are kept FREE FROM EVERY DEPOSIT FROM PERSPIRATION or other secretion.

Too much care cannot be exercised in regard to the agent that is to accomplish this THE PURITY OF THE WATER, the gently stimulating but THOROUGHLY CLEANSING, DISINFECTING, and REMEDIAL QUALITY of the SOAP.

Thus it may be seen what reason those who love their children and those who love their own have for gratitude to the discoverer of the CUTICURA SOAP.

This remarkable soap unites, with the detergent properties of a FAULTLESS SOAP, flower-odours of never-failing freshness, and medicaments drawn from Cuticura, precious as the balm of the Old Testament. Remembering the value of balm, and nard and cassia, and of all the ancient aids to the balsam ... MORE THAN A HUNDRED AND SEVENTY DOLLARS, ... SOFTER and HEALTHIER SKIN, than thousands had.

... CUTICURA SOAP, COSTING TWENTY-FIVE CENTS, ... SOAP with the modern wonders ... FRESHENING, STIMULATING, and PRESERVING SOAP.

... CUTICURA ... ECZEMA, MILK-CRUST, SCALL-HEAD ... INVALUABLE in the CLEANSING of all RAW SURFACES and EXCORIATIONS, in HUMOURS of the SCALP, RED-GUM, and MILK BLOTCHES.

... ZINC, LEAD, MERCURY, ARSENIC, METALLIC, MINERAL, or VEGETABLE POISON or CAUSTIC ... IT DISSOLVES THE WASTE, CLOGGING THE PORES, REMOVES SCURF, SOOTHES INFLAMMATION, ALLAYS IRRITATION, WIPES OUT BLEMISHES ...

... BRINGS the BABY'S SKIN to a condition of HEALTH ...

ENGLISH GOSSIP.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, JAN. 21.

Hardly in the memory of the oldest inhabitant have we had so long or so bitter a winter as that which to-day shows a cheerful prospect of coming to a speedy ending. Darkness has reigned in London for days together, frost and fog and snow and rain alternating. The death of Lord Iddesleigh seemed in keeping with the general gloom. The story of his political ill-treatment and his death and burial has had a sombre background, both in the weather and the aspect of the European situation. "Ossian," you remember, has storm and flood and tempest for the chaotic atmosphere of his pathetic tragedies, and I cannot help thinking how characteristic, at the moment, were the elements, natural and political, in the last sad hours of the blameless and high-minded Lord Iddesleigh. He suffered from heart disease, it is true; but his death was hastened by, to use a mild phrase, the ungracious treatment he received at the hands of certain colleagues and in the press. They are trying to make up for it now; but the opportunity for compensation is over. It is a pity that most men in political life seem to forget that neither they nor their opponents can live for ever. The old proverb is true, that "every man thinks every other man is mortal except himself." When Parliament meets, one of the highest tributes to the memory of Lord Iddesleigh will probably be contributed to the general eulogia by Lord Randolph Churchill.

The public is at length made acquainted with the banks at which they may subscribe to the Colonial, Indian, and United Kingdom Institute. The offices are in Adam-street, Adelphi; and it is a foregone conclusion that the building for the new institution will be erected at South Kensington, thus completing the series of national edifices which have sprung up around the Albert Hall. I am not prepared to say that the site is not as good as any other. It is certainly a far less expensive one than the Thames embankment, and so far as convenience goes no place ought to be considered "out of the way" that is in constant communication with the underground railway and with the best lines of omnibuses. The Prince of Wales has always set his mind upon South Kensington as the site, not only because he thinks the various National and International Exhibitions have given the scheme its raison d'être, and that the scene of them will help its popularity, but he is further impelled in this direction out of a desire to fulfil the late Prince Consort's ambition in regard to South Kensington, which was to make it the centre of the industrial art schools, museums, and scientific and educational institutes of the kingdom. The Pall Mall Gazette has been the only active opponent of the site. Punch has girded at the Prince and the institute, but on grounds entirely different from those of the Pall Mall. Punch affects to fear that the institute is to be a sort of lounge for what is called "the Kensington gang." A lounge, indeed, and something more—an opportunity to provide a number of the Prince's friends with sinecures. The London Satirist has this week a cynical sneer in pen and pencil at the Prince's appeal. The picture represents one of those mechanical contrivances into which you drop a penny, and the thing begins to work. In this case the machine is the institute, with a group of dancing figures in front of it. The Prince of Wales, in a Court suit, is represented as the showman, and John Bull as the audience. The Prince, in his pleasantest manner, is saying, "Now, Mr. Bull, put in half a million, and the model will work." John Bull, in a reflective attitude, is replying, "Hum! Yes, very good idea; but I should like to know something more about the machinery." While the public have every confidence in the Prince, they have not so much confidence in his advisers, and they would like to know what is the real character of the scheme, and what the method of conducting it; but whether anything more is vouchsafed on this head or not, the Prince will get all the money he requires; for, call us a democracy, or what you will, there is an immense amount of snobbism in the constitution of English society, and many rich people and fussy collectors of subscriptions will go out of their way to do something special for the scheme, if only to attract the attention of the Prince of Wales—the heir-apparent—who always remembers his friends and does not forget his enemies.

One of the latest successes of Sir Somers Vine is the projection and starting, under royal auspices, of the Savage Lodge of Freemasons. The new lodge was opened this week. It is not necessarily a Savage Club Lodge, though it has originated in that assembly of workers in journalism, literature, and art. Many of the members of the lodge, I am informed, are not permitted to join it, though the officers are selected from its roll. At the inauguration, the Prince and Sir Francis Knollys were elected honorary members; Sir F. W. Truscott is the master; Sir Somers Vine, senior warden; Thomas Catling (of Lloyd's News), junior; and Henry Irving, treasurer. The Savage Club, by the way, is struggling out of its original and pleasant vogue. It was a club of hard-working, good fellows; it is aiming at the distinction that belongs to princely patronage, and there is just a suspicion of tuft-hunting in its new departure. It is nevertheless for visitors on Saturday nights an interesting and pleasant club. The men who founded it were Bohemians. Among them were Byron, the dramatist; Sala, Harry Leigh, Andrew Halliday; Teggetmeir, the pigeon fancier, and other clever men of that sort. Sala has long since resigned his membership, and the rest are dead, with the exception of Teggetmeier, who occupies an editorial position on the Field. The club has drifted into the hands of new men, who look at life and clubs from a different standpoint compared with the views of the original coterie. Mr. Henry Leigh was perhaps the last of the true Bohemians in London literary life. You will remember him as the author of "The Ballads of Cockaigne" and other delightful musical contributions to that department of poetry in which the works of Praed, Prowse, Locker, and Austin Dobson are enshrined. I know something of the "Savage" in its early, if not its earliest, days, and have pleasant memories of round-the-fire chats with Byron, Halliday, Blanchard, Belmore, Fiske, Horsey, and Barnes the painter. I never enjoyed the society of Leigh much. He was not in any sense a genial companion; he reserved his best temper for his poems: those were the most Bohemian days of the "Savage." The country in which Murger was a prince had its counterpart more or less in London years ago. The English Bohemia was never so wicked as that of France, but it drank more, its wit was coarser, and its food more substantial. As the taste for reading grew, as journalism rose in power, as Art began to be recognised by the people, so fell by degrees the Bohemia of sawdusted floors, pewter pots, long pipes, and gues of gin, and thereupon arose that Upper Bohemia which is exploited in the novel named after a so-called queen of that bright, gay world.

The American Exhibition is to take place after all. I attended its first function last week, when Mr. Whitley, the chief director, invited a number of journalists and friends to look at the grounds. Little else had been done beyond draining the site, and laying it out for the buildings, only one or two of which had been commenced. But the Americans run up houses very quickly, and the principal work in the way of clearing and letting space has been accomplished. The site covers 22 acres, not far from South Kensington, and there are three underground railway stations connected with it. One of the most interesting exhibits will be Buffalo Bill's entertainment, "The Wild West," to which I referred some months ago. It is something between a circus and a theatrical stage play. It illustrates frontier life, and the actors engaged in the outdoor dramas are real Indians, cowboys, Mexicans, settlers, soldiers, and others, the star being Buffalo Bill, otherwise Mr. Cody, the famous American scout. The promoters of the exhibition believe that this will be the chief attraction they can offer to the public; but they hope, by the various trade and other exhibits, to open up with England new markets for American products, natural and industrial. The English market offers such a free and open field for the foreigner that the local producer is likely to find his occupation gone, unless the working-man is willing, at least for a time, to take John Bright's advice and work longer hours and for less wages than hitherto.

Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan's new opera is announced under the somewhat unpleasant title of "Ruddygore; or, the Witch's Curse." It is not entirely original, so far as the libretto is concerned. Mr. Gilbert has used the idea before in a sketch produced years ago by the German Reeds, at the Gallery of Illustration. "Ruddygore" is the name of the family estate of the wicked baronet. The central motive of the action of the story is the witch's curse, which, in the way of reprisal for being burnt alive, condemns the baronet to commit a fresh crime every day of his life, and so on in the case of each successor, with the proviso that on the day a baronet refuses he should die in terrible agonies. The period of the opera is "George the Second. The dresses are to be superb, and correct to a buckle or a shoestring. The gallery of pictures will be the great effect. The portraits of the actors have been realised to the life, and when they walk out of their frames the house is expected to applaud frantically. Mr. Gilbert's lyrics are said to be unusually neat, on the old lines of wild exaggeration. This is exemplified in the sample, which has been allowed to obtain circulation, and which I may be pardoned for reproducing:—

> Once on the village green
> A palsied hag he roasted,
> And what took place, I ween,
> Shook his composure boasted;
> For as the torture grew,
> Seized on each withered limb,
> The writhing dame,
> Mid fire and flame,
> Yelled forth this curse on him:—
> "Each lord of Ruddygore,
> Despite his best endeavour,
> Shall do one crime or more,
> Once every day for ever!
> This doom he can't defy,
> However he may try;
> For, should he stay
> His hand that day,
> In torture he shall die."
>
> The prophecy came true:
> Each heir who held the title
> Had every day to do
> Some crime of import vital;
> Until, with guilt o'ersated,
> "I'll sin no more!" he cried;
> And on that day
> He said that say,
> In agony he died!"

"The Mikado" has disappeared to make room for "Ruddygore," which will be produced for the first time to-morrow night. There has been as great a rush for tickets for the first night as there is for a Lyceum première, and as great a general disappointment. The first night of a new play at a leading theatre is now regarded as a sort of social function, at which, if you are anybody, you are expected to assist; but the press take so many seats, and the recognised paying first-nighters so many more, that the ordinary public have no chance to squeeze in anyhow. There are positive intrigues nowadays to obtain first-night tickets for the Savoy and Lyceum. At the latter house, on the three hundredth night of "Faust," Mr. Irving was not allowed to retire after the first act until he had said a few words, which he did in his well-known modest way, thanking his audience for the continued favour shown to himself, Miss Terry, and the company generally in the tragedy of "Faust," which threatens to run until it is time to take it to America.

While the comedy of the trial between Miss Amy Roselle and Mrs. Conover has been enacted in the Queen's Bench, the tragedy of Spitalfields has shocked the town. Miss Roselle refused to play for half salary when "Alone in London," by Miss Jay and Mr. Buchanan, proved a failure, whereupon she was annoyed by the personal criticisms of the lady manager, Mrs. Conover, and finally "dismissed." Mrs. Conover explained that Miss Roselle would not permit the villain to carry her over a bridge, but insisted upon helping him to bear her weight by "wobbling" with her feet, and she also alleged that the actress cut out some lines in her part in order to distress and worry Miss Jay. For this Miss Roselle brought an action for slander, and arrears of salary £190. The jury found that there was slander, but that it did not hurt Miss Roselle, but they gave her the £100 and costs. Many professional witnesses were called in the case, and Mr. Toole was among them, comical and genial, as usual. The real tragedy which pales this bit of real comedy is a terrible story. A Jewish dramatic club gave an entertainment in the East End Hall, fitted up as a theatre. In the midst of it, there was a cry of fire, an unreasoning panic, and 17 poor creatures were either smothered or trampled to death in a rush for the doors, the victims ranging from a child of eight to an old man of 70.

The air is full of litigation. A Mrs. Bruce, who has written, under the name of "Vanderbilt," "What shall we do with our Girls," has been committed for trial on the charge of libelling the printer and publisher, Mr. Leonard Collingridge, of the City Press. The trouble arose out of a question of accounts, and she wrote postcards to Mr. Collingridge, including in the address "coward" and "scoundrel." One Mr. John Brennan, a member of the Savage Club, has entered an action against the publishers of a book professing to expose the Irish conspiracy, and setting forth Brennan as a Fenian and agent of the League. Messrs. Hare and Kendall, of the St. James's Theatre, are suing a paper called The Bat for libel; and The Bat is suing its printer for damages in respect of a peculiar breach of contract. The printer altered the contents of the paper, declining to issue it without certain alterations, which were made in a criticism of Drury Lane Theatre, and on account of the Twelfth Night reception given by Mr. Augustus Harris. An action is pending against a sporting journal of somewhat free-and-easy proclivities, known as The Pink 'un, the plaintiff being an actress, whose moral character it impugned. A financial journal, which rejoices in the characteristic title of Money, invites an action in its extraordinary criticisms of the floating of a great public company out of which an illustrious firm of bankers made a very large profit. And, lastly, a divorce suit is down for an early hearing, in which one of the co-respondents is a prominent politician and ex-Minister. Other painful cases are talked of, and the lawyers are in high feather.

SNAKES AND NATURAL HISTORY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I quite agree with Mr. M'Cooey, who in a recent issue of your paper states that 99 out of 100 persons in the bush know absolutely nothing about natural history. This not only applies to snakes, but to birds. When the bustard of the plains is called throughout the length and breadth of this colony the wild turkey, and is as much like the genuine wild turkey of North America as I am, it is time some book should be written and properly illustrated with coloured plates on this subject. There is, of course, Gould's magnificent work, written years ago, but the price is quite out of the reach of the ordinary public.

Who could write better than the heads of the various departments in our Sydney Museum? They have the stuffed specimens of birds and snakes in bottles at their elbows for their descriptions, and, surely, such a work would not only be an immense boon to people in the colonies who are fond of natural history, but it might be made a paying concern by issuing such a work in monthly parts with accurate coloured plates, say four in each part, and 30 or 40 lines of reading matter. There is now publishing by Cassell and Co., in England, a work in monthly parts called "Familiar Wild Birds," at the low price of 6d. per part, with two beautifully-coloured plates in each, and a work like this should, certainly, not cost, in Australia, I should imagine, more than 2s. 6d. per month. A book like this in the hands of colonial boys would, I am sure, cause them to take far more interest in the natural history of their own country. I think, with Mr. Bray, that the Museum authorities should immediately take the matter in hand, and write such books, not only on snakes, but also on birds, mammals, fish, and insects. We want a few more such men in the colony as Mr. Bray. There are hundreds anxious to learn.

2nd March, 1887.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In your issue of the 1st instant you publish a letter on the above subject from Mr. M'Cooey, in which he states that "the diamond snake in this colony is confined strictly to the coastal districts, and does not occur west of the dividing range."

I am a resident of Wallerawang, which is not in the coastal districts, and I have frequently seen in the bush here snakes which I have taken to be of the diamond species.

They were green snakes, with yellow spots on many of the scales, the spotted scales forming, as far as I remember, diamond-shaped groups. Those that I have seen here varied in size from about 8 to 10 feet, and were apparently of a sluggish disposition.

I should be obliged to Mr. M'Cooey if he will inform me if I, in common with the other bushmen to whom he refers, have been mistaking the "venomous and sociable" tiger snake for the harmless reptile. I have always hitherto spared those I have come across. If such is the case I shall not be so merciful in future.

ANGLO-COLONIAL NOTES.

(FROM OUR LONDON CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, JAN. 14.

On New Year's Day there died at his residence, Fairmount, near Chertsey, in Surrey, Sir Walter Hughes, the well-known South Australian millionaire. Sir Walter made his money by his connection with the Wallaroo and Moonta Copper Mines, at a time when a copper mine was really a gold mine as far as riches were concerned. He was much more liberal with his wealth than most Australian millionaires, who, to speak candidly, have a reputation over here for close-fistedness. He was practically the founder of the Adelaide University, and it was for his generosity in connection therewith that he received the honour of knighthood. This distinction he obtained for £20,000, or £10,000 less than Sir Samuel Wilson had to pay for his title.

Some witty but malevolent individual played a cruel joke upon Sir Saul Samuel last week. Somehow or other the Agent-General for New South Wales was induced to believe that Earl Cadogan had been appointed Secretary of State for the Colonies, with Mr. Henniker Heaton, M.P., as Under-Secretary. The receipt of this news nearly gave poor Sir Saul a fit.

Telegrams were received in London last week announcing that the deficit in the New South Wales Budget would be £2,500,000, or half a million more than had been anticipated. This unsatisfactory state of things, which was even worse than was predicted by the Colonial Treasurer some months ago, led to a slight fall in New South Wales stock, and caused many investors to feel a little uneasy. A warning has been addressed to Victoria, which is expected to come upon the Stock Exchange shortly, that, although she has passed through a period of droughts and depression better than most people expected she would, yet if she is wise she will not press her loan for the present, inasmuch as should she do so she cannot expect to get as favourable terms as on the previous occasion. The same advice is also tendered to the promoters of the new dock scheme at Port Chalmers. An impression exists that a loan of £80,000 is to be launched on the London market on account of this project; and Mr. Westgarth, one of the most eminent authorities on colonial finance on this side of the world, unhesitatingly expresses the opinion that such a proceeding is to be deprecated, saying that "the time for such a project, even if otherwise promising, is not favourable, for already the market is overfull of New Zealand minor loans of this kind."

Sir Allen Young has not yet submitted to Sir Graham Berry the definite proposals concerning an Antarctic Exploration Expedition which he has promised; but his failure to do this is not held to imply that he has abandoned the idea. The present whaling season is now near its end, and there is plenty of time to prepare for next season, so that we may hear something of the hero of the Pandora at a future date. An impression prevails that if the Antarctic regions are to be properly explored more liberal terms will have to be forthcoming than those proposed by the Geographical Society of Australasia. A scientific expedition, in order to do good work, would have to winter in the Antarctic regions, and would, therefore, have to be fitted out for a two-years' voyage. The proposal to combine a scientific and commercial expedition is one viewed doubtfully in many quarters; but, until something more definite has been heard from Sir Allen Young, it is useless to balance the pros and cons of this question.

Messrs. Denny Bros., of the Clyde, are building a steamer of 1000 tons for the Union Steamship Company of New Zealand. It will be employed on the West Coast trade.

The subject of State-aided emigration continues to furnish food for a little discussion in the papers, and Lord Brabazon, who is chairman of the association for promoting this movement, has delivered one or two addresses upon it. The motives of the advocates of State-aided emigration are good enough, but it is to be feared that they have but little practical knowledge of their subject, and are wholly unaware of the magnitude of the financial difficulties which stand in the way of the realisation of their hopes. For instance, Lord Brabazon declares that it would cost about £120 to send an emigrant and his family from Great Britain to Canada, place him on a lot, and provide him with the means of supporting himself. At the present moment it costs the Canadian Government about £7 to take out an assisted emigrant from Great Britain, but it costs the New Zealand or Australian Governments about £20 to do this, that is nearly three times as much; therefore, we may assume that under Lord Brabazon's plan the same proportion would hold good, and that it would cost three times as much to take an emigrant, and family out to Australia or New Zealand as to take them out to Canada. How would any emigrant like to be started in a new country with a debt of some £360 on his shoulders? As Sir Francis Dillon Bell is fond of saying, "This plan won't go." Lord Brabazon and his friends also seem to be ignorant of what the colonies themselves have done in the way of assisting emigration, particularly during the last 10 years. In that time Queensland has taken out over 100,000 assisted emigrants, at a cost, at the very least, of £2,400,000, which for so young a community is something extraordinary. During the same period New South Wales has taken out more than 50,000, and New Zealand about 44,000 emigrants. South Australia within the same period has taken out about 28,000 emigrants, though during the last year and a half emigration has been stopped to this colony. Another objection to Lord Brabazon's scheme is that he proposes to do at the expense of the British tax-payer, something which the colonies have hitherto done at their own cost.

The colonies will not be able to complain that in the new Colonial Secretary of State they have not got a man with experience of the colonies. Sir Henry Holland, who has accepted the post vacated by Mr. E. Stanhope, is no stranger at the Colonial Office, having once occupied the position of permanent Under-Secretary in that department for several years. His nomination is the first instance of a permanent official in a Government department being raised to the rank of Parliamentary head of the same office. Whether Sir Henry will turn out a success as Colonial Secretary of State remains to be seen. Those who remember him during his former residence at the Colonial Office are inclined to think he may prove crotchety. In the House of Commons he has the reputation of being somewhat bumptious; but there can be no question as to his authority upon matters colonial.

The emigration statistics for last year show that 43,085 persons of British origin emigrated to the Australasian colonies, as against 39,395 in the previous year. An analysis of the figures brings out the curious fact that in 1886 there was a marked increase over 1885 in the number of English emigrants to Australasia, a small decrease in the number of Scotch, and a very large falling off in the number of Irish emigrants. The emigration from Great Britain to the United States last year was 152,930, as against 137,687 in 1885; and to British North America 24,745, as against 19,838 in the previous year. It is gratifying to observe that the emigration from Great Britain to British possessions shows a substantial annual increase.

Mr. Norton claims to have obtained a substantial triumph over the Emigration Bureau, inasmuch as in the quarterly circular which the officials of this department have just issued, so far from holding up New South Wales as a desirable place for emigration, they have gone to the other extreme, declaring that there is no demand for labour there at all, and that great depression exists in the colony. This assertion is as incorrect as their previous statement, for even Mr. Norton himself has never denied that there is a great demand for female domestic labour in New South Wales. All he said on this point was these female emigrants ran great risk to their virtue by being located in out of the way places, where they cannot be adequately protected.

Mr. Norton called on the New South Wales Agent-General on Tuesday, to ask him to suggest corrections in the Emigration Bureau statistics; but he failed to prove to Sir Saul Samuel's satisfaction how he could legitimately interfere, in the fact of the fact that the latest information received from the colony showed that out of the emigrants who had lately been landed there, the females had been snapped up at once, and the general labourers seem to have found employment. A discussion then took place between the two upon the question of protection; and Sir Saul Samuel, as an old freetrader, got so much the better of the argument that Mr. Norton thought it wise to plead for the closing of the debate.

The new Admiral for the Australian station will probably be a passenger in the P. and O. steamer the Shannon, which will leave England on the 25th proximo, and will join the vessel at Suez. He has not yet appointed his staff. Rear-Admiral Henry Fairfax, C.B., is a much older man than Admiral Tryon.

The Earl of Carnarvon has been writing some very stirring letters to the Times upon the neglected state of our coaling stations and home ports, but more particularly the former. The noble earl was chairman of the commission formed several years ago for the purpose of examining into the state of the defences of British possessions and commerce abroad, so that he speaks as one having authority. He accords full recognition to the efforts which the self-governing colonies are making in the direction of protecting themselves; and declares that the fortifications of Sydney and Melbourne, while securing the safety of those capitals, also provide coals and arsenals for the use of the vessels of the Queen, and everything that gives life and power to a fleet without the Imperial Government being required to contribute. But while the self-governing colonies are doing everything, the Imperial Government appears to be doing nothing. The defenceless state in which the Cape—our half-way house to India—is left, Lord Carnarven characterises as disgraceful.

Dr. Forbes Watson, who claims to have first started the idea of an Imperial Institute several years ago, is bitterly opposed to the present form which this scheme is taking, and has published a pamphlet setting forth his objections to the same. Dr. Watson tells us that in propagation of his views upon what an Imperial Institute ought to be, he has issued 90,000 pamphlets and expended the sum of £1800. The old adage tells us that there is a certain class of persons who never can keep company with their cash.

I understand that the generous and truly Christian conduct of the New Zealand Primate in entertaining Miss Houston at his house, at Christchurch, in order to "additionally" emphasise the verdict of acquittal passed upon her by the jury, and afford the lady a fresh start in life, has not proved agreeable to certain persons in this country who describe themselves as connections of the Primate.

The names of the successful competitor and others deemed worthy of notice, in the prize-essay contest upon Imperial Federation initiated by the London Chamber of Commerce, have been published. One hundred and six essays were sent in, and amongst those which receive honourable mention is that of Mr. J. R. Fitzgerald, of Wellington, New Zealand.

PARLIAMENTARY GOVERNMENT.

The new Parliament will shortly be got to work. The last, we must admit, was a failure. Will the new one better fulfil the purposes for which Parliament exists? It has sometimes been said that no tool answers two purposes perfectly; and we must admit that under our system of government our Parliament has to perform two functions, and they are two that require different mental and moral qualities. As its French etymology implies, Parliament is a talking place, and talking is one of its high functions. It is the grand arena for political discussion; it is the place where leading men do their utmost, under the stress of party conflict, to expound and defend the views they hold. The older Saxon institution used to be called the Witenagemot, or assembly of wise men—a place for grave deliberation and the settlement of laws in a practical and thoughtful manner. This indicates the second function of Parliament, namely, legislation. But the making of speeches and the making of laws are two different things, and men who are very well-fitted for the one may by no means show themselves experts in the other. The volumes of Hansard show what talking-power our last two Parliaments have possessed; the volumes of statutes show how maigre is the practical result.

When some years ago Prince Albert said that the Constitution of England was on its trial, he merely gave utterance to an expression which was natural to a critical German intellect, but it was resented as something like treason to popular institutions, and the Prince was severely taken to task by those who regarded the British Constitution as the perfection of wisdom, and who laid to their heart the flattering unction of the post that it was the high prerogative of Britain to teach the nations how to live. Since then, however, even the House of Commons has had its sad experiences. Obstructive tactics, disorderly scenes, deliberate waste of time, defiance of parliamentary traditions, and barren sessions, have become a British experience, and the nations have learnt that there was something to avoid as well as something to admire in a constitution which, though it had done so much, had at last displayed such grave defects. To do the European critics justice, they have most of them commented on the parliamentary difficulties in England in a fair and sympathetic manner; but looking on the play of parties as outside spectators, they can afford to observe with impartiality and in a spirit of scientific criticism.

Among these critics there are few who are more fitted by their past studies to judge the situation fairly than M. Emile de Laveleye, and in a recent essay he has taken a wide survey of the question of parliamentary government generally, and contrasted its working in England and France—with its working in the United States and in Switzerland. The two former countries naturally group together, because in each of them the Parliament is the great arena for debate, and to the Parliament itself the decisive votes are committed. In America parliamentary debate is quite a secondary thing, and legislation is practically decided by select committees; while in Switzerland there is an organised method of appealing from Parliament to the people voting by way of plebiscitum. Three of the governments compared are republican in form, while England is democratic in substance, though monarchical and aristocratic in form.

When the American system was founded, the great statesmen who planned it did not wish to depart unnecessarily from the English type, but they were forced by circumstances to make some substantial variations, because they had neither a monarch nor a House of Lords; and not having those checks on the House of Assembly, and having to guard against the assumed instability of democracy, they were forced to adopt other precautions. Therefore they gave the President a fixed term of office, only to be shortened by a successful impeachment; they gave him the uncontrolled nomination of his Cabinet; they removed that Cabinet from direct contact with Parliament; they gave the President a veto; they established a Senate which represented the several States; they put the Supreme Court above the Parliament; and they made the Constitution unalterable, except by a vote of two-thirds in each House and three-fourths of the States voting separately. The popular assembly is as popular as it could possibly be; it rests on manhood suffrage in equal electoral districts; but between it and great changes are solid institutions capable of great resistance.

Australian tourists who spend a day or two in the Capitol at Washington always complain that it is very dull, and they have even a difficulty in understanding what is going on. The room is large, the members are dispersed, each having his own desk, and hardly anybody seems to attend to what is going forward. The reason is that neither the work of legislation nor the work of discussion is really done in that Chamber, but only the formal ratification of what is done elsewhere. Two American books recently published give a description of the parliamentary procedure at Washington—Mr. Woodrow Wilson's "Congressional Government," and "The Conduct of Business in Congress," by Mr. Hoar. The first party contest when a new House of Representatives meets is over the choice of the President. On him depends a great deal, because whatever pressure may be brought to bear upon him, he has practically the nomination of all the standing committees; and upon the way in which they are constituted will depend the shape in which all bills referred to them reappear. Of these committees there are no fewer than 47, each intended to deal with a special class of measures. The most important is the Committee of Ways and Means, consisting of 11 members, and in which both political parties are generally represented. The others vary in their importance. Every bill introduced into the House is at once referred to the proper committee, although there is sometimes a discussion as to which is the proper committee, seeing that many bills might with equal propriety be sent to either of two committees. The discussion on the clauses of the bill goes on in the select committee, neither the debates nor the proceedings in which are reported, and when the bill is returned to the House, custom leads to its being adopted as presented. The member who reports never has more than an hour in which to speak, and he is expected, even out of this, to allow something to other members, and especially to an opponent. Of course anybody can object to any clause in any bill; but in practice, whatever the committee proposes is adopted. The real work of the legislature therefore is done out of sight; the all-important thing is that it is done. But why the clauses are shaped as they are, and who is responsible for the amendments introduced into the original bill, are not known, and the public, which acquiesces in established customs, does not care to inquire. Private bills by the score, and even the hundred, go to the select committees, and are never heard of again; but urgent matters are promptly dealt with. This is the good side of the system. Such a measure, for instance, as our proposal to extend municipal government, or to establish a Railway Commission, would not be dawdled over year after year. The committee in charge of the bill would go at it vigorously, and would bring up a definite report. But there are two defects in this system, on both of which M. de Laveleye puts his finger at once. The first is, that Congress is no educator. A few great speeches are occasionally made in the Senate, but nobody seems to care what is said in the House of Representatives. It is a curious fact that the speeches of Mr. Gladstone and Lord Salisbury are sent across the Atlantic at great expense by telegraph, and eagerly devoured by the people; while the speeches made in the House of Representatives are only to be found in the official records, and have no general interest. The second defect is that there is a great diminution of personal responsibility in those who actually shape the laws. Important bills are keenly debated in the select committees, and the result is generally a compromise after discussion, but for that very reason, is all kept from the eye of the people, and nobody stands before the public responsible for a single word or a single clause. If the law should work badly, there is no one to blame; if it should work well, there is no one to praise; legislation is absolutely impersonal.

But the advantage of having important bills dealt with promptly is so great that M. de Laveleye suggests that the talking Parliaments might improve their procedure by referring the detailed discussion of bills to committees of experts. In this respect France has done more than England, and even England has done more than these colonies. Our Assembly is not a good deliberative body, and very rarely does it take advantage when a bill is in committee.

In Switzerland, where to this day in some cantons, townships and districts the plan of governing by public meeting is still in force, the constitution maintains as near an approach to that primitive plan as is practicable. The legislature is not the supreme law-making power; the veto remains, not in the hands of a President, but with a majority of the electors. Any law, before coming into operation, must, on demand duly made by 30,000 voters or by eight cantons—be submitted to the Referendum, that is, subjected to a popular plebiscitum. In appearance this is a highly democratic measure, reserving as it does the last word to the people themselves; yet, as M. de Laveleye says, it has deceived the hopes of its partisans and the fears of its adversaries. The veto has been more often Conservative than otherwise, and nearly always hostile to centralisation and to great expenditure. What is more extraordinary, a plebiscitum by no means always harmonises with the election of candidates, and people who, in obedience to party orders, vote for certain Radical candidates, condemn afterwards the measures passed by the men they have chosen. The plebiscitum, however, when taken in the different cantons, does not always give the same results. Thus in Neufchatel it rejected a progressive tax, while in Vaud it was approved; by the Grand Council; while in Vaud it approved a tax on capital so severely progressive as to make it doubtful whether persons in easy circumstances would stay to pay it. Under such a system as the Swiss, the importance of Parliamentary discussion is very great, because, as the final decision rests with the people en masse, it is in the highest degree desirable that they should understand that on which they vote; but at the same time the scheme puts the principle of representation in quite a subordinate position. Under it Parliament becomes little more than a committee to shape the laws, but the power to make laws remains with the people. The American system, on the other hand, throws an immense duty on the press, on writers of books, and on lecturers and orators; for where Parliament vacates its function as a public educator, the task has to be undertaken by other agencies.

TONGAN AFFAIRS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The news just to hand from your correspondent in Fiji from Tonga is more than startling—it is most alarming and serious, not only to the Wesleyan missionaries, white and native, but to the whole white population in the island. It must be apparent to every one who has read the different accounts of the persecutions, &c., that have been published from time to time lately, that Mr. Baker is the sole instigator and cause of all that has recently taken place there, and is responsible for the lives that have been sacrificed. We have been informed by eye-witnesses that he is not only Premier, but virtually king, prosecutor, judge, and jury, and that such a man to hold the reins of government, as a member of the ... Wesleyan foreign missions and committee of privileges, I think I am in a position to know somewhat of the circumstances which have led up to and culminated in this violent sacrifice of life; my only wonder is that Mr. Shirley Baker's life has not been taken long ago. The whole affair has now developed into a serious political aspect, and one which British subjects we are bound to take up, and that without delay.

I would suggest that a public meeting be called at once, with the object of bringing the matter before the Governor; and more especially as the Rev. Mr. Crosby, Wesleyan missionary in Tonga, is now in Sydney, and would be able to speak on Tongan affairs as they were when he left, a few months ago.

I trust someone better able than myself will take it up, and that we shall do all that can be done, so far as we are able, to prevent further bloodshed in that unhappy island.

I am, &c.,
EDWD. HOSEY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In your leader of the 1st on the Tongan persecutions you refer to the savagery of the Tongan race appearing from behind a thin disguise of Christianity and civilisation, concluding with the remark, "scratch the king and you will find the savage."

As one who has lived nearly a score of years in Polynesia, in close contact with the native races, and as one who is desirous that the sons of the Friendly Islands should be duly apportioned, I ask the favour of being allowed a word or two upon one phase of the subject.

While it need be no matter of surprise that a large amount of savage feeling and savage thinking should be left in the Tongan race, whose Christianity has been a thing of one generation only, yet it should not be assumed by the public generally that in every instance this savage feeling has broken forth or even subsided. There are numbers in Tonga whose Christianity has made them revolt in spirit against the course taken by the Government in maltreating people for their churchmanship. In that land indeed, as elsewhere (in our own even) there are numbers whose delight is in mere brutality, and who gleefully accept the first opportunity that occurs of knocking to pieces their fellow citizens, and of looting their property. Tonga is well known not to be wanting in people of this class; but who is responsible for letting those dogs loose upon an unfortunate minority? The man who unchains a savage brute and lets him career down the streets is morally, perhaps legally, responsible for the bites which the creature administers during the coward rush. Who is the man that let loose "the lowdor sort" among the Tongans?

The almost nonagenarian king can hardly be considered responsible for initiating and directing all the recent movements that have resulted so scandalously of late. Those who understand the Polynesian mind will not credit that there are ideas in these movements which are not native. Is it fair to give the Tongans all the blame? It is a painful fact down there in the South Sea Islands that King George has been considerably under influence for some time past, and my own opinion is that if—to use an expression from your leader—you scratch the king you will find underneath a burly Englishman. Whether this is equivalent to the concluding part of your sentence, I leave the world to judge.

I am, &c.,
ARTHUR WEBB.

LAW REPORT.

SUPREME COURT.—Friday, March 4.

In Banco.—(Before their Honors the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Faucett, and Mr. Justice Innes.)

THE QUEEN V. TRICKETT AND ANOTHER.

Mr. Clarke Irving appeared for the Crown, Mr. Salomons, Q.C., and Mr. Murray represented the prisoners.

This was a special case stated by Judge Forbes, before whom the prisoners, Barton Trickett and Alfred Jordan, were tried at the Metropolitan Quarter Sessions, at Darlinghurst, on the 7th February last, for stealing 100 yards of lace, the property of Thomas Joseph Lloyd, draper. Lloyd at that trial proved that the property was his, that the prisoner Trickett was in his employ, having daily access to the goods stolen, and having in facts a salesmans control over the lace; that some four or five days after the 1st of January he saw the property in the shop and reprimanded Trickett for not attending to his duty in connection with it, and that he then went out of the shop, and when he returned some little time after, the lace was removed from the window. Some days afterwards Trickett was found taking the lace to where the man Jordan was found. A police constable went there, to 97, Market-street, a house kept by a Mr. Marsh, and saw the prisoners together. The constable pointed to a box containing a quantity of lace under a side table, and asked who it belonged to. They both said they knew nothing about it. Jordan then said to Trickett, "It is no good, the box is mine." Trickett said nothing. The prisoners were then arrested, and charged with the offence. Afterwards, when both prisoners were together, the constable heard Jordan say "Trickett brought the box on Monday night, and I was to get so much for selling it." Trickett said nothing when he heard that. Trickett was found guilty of stealing and Jordan of receiving the property knowing it to have been stolen, and each prisoner was sentenced to nine months' hard labour. The following points were reserved at the request of Trickett's attorney:—"1. That as Lloyd had in cross-examination stated that he was not away or neglecting his business or in liquor in the presence of his employers, the judge should have permitted Mr. Fawl to call witnesses to contradict this. 2. That Mr. Lloyd having in cross-examination refused to answer the question whether any of his cheques had been dishonoured, the judge should have compelled him to answer the question; and, further, that he should have allowed witnesses to be called for the defence to prove that some of Mr. Lloyd's cheques had been dishonoured; (3) that there was not sufficient evidence in the case to warrant the jury in finding a verdict of guilty of stealing."

Mr. Salomons contended that the District Court judge had no right to refuse to hear the evidence called in contradiction, or to allow Lloyd to decline to answer the question put to him regarding the dishonoured cheques, and cited from Roscoe on Criminal Evidence to the effect that a witness may be questioned in cross-examination, not only upon the subject of the inquiry, but any other subject, however remote, for the purpose of testing his credibility, his memory, and accuracy. The evidence given was insufficient to support the conviction, and the conversation related by the police constable at the time of the apprehension ought not to have been received.

The Chief Justice, without calling upon Mr. Clarke Irving to reply, said that if the Court had any doubts at all about this matter they might have referred it back to the District Court Judge for explanation; but he had not the slightest doubt as to the meaning of the statements of the case. In his opinion the learned Judge was perfectly right in not allowing witnesses to be called, contradicting the statement made by Lloyd in cross-examination. The questions put to Lloyd were not in any way relevant to the matter before the Court. No doubt where a counsel asked such questions as whether a witness neglected his business or was intoxicated at a certain time, he must be satisfied with witness's answer when the question was not relevant to the issue. The learned Judge was quite right, therefore, in ruling that such evidence was inadmissible. Then, again, with reference to the dishonoured cheques, the Judge was perfectly right in allowing a question of that kind not to be answered. A question of that kind could not in any way affect the credit of the witness in the eyes of the jury. A man might get his cheques dishonoured, and that was a matter that might affect his financial credit, but not his moral credit. Again, a man might have his cheques dishonoured through a misunderstanding with a bank, and then he would have good grounds for an action for damages against the bank. The Judge was perfectly right in not allowing the witness to be tortured by questions of this kind, which could not affect the guilt of the prisoner, and in refusing to allow him to give an answer. That got rid of all the points except the one that there was no evidence to support the verdict. Objection had been raised to the evidence of the constable when he stated the conversation that took place when the prisoners were both present. That evidence according to Archibald, "On Evidence," and Phillip's "On Evidence," was clearly admissable, against the prisoner who made them. A Judge would be quite right in telling a jury in this case that the statements made by Jordan might be of doubtful value as against Trickett. But in view of the position that had been held by Trickett, the fact of his having been in Lloyd's employ, they were quite justified to attach what weight they chose to the testimony, and to find the prisoners guilty. The conviction must be upheld.

Mr. Justice Faucett and Mr. Justice Innes concurred, the latter expressing surprise, while fully appreciating the great ability of the eminent counsel who had argued the matter, that he should dream of persuading the Court that there was anything in these points.

THE QUEEN V. WEAVER.

Mr. Clarke Irving appeared for the Crown; the prisoner was unrepresented.

This was a special case, stated by Judge Forbes, before whom the prisoner, Gustavus Weaver, was tried, at the Quarter Sessions, at Darlinghurst, on the 9th February, for having stolen £30, the moneys of John Arthur Johnson, in the dwelling-house of Peter Brown, in Sydney. The prosecutor, who was a steward on board the s.s. Burwah, had been lodging at the Orient Hotel, George-street; and he told Mr. Brown, the landlord, that he was desirous of becoming a Freemason. Mr. Brown introduced him to the prisoner, who undertook to get him duly installed, saying that he was himself a Master of the Midlothian (Scotch) Lodge. He added that there would be no difficulty about getting him through all the degrees on the same night, and that the fees would be £3 12s. The prosecutor said he would pay this sum willingly, and in the prisoner's presence opened the box in which he kept his money. He thought the prisoner must have noticed a quantity of gold and notes inside, as he instantly stated that the fees would be £2 10s. 6d. extra. The prosecutor thought this rather strange, but nevertheless gave him the money. The prisoner then proceeded to give him some instructions. He produced a book on Freemasonry, and told him to learn certain passages by heart. Great secrecy, he said, was necessary, and prosecutor, at prisoner's instance, left the room and looked along the corridors to be certain that nobody was about who could overhear the conversation. Shortly afterwards he found that the money left in his box had been abstracted, and the theory of the prosecution was that the prisoner had taken it during the prosecutor's temporary absence. The prisoner was found guilty, and sentenced to one year and nine months' hard labour. The points reserved were that there was no evidence of stealing, and that the money, if taken, was not under the protection of a dwellinghouse.

Their Honors held that there was sufficient evidence of the theft, and that the money was stolen from a dwelling-house. The conviction was therefore upheld.

EX PARTE THOMAS CARROLL.

Mr. O'Connor moved, on behalf of Thomas Carroll for a rule nisi, calling upon William Fox Parker, magistrate; Timothy Foley, clerk of Petty Sessions; and Michael Dublin, of Muswellbrook, to show cause why a writ of prohibition restraining a conviction under the 225th section of the Criminal Law Amendment Act, should not be issued. The section in question relates to malicious injury to property, and Carroll had been found guilty of breaking down a slip-rail on some property in Bridge-street, Muswellbrook. Mr. O'Connor contended that the 225th section of the Act was qualified by the 229th section, and that the evidence showed that the defendant acted not maliciously, but under a reasonable supposition that he had a right to do the act, as he had been using this paddock.

The Court did not consider the matter arguable upon the facts submitted by Mr. O'Connor, and the rule nisi was accordingly refused.

EXPARTE JEFFERIS.

Mr. Pilcher, instructed by Dr. G. J. Sly, moved on behalf of the Rev. James Jefferis, D.D., for a rule nisi against Mr. T. K. Abbott, Mr. Whittingdale Johnston, and Mr. John M'Intosh, sitting as the Licensing Bench at the Central Police Court, calling upon them to show cause why a writ of prohibition should not issue in respect of their decision to grant a license to the hotel in connection with the Criterion Theatre.

The facts in this matter are pretty well known. Mr. Solomon, the lessee of the Criterion Theatre, applied for an hotel license to premises forming part of the theatre building, and contiguous to the Presbyterian Church, of which the Rev. Dr. Jefferis is the minister. The application was opposed by Dr. Jefferis and the deacons of his church, and when it first came before the bench an adjournment was granted, as there was not a sufficient number of rooms to entitle the lessee to an hotel license. By subdivisions the number of rooms required was provided, and then opposition was raised to the license on the ground that the existence of the theatre bar so closely adjacent to the church would interfere with the services in the church, and would prove a source of annoyance to those who attended them. It was pointed out, moreover, that the local option vote taken in connection with the municipal elections had declared against the number of hotels being increased. Notwithstanding the opposition, the magistrates, having regard to the fact that the house contained the number of rooms required under the Act, granted the license; and against their decision a writ of prohibition was now sought under the 12th section of the Justices Act, 14 Vict., No. 43. That section provided that, "If, after the passing of this Act, any person shall feel aggrieved by a summary conviction or order of any justice or justices, it shall be lawful for him within 20 days after such conviction or order . . . . . to apply to the Supreme Court, or in vacation to one of the Judges thereof, for a rule or order calling on the justice or justices, and the party prosecuting or otherwise interested in maintaining the conviction or order, to show cause to the Court why prohibition should not issue.

Mr. Pilcher pointed out that the motion here was not for a common law prohibition, but for a statutory prohibition.

The Chief Justice was afraid the Court could not interfere in the matter. There was another remedy for an aggrieved person to take—he could appeal to the Court of Quarter Sessions.

Mr. Pilcher said that no doubt the proper course would have been to have applied to the Court of Quarter Sessions, but unfortunately his client was too late for that.

The Chief Justice said that under the 7th section of the Licensing Act the licensing bench was a court of records, and a statutory prohibition would not lie. The only remedy was an appeal to Quarter Sessions, or in the event of the Bench acting without jurisdiction a common law prohibition.

Mr. Pilcher thought this Court had granted a prohibition under the Licensing Act.

Mr. Justice Faucett did not remember any case of the kind.

Mr. Pilcher said he had been told that the Court had granted such an application, but he did not know what the case was. If he should find any such case would the Court allow him to mention the matter again?

The Chief Justice: Certainly, it is a case you can mention again.

The rule nisi was refused.

JACOBS V. SMITH.

Mr. Cohen on behalf of the plaintiff, moved for leave to add a replication to a plea in this case which came before the Court on an argument on demurrer a fortnight ago.

Mr. C. B. Stephen, who represented the defendant, opposed the motion, but afterwards withdrew his objection.

Leave was granted to add the replication, subject to the costs being paid by the applicant.

THE FEDERAL BANK OF AUSTRALIA V. DAVIES.

Mr. C. B. Stephen, on behalf of the plaintiff bank, moved to make absolute a rule nisi, that a judgment of non pros. in this matter, signed by the plaintiff, should be set aside. Mr. Mann, for the plaintiff, opposed the application.

The facts were as follows:—The action was originally brought on a bill of exchange. The writ was issued, the declaration was filed, no defence was lodged, and judgment was signed during vacation. The defendant, however, raised the question that the plaintiffs could not file a declaration without the leave of a Judge, but it was contended in reply thereto that on promissory notes a declaration could be filed without the consent of a Judge. The defendant applied to the Chief Justice to set aside the judgment, and his Honor, not without some doubt as to the interpretation of one of the rules of Court, made an order setting aside the judgment. The matter was brought before the Supreme Court, and the decision of the Chief Justice was upheld upon the technical ground. As soon as the Chief Justice set aside the judgment the defendant took out a judgment on non pros., and Mr. Stephen now moved that this should be set aside.

Mr. Mann raised a preliminary objection to the rule setting aside judgment being made absolute, to the effect that the affidavit which ought to have been sworn and filed before the rule was granted, was not actually sworn and filed until the day after it was granted.

Mr. Stephen cited a rule of the Court, showing that the affidavit might be dispensed with altogether.

The Chief Justice said the affidavit had been signed before judgment was signed in the first instance, and what did the Court require any further affidavit for? The objection must be overruled.

Mr. Stephen then contended that the rule ought to be made absolute, with costs, that the judgment of non pros. ought never to have been taken out, and that it had been through a pure inadvertance that the leave of the Judge had not been obtained to file the declaration in the first instance.

Mr. Mann opposed the rule being made absolute with costs.

The Chief Justice said the fact of the defendant's attorney going upstairs and signing this judgment of non pros. could have had no other effect than to saddle one party or the other with useless costs. The defendant's attorney must have known that any Judge of the Court would have at once given the necessary leave to file the declaration, and judgment would have been entered up.

The judgment was set aside, the costs to be costs in the cause. Leave was granted the plaintiff bank to file a declaration.

IN RE THE ESTATE OF JOHN WHITE.

Mr. Pring moved to put bond in suit in the name of the Attorney-General against the widow and administratrix of the estate and effects of John White, late of Summer Hill, butcher. Mr. White, it appeared, died on the 7th July, 1885, and on the 6th of August following letters of administration were granted to his widow, on whose behalf the usual bonds were entered into. The next of kin were Isabella Allen, of Edinburgh, sister of the late John White, and Alexander White, brother. The administratrix passed her accounts on the 11th March, 1886, showing a balance of £628 19s. 9d. She was allowed £44 commission and £2 2s. costs, so that there remained in her hands to the credit of the estate the sum of £582 17s. 9d. That money was derived from the sale of the real estate, so that she was, of course, entitled to a sum equal to one-third of the capitalised value of the estate, with interest. None of the money was paid over to the brother and sister of the deceased, and various letters had been written by their attorneys to the administratrix asking for their shares, but she had replied to none of them.

The usual order was made to put bond in suit.

BARTON AND OTHERS V. ELLIOTT.

This was a special case stated by the magistrates at Cobar for decision under the Tenements Recovery Act.

Dr. Coghlan, instructed by Mr. Atkin, appeared for the appellants, Barton Brothers, of Cobar; and Mr. Hanbury Davies, instructed by Messrs. Shepherd and Crossman, for the respondent, William Russell Elliott.

The respondent, it appeared, had a lease from the Messrs. Barton of a hotel at Cobar, for the term of a year, which expired at midnight on the 18th of January of this year, the tenant to have the option of a new lease on giving three months' notice. No notice was given within the terms of that agreement, and on the 19th of January verbal notice was given by the agent of the Messrs. Barton that they would take possession of the hotel; but Elliott still continued tenant until the 8th February, paying rent at the rate of £5 per week—the same rate as before, with this difference that it had under the old agreement to be paid quarterly in advance. On the 31st January a written notice was given to Elliott to the effect that the weekly tenancy would cease on the 8th February, and that possession of the premises would be required on that date. Possession was not given up, and Mr. Granger Barton, acting for the others, signed an information before a magistrate for the purpose of getting the tenant ejected. On hearing the case the magistrates declared they were unable to come to any determination as to what kind of tenancy had been created after the expiration of the lease, and on that account they dismissed the application. From that decision the plaintiffs now appeal.

Dr. Coghlan contended that a weekly tenancy had been created, that a week's notice had been given, and that the magistrates ought to have made an order of ejectment against Elliott.

Mr. Davies contended that in the case of a party holding over, after the expiration of a tenancy by agreement, the terms under which he continued to occupy were a matter of fact rather than of law, and the Court could only be appealed to in matters of law. They could not, therefore, review the decision of the magistrates, which was purely given upon the facts.

The Chief Justice said it was quite clear the magistrates misunderstood the matter before them for determination. They seemed to have thought that this small matter regarding the lease had some material bearing on the case. It had no bearing on the case whatever. There was a lease dated the 19th January, 1886, and it expired at 12 o'clock on the 18th January, 1887. When that lease expired there was a weekly tenancy for two weeks rent were paid and no receipt given, manifestly on that supposition. Upon possession not being given in accordance with a notice served, these proceedings were taken. The proceedings were perfectly right. There was no defence to the case. An order would be made to reverse the determination of the magistrate, and directing the defendant to give up possession.

Mr. Justice Faucett and Mr. Justice Innes concurred, and the decision of the magistrates was therefore reversed.

EX PARTE CHAPPELL AND ANOTHER.

In the matter of the application of Herbert Chappell and Robert Hobart Caunter, and in the matter of the caveat of Thomas Pratt, Mr. Gordon moved for an order under the 4th section of the Real Property Act to settle the issues for trial.

The order was granted, to be issued within seven days.

EX PARTE F. L. ROSSI.

Mr. F. L. Rossi appeared in person, and moved for a rule nisi, calling upon the magistrates of Goulburn to show cause why a writ of prohibition should not be issued against their order, committing him for trial for an offence committed in connection with the recent disturbances at Goulburn Cathedral.

The Chief Justice said he was afraid the Court had no power to grant such a prohibition. The magistrates had discharged merely a ministerial duty. There had been no conviction and the Court had no power to grant a prohibition under the Act, where a person was committed for trial. They had only power to grant a prohibition in a case of summary conviction or order of the magistrates.

Mr. Rossi: Thank you, your Honors. I will make my application after I am convicted. (Laughter.)

The Court then adjourned until Monday next.

In Equity.—(Before his Honor the Primary Judge, Sir William Manning.)

TAYLOR V. JENKINS AND OTHERS.

Mr. A. Simpson, on behalf of the defendants, trustees under the will of W. J. Jenkins, which was to be carried out under the directions of the Court so far as the trustees were unable to agree in its administration, asked the Court for directions. This was as regarded the advisability of selling a portion of the Berkley estate in the Illawarra district, in order to effect permanent repairs to the remaining portion of it, by the way of mending fences, repairing homesteads, and so on.

Mr. Walker, on behalf of the plaintiff trustee, said that the will was an obscure one. He objected to selling at the present time, as a good price was not likely to be obtained.

Mr. Simpson agreed that the will was an obscure one. The testator's arithmetic was wrong. He divided his estate into portions which when added together came to more than the whole. The sum he asked for for repairs was £270, there being 2800 acres in the principal estate.

His Honor said there was no reason why the application should not be granted. He would give power for the sale of so much of the land as might be necessary for raising £3000 for effecting the required improvements, the dissenting trustee to join in all acts and deeds.

SHAW V. ASSETS COMPANY.

Mr. G. Knox, for the plaintiff, mentioned that this case had been arranged, and asked for it to be dismissed according to the terms of an agreement come to. It was, he said, a very complicated Scotch agreement. His Honor dismissed the suit accordingly.

NORTH SHORE FERRY COMPANY V. JEANNERET.

Mr. Walker was for the plaintiffs, and Mr. A. H. Simpson for the defendant.

The motion was one for an attachment, or alternatively, for forcing the defendant to carry out the terms of a memorandum of lease. Defendant entered into a contract with the Government, who agreed to execute to him the lease of a certain wharf. Defendant, having settled the contract, executed an under lease for the same wharf to the plaintiffs. Technicalities arose, and defendant threatened to cut the plaintiffs' steamers adrift unless some arrangement were come to. Plaintiffs obtained an injunction restraining him from interfering with the wharf. When the matter came on it was, by consent, turned into a motion for decree, and the decree was that the defendant do execute to plaintiffs a proper lease of the wharf at a yearly rental named, and it was referred to the Master in Equity to draw up any terms the parties could not agree upon. Counsel urged that the lease had been made out by the Government, and it only remained for Mr. Jeanneret to take it up.

The defence was that the defendant had endeavoured, by all means in his power, to obtain the lease, but had been unable to get it from the Government. It had lately been signed by Sir Patrick Jennings before leaving for England, but defendant had been away from town, and it could not be taken up until his return. It was urged that the plaintiffs were in possession of the wharf and had suffered no delay or inconvenience whatever. On the other hand, they had refused to pay defendant any rent in respect of the wharf, and the Government, upon an application by defendant, upon his return to town the previous day, declined to give up the lease until rent due to them was paid.

His Honor said he really could not see what the parties were differing about. It appeared to be merely a question of costs.

Mr. Walker said there appeared to be friction between the two parties, and both insisted on their legal rights.

Mr. Simpson said that the company owed rent to the defendant and defendant owed rent to the Government; could not the company pay it at once to the Government? The rent was the same between both parties, so that the defendant made nothing out of the matter.

Finally, it was arranged that the defendant should take up the original lease within 10 days, the sub-lease to be executed and take effect concurrently, when certain arrears under it were to be paid to defendant. The attachment was to stand as refused upon this being carried out, and the defendant to pay the costs of the day.

E. H. COLE V. GREENLAND AND HOWES.

Mr. Singel appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. H. Manning for the defendant Greenland, and Mr. Barton for the defendant Howes.

Mr. Singel said the plaintiff had obtained an injunction against the defendants to restrain the use of certain promissory notes for a large amount, which, as he alleged, were being fraudulently used. Three days afterwards the plaintiff executed a deed of assignment, but before it could be completed the holder of one of the notes that had got into circulation obtained a rule nisi against plaintiff, who was now in the position of having transferred his property to trustees, but before completion had a rule against him for the compulsory sequestration of his estate. That would not come on until the 24th instant. He asked that the trustees and the official assignee should be made co-plaintiffs in the case, and then, whichever way it went, the defendants would have a substantial plaintiff before them. He applied for an adjournment for a week, and asked that in the meantime the injunction should be continued.

Mr. H. Manning and Mr. Barton consented, and his Honor granted the application.

SHEEDY V. SLATTERY.

Mr. H. Manning moved to make an entry on default of appearance for defendant. Granted.

RE TRUST OF EDWARD HORDERN'S WILL.

Mr. G. Knox applied for certain directions in the administration of the will of the late Edward Hordern. The difficulty, he said, arose under peculiar circumstances. By the will, the incomes from certain properties were to be allowed to the children; and, whilst under age, the trustees had allowed to their mother, their guardian, a sum of £3 per week each. One daughter, Cecilia Matilda, who was not yet in her seventeenth year, was married last November to Frank M'Elhone, who was also a minor, being under the age of 21 years. The young wife complained to her trustees that, her husband being merely a mercantile clerk at a salary of £75 per annum, she was not, even with the assistance of the £3 which still came to her, kept in the style she had been used to before marriage, and asked that the allowance might be considerably increased. Counsel pointed out that the trustees recognised there were difficulties in the way. Although the marriage was not opposed, it certainly was not made with the consent of the mother, the guardian. The more difficult question, however, was, to whom was the money to be paid? The mother was still the guardian, but the wife was under the control of her husband. The wife, being an infant, could not give a proper receipt for the allowance, neither could her husband, as he was in the same position. The authorities on the point were very doubtful as to whether marriage had the effect of emancipating a female infant. If the mother were still the guardian, the payment would have to be to her. If she were not the guardian, did the Court think the husband should have the money, or should it be paid to the young lady herself?

Mr. Street, on behalf of Mrs. M'Elhone, asked that the whole of the sum of £540 per annum, which was received as income from the estate she would be entitled to when she came of age, should be paid over to her. Her present income was not sufficient even for a bare competence, and her husband was unable to help her in any material way. Upon gaining her majority she would come into a bequest of £2000, and also into certain real property, and thus she could not now live so economically as she otherwise might do. For four years there had been an accumulation from her estate over and above the money paid to her, and the sum he asked for would not be more than sufficient to enable her to keep her home suitably.

Mr. Knox said that the trustees had no feeling in the matter. They were quite indifferent as to what should be paid to the young lady, and only desired to do what was right.

His Honor wished to know whether he was asked that this "boy and girl" should be allowed to begin life with the whole of their income at their command. If they did that now, what would they want hereafter?

Mr. Knox said that the trustees felt the case was a delicate one. They could have acted upon their own responsibility and discretion, but thought it would be better to all parties that the Court should give an opinion on the matter.

Mr. Street argued at length that the mother was still the guardian, and that any increased payment could be made to her.

Mr. Knox intimated that the trustees would be quite contented to take the receipt of the mother in the matter.

His Honor said that two questions arose, the first being whether the trustees would be right in giving the young lady an increased allowance, and the second to whom this increased allowance should be paid. He thought the proper person was the mother, as guardian. His impression of the law—although the law was not clear—was that the mother, under a clause such as was in the will, was the guardian of a child during infancy. Therefore, the guardianship continued after marriage. But it was necessary that it should do so in a case like this, because some one must give a receipt. The trustees might withhold all money because they could not get a legal discharge, as neither the lady nor her husband seemed competent to give this. The mother appeared the only person competent in this case to give a good receipt, and therefore he should appoint that the money be paid to her, although the case was one for opinion and advice only, and not for an absolute order. Then, as to the amount which should be granted as an allowance, he was going to say something less than he was about to say before, Mr. Street reminded him that there had been an accumulation. He was not going to allow this boy and girl to have the whole of their income. It would probably be the ruin of the boy. If he had an income of £540 per annum he would most likely find it a bore to continue to be a merchant's clerk, and possibly it would send him to the dogs altogether. They could live on a great deal less if they lived economically; and it was as well they should live economically, especially at first, until other claims came upon them. The case was one, as far as he could learn, of a girl having married without the consent of her mother, who was the guardian. He was not even able to ascertain from counsel whether the mother was at the wedding, and it looked very much like a runaway affair. He did not know how they got married in the absence of their respective guardians. One of them must have sworn they were of age. There might possibly have been some false declaration; and if they chose to do this they must not expect to lie completely on a bed of roses so far as money was concerned. At any rate he would not give his sanction to it. This was his advice; he gave it as a Judge and as a father, and thought he was right. He considered he was going a long way in what he was about to do. He had thought of £5 per week, but he was going to make it £6; and this was to be paid to the mother of the girl. The costs in the case would be out of the accumulated fund.

INSOLVENCY COURT.—Friday.

(Before the Chief Commissioner.)

SINGLE MEETINGS.

Re D. R. Hammond, a single meeting. The insolvent did not amend his schedule or statement. Three debts were proved, and the report of the official assignee read. No directions were given by creditors, but his Honor ordered that the assets be collected and distributed according to law.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT COURT.—Thursday.

(Before Mr. District Court Judge Wilkinson.)

IVEY V. THE LION INSURANCE COMPANY, LIMITED.

This was a claim for £200, due under a fire policy given by the defendant company. The plaintiff was Paul B. Ivey, of Sydney, commission agent. The case for the plaintiff was that an insurance against fire was effected by one Richard Fisher with the defendant company, the policy being for £250, and covering certain machinery and the stock-in-trade of a produce merchant's business. The policy was assigned to the plaintiff, who duly gave notice of the assignment, and did all that was necessary to validate his interest in the insurance. The premises and the property insured were destroyed by fire, but the defendants did not pay the amount due under the policy, and the plaintiff now sued for its recovery. The defence was that the plaintiff had not given notice of the assignment as alleged, that the defendant had not furnished particulars of damage by the fire, and that the defendant had made a declaration to another office in which he was insured that he had no other insurances, and that that office had paid him in full. Verdict for the defendants.

EDWARDS V. THE COMMISSIONER OF RAILWAYS.

His Honor gave judgment on an application for a new trial in an action for damages against the Government. The new trial was refused.

GREEN V. COLLINS.

This was a claim by James Martin Green against John Thos. Collins, for recovery of £30 for illegal detention of some household furniture and effects. Mr. H. E. Cohen, instructed by Mr. G. M. Dunn, appeared for the plaintiff. Mr. T. H. Hellyer, for Mr. R. H. Levien, for the defence. There had been some former proceedings against the defendant by one Burman, a tenant of his, for excessive distress, and on the case going in favour of defendant, he proceeded to levy on certain goods, among which was the property claimed by the present plaintiff, forming the subject of this action. The case for the defendant was that on the verdict in the former action being given in his favour, an execution was issued for the amount of taxed costs, and on the goods being claimed by the present plaintiff the bailiff was withdrawn, but the defendant afterwards levied on the same goods for rent of the premises in which those goods were housed, and sold in the ordinary way. Some days after the sale the defendant received a demand for the goods, which at that time were not in his possession. His Honor reserved judgment.

METROPOLITAN QUARTER SESSIONS.—Friday.

APPEAL CASE.

Thomas Swan appealed against a conviction by Mr. Marsh, S.M., whereby he had been ordered to be imprisoned for three months upon a charge of having assaulted Sophia Swan. Mr. Tarleton, instructed by Mr. T. C. Richards, appeared in support of the appeal. The chief ground of appeal was that the sentence was excessive. After having heard the facts of the case his Honor held that the sentence was excessive, but stated that he could not quash the conviction. He decided, however, to reduce the sentence, and ordered the appellant to be imprisoned till the rising of the Court.

Further Rules for the admission of Barristers (under 11 Victoria, No. 57, and 39 Victoria, No. 32). New South Wales, to wit. Wednesday, March 2, 1887.

Whereas, by certain rules prepared on the fourteenth day of December, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven, by the then Chief Justice and the Judges of the Supreme Court and the Attorney-General for the time, and two barristers elected in pursuance of the Act of the eleventh year of her Majesty's reign, numbered fifty-seven, as members of a board for the approval of properly qualified persons to be barristers of the Supreme Court of New South Wales, it was amongst other things ordered by the sixteenth rule as follows:—

"The final examination in law of any candidate shall not be permitted until he shall have been a student at law within the meaning of the preceding rules for at least one year, and during the period between the admission of a candidate as a student at law and his admission to the Bar, such candidate shall pursue no business or occupation otherwise than in the way of study and preparation for the Bar, or in the nature of a literary pursuit."

And whereas it is deemed fitting for the purpose of securing better preparation for the Bar in accordance with the practice for admission to the Bar in other parts of her Majesty's dominions, that such period of law studentship should be extended as herein provided in respect of all persons who shall hereafter be admitted as students at law.

Now, therefore, we, the Honorable Frederick Matthew Darley, Chief Justice, and Peter Faucett, William Montagu Manning, and Joseph George Long Innes, Judges of the Supreme Court, with the Honorable William John Foster, Attorney-General, and Henry Emanuel Cohen, one of the barristers elected according to the said Act in the month of December last, do hereby make and promulgate the following rules:—

1. From and after the thirty-first day of December, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven, no candidate not admitted as a student at law before that date (save as hereinafter provided) shall be admitted to the Bar of the Supreme Court of the colony, unless he shall have been for three years an admitted law student within the above recited rule, and shall have complied with the requirements of that rule during the whole of such extended period, and such rule shall in all respects be read as if the words, "for at least three years," were inserted therein in lieu of the words, "at least one year."

2. Any undergraduate of the University of Sydney, or of any other University recognised by it, who shall have passed two annual examinations at such University, may be admitted as a law student, and if such student shall thereafter in due course become a graduate of such University, he shall be entitled to apply for admission to the Bar at the expiration of two years from his admission as law student, and while continuing at such University for the last year of his course as an undergraduate he shall be deemed to be engaged in a literary pursuit within the meaning of the said recited rule.

3. Any graduate of any such University who shall be admitted as a law student shall be entitled to apply for admission to the Bar after the expiration of two years from his admission as law student.

ALLEGED BREACH OF THE INSOLVENCY ACT.

At the Central Police Court on Thursday, before Mr. Johnson, S.M., George Wilmott, aged about 50 years, was charged with a breach of the Insolvency Act. The information against him was laid by the Commercial Banking Company of Sydney, and it ran as follows:—"That the accused, who was employed in the Daily Gazette newspaper office, his estate being duly adjudged to be sequestrated as insolvent by virtue of the law relating to estates of insolvent persons in New South Wales, did on or about the 28th day of May, 1886, fraudulently contract a debt to the Commercial Banking Company of Sydney by carrying on at the same time four banking accounts with different banks in different names, and operating upon them interchangeably by means of cheques signed by him in such different names, and written in handwriting of dissimilar character, the said banking account being carried on—one account with the Commercial Banking Company of Sydney, Bathurst-street branch, under the name of Brown and Stevens; a second account with the Australian Joint Stock Bank, Haymarket branch, under the name of George Lee; a third account with the London Chartered Bank of Australia, under the name of William Grant; and a fourth account with the Bank of New Zealand, George-street branch, under the name of Westfall, Wilmott, and Co.; contrary to 5 Victoria No. 7, section 73."

The prosecution was conducted by Mr. Rogers, instructed by Messrs. Cape and Kent. Dr. G. J. Sly appeared for the defence.

Senior-constable Power deposed to having arrested the accused at his residence, in Wallace-street, Balmain; he was silent at first, but then remarked, "If I get out of this I'll make it warm for them."

Allan A. Rich, an Insolvency clerk, produced the order nisi and the order absolute.

Robert Alexander Warden stated that during 1885 and 1886 he managed a branch of the Commercial Bank, in Bathurst-street; in April, 1886, an account was opened with him in the name of Brown and Stevens, and the prisoner signed the signature specimen book, saying that his name was George Wilmott, and that he traded as Brown and Stevens; he opened the account with a cheque signed George Lee, on the Bank of Australasia; other cheques were paid in, which Wilmott was allowed to operate on; between April 8, 1886, and May 29, £14,830 11s. 9d. was lodged to credit of Brown and Stevens, a large portion of which consisted of cheques drawn by Grant, George Lee, Westfall, Willmott, and Co. The signatures on some other cheques which were produced did not appear to be in the same handwriting; they seemed to be disguised; at the present time prisoner owed the bank £1570 15s.; the witness was not aware that the cheques were signed by prisoner in another name.

In cross-examination by Dr. Sly, witness stated that the prisoner's cheques, during the tenure of his account, were honoured to the amount of £13,000; cheques paid in by him, and drawn by Shaw, Nichol, Jarrett and Co., and Levick and Duesbury were also met; a writ was issued for the recovery of £1500 in July, and a verdict was obtained in September last; had all the cheques presented up to May 29 been met there would have been no deficiency; did not recollect the prisoner having signed and cashed a cheque at the bank before.

H. E. Maxted, deposition clerk in Insolvency, produced certain documents.

Alexander Ogilvie Grant, of Maitland, who was in May and in part of last June manager of the Bathurst-street branch of the Commercial Banking Company, identified certain cheques which had been paid in by the prisoner. He had seen cheques of Westfall, Willmott, and Co., Grant, Lee, and Brown and Stevens, and their signatures did not appear to have been in the same handwriting.

By Dr. Sly: Prisoner's indebtedness was caused by the payment of cheques drawn by him (the prisoner), which the bank was not necessarily bound to pay. Cheques by Grant and Lee had been dishonoured before May 29, and he knew that prisoner was transacting business with four other banks up till then.

James M'Gibbon, the manager of the Bank of Australasia, Sussex-street branch, recognised the prisoner as a person whom he had known as George Lee, who had an account, in connection with which several conversations occurred. He had seen him sign "George Lee." He opened his account during January, 1886, and dealt until June 9th. During that interval about £34,184 was paid in to the accused's credit; on April 29 a cheque signed Grant was returned to him (witness), and in reply to a question the prisoner said that that individual was a paper-bag maker, residing at Surry Hills, and doing a good business.

By Dr. Sly: Was unaware that the prisoner was a paper-bag maker, and had found him straight and fair in all transactions.

Richard Augustus Norris, managing the A. J. S. Bank, Haymarket branch, stated that on May 14 the prisoner opened an account in the name of George Lee, and described himself as a broker; his deposit was small, but he explained that he had just closed an account at the Bank of Australasia, on account of that bank being inconvenient for his business; he intimated that he would have large cheques passing through of undoubted value, and at the same time requested that witness might not be over-particular in the event of his cheques coming in for payment before other cheques which he paid in had been cleared; on the following day he paid in a cheque for £135, and afterwards went on to bank large sums by cheques signed by Westfall, Willmott, and Co., Grant, and Brown and Stevens; the banking account only lasted about two weeks, as witness saw that the cheques which prisoner drew on him came from the banks on which the cheques he paid in were drawn, and he therefore dishonoured them, although at the time he held cheques in the accused's favour, aggregating £1400 or £1500, not collected.

By Dr. Sly: His bank lost nothing by the prisoner; had told Mr. Dibbs, the general manager of the Commercial Banking Company, that he suspected that something was wrong.

William Charles Hill, manager of the Bathurst-street branch of the Bank of New South Wales, gave evidence as to the accused having opened an account in the name of Brown and Stevens, and that he drew cheques in that name, and authorised witness to draw against them; business continued from March, 1885, to April, 1886, the majority of the cheques which were paid in being drawn by Westfall, Wilmott, and Co., Lee, and Grant respectively; having suspicions, he questioned the prisoner, who told him that Lee was a paper-bag maker, that Grant was a broker, and that Westfall, Wilmott, and Co. were shopkeepers, residing at Balmain; prisoner closed his account on or about April 29, 1886.

By Dr. Sly: The bank lost nothing through the prisoner, nor were any of his cheques dishonoured, nor were they upon the Commercial Banking Company; cheques drawn by G. Lee or by W. Grant were honoured after having been paid in to the prisoner's credit.

James Lindsay Valentine, manager of the Oxford-street branch, London Chartered Bank, deposed that the prisoner banked under the name of William Grant, and certain handwriting upon deposit slips (produced) was like his penmanship; the slips and certain cheques produced represented transactions with the bank; most of the cheques were drawn by Westfall, Wilmott, and Co., George Lee, and Brown and Stevens respectively; he was told by Willmott that Lee was a friend of his, and that he was a paper bag maker in a large way of business.

By Dr. Sly: Prisoner's account ran from March 20, 1885, until May, 1886, but some of his cheques were dishonoured at the end of May without notice; the prisoner knew that they would not be honoured, because he had overrun a guarantee for £200; during the currency of the account cheques for more than £43,000 were paid in, drawn by W. Grant.

The case at this stage was adjourned until Friday. Dr. Sly asked for a reduction in the amount of bail, on the ground that the prisoner was a poor man, who earned but £2 or £3 per week as a canvasser and collector for a newspaper.

Mr. Johnson declined to accede to the request.

This case was resumed and concluded at the Central Police Court yesterday, before Mr. Johnson, S.M.

Wm. Charles Hill, manager of the Bank of New South Wales, recalled, stated that he knew the prisoner under the name of Stephens; all cheques were to be signed in the names of Brown and Stephens; produced book with the signature of Stephens, which he saw prisoner sign.

Isaac Chapman, manager of George-street branch, Bank of New Zealand, produced deposit slips and account of transactions of Messrs. Westfall, Wilmott, and Co. Knew the accused under that name, and he used to pay in and draw cheques in that name; all the signatures on the documents were in the handwriting of accused; his account amounted to £46,120; a large part of that amount was made up of cheques drawn in the names George Lee, Brown and Stephens, and William Grant.

By Dr. Sly: The Bank of New Zealand had not lost anything by the accused; all the cheques paid in under various names were eventually paid; accused ceased to deal at the bank on the 4th June, 1886; the bank was never informed that the different firms were really the same person; always found accused straightforward and honest in his transactions with the bank; he first opened the account on the 8th April, 1885, and during the time it was open passed about £46,000 in cheques through the bank.

Alex. V. Grant, of the Commercial Bank, recalled, deposed that the cheques and deposit slips produced constituted all the transactions accused had at his bank; had it not been for the large cheques paid in, the accused would not have been allowed to overdraw to the extent he did.

By Dr. Sly: The cheques had always been previously cashed until the last one: witness had been censured for cashing the cheques before he ascertained that they were good.

Matthew W. Hawkins, accountant, stated that he had investigated six banking accounts, embracing the four names of Brown and Stephens, George Lee, Westfall, Willmott, and Co., and William Grant; the total amount paid to account Brown and Stephens was £27,969 7s. 3d. at two banks—the Bank of New South Wales and the Commercial Bank, and that was made as follows—Bank of New South Wales £13,139 5s. 6d., Commercial Bank £14,830 11s. 9d.; of that amount £8325 1s. 6d. was represented by cheques drawn by William Grant, £9332 2s. 2d. cheques drawn by G. Lee, and £2868 13s. 3d. by cheques drawn by Westfall, Wilmott, and Co., making a total of £20,528 17s. There were paid out of the accounts by cheques in favour of William Grant, £7621 4s. 9d.; in favour of George Lee, £7782 1s.; and in favour of Westfall, Wilmott, and Co., £5444 17s., the total coming to £20,797 7s. 4d. The amount paid in to the credit of William Grant at the London Chartered Bank was £43,299 13s. 9d.; £12,590 14s. 8d. was represented by cheques of George Lee; £7621 4s. 9d. by cheques of Brown and Stephens; and £16,673 12s. 10d. by cheques of Westfall, Wilmott, and Co., making total of £36,885 12s. 3d. The cheques of William Grant, drawn in favour of other names, were—to George Lees' account, £14,214 15s. 4d.; to Brown and Stephen's account, £8328 1s. 6d.; to Westfall, Wilmot, and Co.'s account, £13,530 1s. 6d., making a total of £36,072 18s. 4d. The accounts of George Lee at the Banks of Australasia and the Australian Joint Stock Bank were as follows:—Total amount of accounts, £42,562 16s. 7d.; made up of £34,168 15s. 1d. at the Bank of Australasia and £8394 1s. 6d. at the Australian Joint Stock Bank; of that total £7732 1s. was represented by cheques drawn by Brown and Stephens; drawn by W. Grant, £14,214 15s. 4d.; drawn by Westfall, Wilmott, and Co., £17,501 8s. 11d.; making total of £39,448 5s. 3d. George Lee's cheques in favour of the other three names were:—In favour of William Grant, £12,590 14s. 8d.; in favour of Brown and Stephens, £9332 2s. 3d.; in favour of Westfall, Wilmott, and Co., £15,645 8s. 11d., making a total of £37,568 5s. 10d.; Westfall, Wilmott, and Co.'s account at the Bank of New Zealand was £46,120 12s. 6d., including the following:—Cheques of Brown and Stephens, £5444 1s. 7d.; of W. Grant, £13,530 1s. 6d.; of George Lee, £15,645 8s. 11d., making a total of £34,619 12s.; witness believed there must be more of these cheques, because some of the deposit slips did not specify the names, and some slips were missing; the cheques of Westfall, Willmott, and Co., in favour of Brown and Stephens, were £2868 13s. 3d.; in favour of W. Grant, £16,673 12s. 10d.; in favour of George Lee, £17,501 8s. 1d.: making the total of £37,043 1s.

By Dr. Sly: Could not tell what the balance at the various banks was which apparently represented genuine banking transactions; the other credit operations in the account of Brown and Stephens, besides those already mentioned, amounted to £7441 0s. 3d.; in the account of George Lee, the other credit operations amounted to £3114 11s. 4d.; in the account of Wm. Grant the other credit operations amounted to £8414 1s. 6d., and in the account, Westfall, Wilmott, and Co., they amounted to £11,501 0s. 6d.; could not say whether those transactions were genuine or not; the amount of cash paid to the various accounts was—to the account of Brown and Stephens, at the Bank of New South Wales, £1949 3s.; at the Commercial Bank, nil; to the account of Westfall, Wilmott, and Co., at the Bank of New Zealand, £973 4s. 11d.; to the account of Wm. Grant, at the London Chartered Bank, £1481 14s. 1d.; to the account of George Lee, at the Bank of Australasia, £87 8s. 11d.; at the A. J. S. Bank, nil.

Fred. Beacon Rent, solicitor, of Messrs. Cape and Rent, deposed that, as one of the solicitors for the Commercial Bank, he had these matters under his consideration; was first consulted by the bank on these matters on June 3 last; witness then consulted Mr. Rogers and other counsel; in consequence of advice given he took certain action in the Supreme Court, and issued a writ for £1500 on July 22; the trial came on on September 16, and there was no appearance of the defendant; after that execution was issued, and the defendant having removed there was great difficulty in finding him; the execution not being satisfied, he was made insolvent, and this prosecution was commenced after the examination of insolvent last Monday.

By Dr. Sly: The information possessed when the warrant was issued was not in witness's possession last June. He only assumed then that the prisoner had the four accounts. Believed the defendant had tried to settle the case with the bank.

This concluded the case for the prosecution, and Dr. Sly, on behalf of the prisoner, submitted that no prima facie case of fraud had been made out.

Mr. Johnson intimated that it was his intention to commit, and the prisoner having reserved his defence, was committed to take his trial at the Central Criminal Court, bail being granted, self in £500, and two sureties in £250 each.

Before Mr. Abbott, S.M., at the Newtown Police Court, John Ashly was charged with burglariously breaking and entering the premises of Ann Wise, John-street, Ashfield, and stealing therefrom a quantity of articles, including a clock and pocket-handkerchief. The prosecutrix stated that on the night of the 15th ultimo she locked up the house on retiring to bed, and in the morning she found a door open, and missed the articles mentioned in the charge. She identified the clock and pocket-handkerchief, which had been found in the prisoner's possession, as her property. The prisoner was committed for trial. Kathleen Dawson, alias Donohoe, was charged with larceny as a bailee of a sewing machine valued at £10 5s., the property of John Sutton. From the evidence it transpired that John Humphreys, traveller for the prosecutor, who trades as John Sutton and Co., left a sewing machine for approval with prisoner, who then resided in Margaret-street, Enmore. This was on the 9th ultimo, and Humphreys arranged to call a few days later for the first deposit of 10s. On this occasion, however, the house was empty, and he was informed that prisoner had gone to Melbourne. She was subsequently arrested in that city. The prisoner elected to be tried by a jury, and was committed for trial at the Quarter Sessions. Bail was allowed—self in £80 and one surety in £80. William James and John Frederick Brown, the former of whom is 14 years of age, and the latter only 8, were charged with stealing 15s., the property of Thomas Huntley, holder of a refreshment-room at Lady Robinson's Beach. When the prisoners were arrested on the beach by Constable Curry, James accused his younger companion of having taken the money without his connivance. Brown, on the other hand, said that James had told him to steal it, and was with him when he did so. James was sentenced to 14 days' hard labour, and Brown to imprisonment until the rising of the Court.

Mr. G. W. F. Addison, S.M., presided in the Balmain Police Court. George Perkins, insurance agent, was charged with having forged a cheque for £1 7s. 6d. in the name of William Shepherd; with having uttered a valueless cheque for £3 1s. 6d. in the name of George Priestly; with having uttered a valueless cheque for £6 15s. in the name of Robert M'Lelan; and with having also uttered a cheque for £3 3s. 6d. in the name of John Bright and Co., of Wollongong. On each charge the accused was committed for trial at the next Court of Quarter Sessions. A man named John Flint was bound over to keep the peace with his wife for 12 months. Henry Cook, for having used threatening words towards his wife, was also bound over to keep the peace.

Messrs. H. Byrnes and G. Wickham, Js.P., sat in the PARRAMATTA POLICE COURT on Thursday. John Brown and James Smith were sentenced to three months' imprisonment in Parramatta gaol for stealing a bottle of brandy from Warton's Hotel, Prospect. Messrs. H. Taylor and R. Harper, Js.P., sat yesterday. John M'Donald was charged with being on Judge Murray's premises, at Granville, with intent to commit a felony, and was sentenced to three months' imprisonment in Parramatta gaol. Archibald M'Innes was ordered to pay 15s. a week towards the support of his wife, with £1 1s. costs, and 4s. 10d. costs of Court.

MARINE BOARD.

THE EMU-WARATAH COLLISION.

Yesterday morning the Marine Board, consisting of Captains Hixson (president), Broomfield, Jenkins, Moodie, and M'Lean, gave the following decision in regard to the collision between the steamers Emu and Waratah on the 24th ultimo:—"The Board finds: 1st. That the collision was caused by the wrongful act or default of Francis Fern, the master of the Waratah, in having committed breaches of the 16th and 18th articles of the steering and sailing rules, in not keeping out of the way when he had the other steamer on his own starboard bow, and in not slacking his speed or stopping and reversing when the collision appeared inevitable. 2nd. By the default of John Duncan, master of the Emu, in having committed a breach of the 22nd article of the steering and sailing rules by porting, and, therefore, not keeping his course whilst the green light of the other steamer was in sight."

In connection with the above report the board cites Francis Fern and John Duncan to appear before them on Monday, March 7, at 2 p.m., and there and then to show cause why their certificates should not be cancelled or suspended.

In reference to this decision, the Marine Board takes the opportunity of pointing out that more than ordinary care, by going slow, strictly adhering to the rules of the road, and by starting the steamers from their respective wharfs only when clear water is ahead of them, is imperatively necessary in such crowded portions of the harbour as Sydney Cove, Darling Harbour, and other places. A partial remedy to the dangerous navigation of Sydney Cove would be brought about if the present necessity for crossing was done away with by changing the positions of the North Shore and Manly Beach and other ferries. This, however, would not altogether remedy the evil, as it would necessitate breaches of the harbour regulations, as in the case of the Manly Beach boats coming into the cove for instance. The regulations provide that steamers are bound in all cases to keep on that side of the fairway or midchannel which lies on their own starboard hand. The proper remedy for the public safety, and the one which the board trusts will soon be carried out, will be to construct a wharf at Macquarie Point for the use of the Manly Beach and North Shore ferries, and thus do away with the necessity for these large boats to come into the narrow waters of Sydney Cove at all.

THE UNEMPLOYED.

Matters in connection with the "unemployed" agitation have to a considerable extent quietened down during the past two days, although the number of applicants for relief has not diminished to any great degree. In pursuance of a Governmental promise to the effect that pressing and genuine cases of distress, more particularly among married men, should receive prompt remedy, the Benevolent Asylum authorities instituted close inquiry into a large number of applications. The result was that 20 married men, who had been receiving support from that institution, were granted special references to the Immigration Depot. These signed their names, and undertook to appear yesterday morning at 9 o'clock for the purpose of proceeding to work, but during the day only six of the number had thought it worth their while to put in an appearance. It is somewhat significant, by the way, that each of the twenty has a wife, and they had from three to eight children to support, so that the facts of the incident will speak for themselves. The list of places at which Government relief has of late been afforded to those lacking employment by means of providing piecework at ground-clearing, &c., is as follows:—Rookwood, Gordon, Field of Mars, the National Park, Waterfall, Kurnel (operations finished this week), University grounds, the Prince Alfred Hospital grounds, Little Bay Coast Hospital grounds, and Newington Benevolent Asylum for Females grounds (work also finished there). Since March last—just twelve months ago—between £40,000 and £50,000, speaking in round numbers, have been expended in connection with these works. In addition to this form of self-recouping outlay, free railway passes have been issued to an extremely large extent to those who were in search of work in various parts of the colony. Men have also been sent to Menindie Lakes, Manly, Harbord, and elsewhere, in connection with services under the Public Works Department. The Field of Mars and Kurnel gangs of workmen have been under the official head supervision of Mr. J. W. Deering, of the Works Department.

DEPUTATIONS.

THE PHARMACEUTICAL SOCIETY OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

Yesterday morning a deputation of members of the Pharmaceutical Society of New South Wales was introduced to the Minister for Public Instruction, the Hon. James Inglis, by Mr. Sydney Burdekin, M.L.A. The deputation consisted of Messrs. H. W. Sadler, James Mayne, Edwin Quayle (lecturer and conductor of the Laboratory), and Mr. W. T. Pinhey, J.P., secretary. The object of the interviewers was to lay before the Government various claims for recognition which, it was contended, the society had grounds for having put forward.

Mr. PINHEY explained that the gentlemen who were present represented that which, they fully contended, was an educational body. The society had always been, and it still was, such. He submitted a series of arguments, as follow:—1. The society had been in existence nearly 11 years, and it had hitherto been entirely self-supporting. 2. From its inception, with the exception of a short period only, it had carried on the education of pharmacy students. 3. It had established a library of some 500 volumes of standard scientific and educational works, a materia medica museum, containing upwards of 600 specimens, and a chemical and pharmaceutical laboratory wherein practical instruction is regularly given. 4. It had spent upwards of £2,000 on the library, museum, and laboratory, payment of lecturers, and general working expenses. 5. It had also conducted examinations under the Board of Pharmacy for certificates under the Sale and Use of Poisons Act, 40th Vic., No. 9; and although half the examination fees had been paid to the society, such moiety had not sufficed to pay the attendant expenses. 6. Despite the expenditure of a considerable sum annually for fitting students for examination, the entire fees for certificates under the Act referred to go to the Government; some £540 having been thus far paid in that way. 7. The society had now fully established a School of Pharmacy, under the direction of Mr. Edwin Quayle, F.C.S., of the Sydney University, assisted by Mr. H. A. B. Leipner, F.C.S., at which the annual average attendance last year was 28. 8. In consequence of the expenses of thus carrying on a purely educational work, the funds were no longer large enough to keep pace with the increasing number of students, and greater facilities were demanded—the more especially since it was becoming necessary to hold the lecture and practical classes more frequently, in consequence of the standard having been assimilated with that of Great Britain. 9. A great effort was now being put forward by the kindred societies in the different colonies to so assimilate their methods of teaching and standard of attainments as to permit of an interchange of certificates and diplomas, so that it was all the more necessary for the society in this colony to afford help to its students in other colonies, the Pharmaceutical Society in Victoria receiving subsidy of £1000 per annum. 10. The Royal Society and the Linnean Society in this colony had for some time past been granted £1 for every £2 subscribed by the members; and in addition, a sum of £12,000 was annually granted for the purpose of subsidising various educational institutions in the same ratio. 11. The society numbered about 400 members and 50 associates and apprentices. It was also hoped that the Ministry would facilitate the passing of its Acts of Incorporation, which Act had been favourably reported upon by the committee appointed to take evidence in the last Parliament.

It was further mentioned that all lectures were delivered free of cost.

Mr. INGLIS remarked that there was a good old maxim that "nothing for nothing is not much valued."

A member of the deputation replied that the examinations were kept up to a very high standard, and the society had not been desirous that any intending student, no matter what might be his financial position, should be able to say that he was not rich enough to acquire sufficient knowledge to pass them.

Mr. INGLIS questioned whether the society was not with all due intent to act for the best, infringing an extremely sound principle. They admitted the value of the education which was given—and so did anybody who took the trouble to consider—and yet they did not scruple to apply for assistance to a Government at a time when an almost unprecedented financial depression existed, without in any way having asked the students to pay for a most valuable boon, a quid pro quo. It seemed to him to be a rather important point whether the society were not possibly acting with a somewhat unwise liberality. A thing that was worth having was surely worth paying for. He had very carefully read over the whole of the papers in connection with the subject, also the draft bill which it was proposed to deal with, and likewise the Poisons Act, so that he was thoroughly acquainted with the subject. Still, while he thought that the society was one which was likely to do an immense amount of public good, and having a very great sympathy with its objects, he would not like to pledge himself to any definite promise as to a subsidy this year without consulting the Cabinet beforehand. He recognised to the fullest the analogy which was sought to be drawn with regard to the Royal Society and the Linnean Society, both of which really, in some aspects of their work, were not so practical as the Pharmaceutical Society. Still, the Government were forced to look with extreme care and vigilance upon any attempt to increase the existing burdens of the State. If he could be permitted to make a personal allusion, he might remark that during his student days he had studied chemistry, and that for two years he chanced to be a chemistry University gold-medallist in Glasgow. He had also at one period of his colonial experiences kept a chemist's shop in New Zealand, so that the deputation would admit that he took an active and a keen personal interest in the welfare and progress of the important society which they represented.

Mr. PINHEY said that they had struggled against wind and tide for many years, but now they found themselves utterly unable to go on. Their income from all sources would not amount to, say, more than £230 per annum, so that, at the outside, the aid which it was sought to obtain from Government would not exceed probably £100 or £150 a-year. Possibly the Government might place a sum on the supplementary estimates.

Mr. INGLIS remarked that the Estimates-in-chief had been already closed, and the Government had set their faces against supplementary estimates, for experience had taught that they had been made a vehicle for putting most exorbitant, marvellous, and unjust—certainly unauthorised—burdens upon the people, expenses which the colony ought never to have been called upon to bear. (Mr. Burdekin: "Hear, hear.") He, however, undertook to not lose sight of the important request which had been made.

Mr. PINHEY pointed out that fees from the Poisons Act in Melbourne reverted to the Pharmaceutical Board, whereas in this colony they were paid into and were retained by the Treasury.

LAND AT ROCKDALE.

A deputation waited on the Hon. the Minister for Public Instruction (Mr. J. Inglis) yesterday morning, to set forth certain matters relating to a resumption of land in Rockdale township. The land referred to is 120 feet by 151 feet, and is part of the Rockdale Estate, at Rockdale, and is close to the Wesleyan Church, and had been chosen as the site for the parsonage. The land was resumed for the purposes of a Public school, and the Government valuation is £4 per foot, with compensation for forced resumption. The deputation stated substantially that, with the Government compensation for resumption, the trustees could not purchase a similar site for a parsonage.

The deputation was introduced by Mr. J. H. Carruthers, M.L.A., and consisted of the Rev. R. Sellors (chairman of the district), Rev. J. Parker (minister at Rockdale), and Messrs. E. Hogben (Mayor of Kogarah), J. Bowmer, and E. Godfrey.

Mr. CARRUTHERS, in introducing the deputation, explained that the deputation wished to direct his attention to their case, with a view of seeing what could be done to make the resumption one of less hardship. He could quite understand the difficult position in which a clerical body was placed in. They had no desire in this case to seek redress in the law courts. They did not consider this valuation quite fair, and they claimed that they could not purchase land answering to their purposes for erecting a parsonage elsewhere for such a sum as was offered them by the Government.

The Rev. Mr. SELLORS assured the Minister that the valuation of the land involved them in a loss. Of course, if this land had been granted originally by the Crown, they would feel some hesitancy in asking for a higher valuation. If the Government were to obtain land in some other part of Rockdale, they would prefer to keep this land. They understood that the valuation (£4 per foot) was low rather than otherwise. Land in the neighbourhood had been sold at £6 per foot.

The other gentlemen also made some remarks on the subject, after which

Mr. INGLIS replied that, while he was sure no case could be more nicely put than theirs, or more eloquently placed before him, he thought it was one of these unfortunate cases which undoubtedly did occur. It was absolutely necessary for the purposes of the department, seeing the large expenditure to which the department had gone, that this land should be taken. Of course under the law as it stood there was a clear course for all contesting parties. The advice he had received tended to shew that in the opinion of very reputable and very experienced advisers it was not altogether such a ridiculous offer. Now, under the circumstances, he was very sorry indeed to say that he could not altogether agree with the high estimate put on the value of the land. But he was very anxious to meet them, so he would give instructions for a re-valuation, and for such additional information as he could possibly obtain. When they considered the fact that they were acquiring land under the law, and considered the comparative price of the land, and the character and skill of the valuators, he thought they would see that the Government had a pretty strong case. He would, however, do what he could and communicate the result of his inquiries to Mr. Carruthers.

INCREASED TRAM ACCOMMODATION FOR BOTANY.

Yesterday morning a deputation, consisting of Messrs. Schey and Farnell, Ms.L.A., F. Smith, J. Martin, Frost, and Macfadgery, interviewed the Minister for Works (Hon. John Sutherland) on the subject of providing increased tramway accommodation and cheaper fares for the residents of the Botany district. The speakers urged that increased facilities in journeying to and fro between Botany and the metropolis were urgently needed, as the inhabitants were greatly inconvenienced by the inadequacy of the present hourly service to meet the growing necessities of Botany and Waterloo. It was also pointed out that the fares at the present time were much too high for the means of the working population, and one speaker stated that the working men could not afford to pay a shilling per day to ride to Sydney and return to Botany again. He thought that if the fares were reduced to about 2s. per week, and tickets were issued to the working men by means of which they could ride on certain trams a large increase in population would take place in the suburbs named. A working men's tram was urgently needed in the morning and evening, so that those who could not afford to pay the present rates could be conveyed to and fro at a cheaper rate. Many hundreds of allotments had been purchased by working men in the district, but they had been prevented from building on them and residing in the suburbs on account of the high fares. More trams were also required. Mr. Smith said the Botany people only had an hourly tram service at the present time, and that was not sufficient for their requirements. On holidays the same state of things prevailed. It was very hard that the residents could not get better accommodation. He had been the means of attracting a large number of people to Botany, and the deficient tram service was sometimes a great loss to him. He would also like to direct the attention of the Minister to another matter which pressed heavily upon him. He employed or chartered a great number of trams during the year for picnic parties. He guaranteed the department a load all the way through from Sydney, and yet, although the full complement of passengers which the trams would carry would only bring in £0, he was charged £2 5s. above that rate. He thought that was an injustice, and he believed his case had no parallel anywhere else. There was not enough tram accommodation on holidays or at other times, and that was a great drawback as well as a loss to Botany. He urged the Minister to adopt a 20 minutes' time-table on the Botany line. Another speaker pointed out that hundreds of working men would live at Botany if increased facilities were afforded to them in the matter of tramway communication.

Mr. SUTHERLAND said he would have no objection to allow workmen to travel for a time at a reduced rate by two of the early trams from Botany to Sydney and vice versa. He would do this, to see whether working men wished to live at Botany. He also thought it would be wise to allow anyone to travel by those trams. As to increased tram accommodation, the fact was the department was short of motive power, and, therefore, they were crippled. They were losing an immense amount of money through not supplying the other districts that would pay with increased accommodation. He was taking steps to get new motors as soon as possible, but they could not be obtained in a day, as the deputation well knew. He knew what was wanted, and he knew what should be done. He also knew that very few roads were paying now, because they had not the motive power to supply to the several districts. Their fares were the same as those charged on the English lines, but the expenses of working in the colony were much greater. However, he would be glad to see what could be done in the way of meeting the requirements of the people. He had thought of reducing the fares on some of the sections to a penny instead of twopence, to see what effect it would have upon the district and to see whether the working men would settle at Botany. That reduction, if brought into force, would apply to the first two trams in the morning from each place. The alteration in the fares would not take place until the beginning of next month. He did not intend that the department should lose by the alteration. He believed that there would be an increase in the number of passengers travelling to and fro, and that would make up for any loss that might occur at first; but, until more motors were obtained, the tram service would never pay. He would make an effort to provide better accommodation for the public. He thought it was very unfair that Mr. Smith should have to pay 25 per cent. over the usual charge for trams for picnic parties.

OPENING OF THE SCHOOL OF ARTS, KOGARAH.

The School of Arts at Kogarah was formally opened by the Hon. James Inglis (Minister for Public Instruction) last evening, in the presence of a large number of the residents. Among those present were—Mr. J. H. Carruthers, M.L.A. (president), Messrs. Hogben (Mayor of Kogarah) and Vogel (vice-presidents), and Dr. Lamrock, Dr. Read, Mr. S. Fullford, J.P., and Messrs. Balcombe, Biden, M'Lean, South, Lippmann (hon. secretary), Davies (committee); Mr. Henson, M.L.A., Aldermen Treacey, English, Patrick, and Messrs. Chilcott, Bown, P. Moore, O. N. Macdonnell, P. A. Polin, J.P., and others. The President, in introducing the Minister of Public Instruction, referred to the large benefits which the residents of Kogarah and neighbourhood would derive from the establishment of a School of Arts, and stated that the cost of the building was £1500, and the ground £440, which, including interest, amounted to a sum of about £2000. Against that the committee had raised the sum of £900, and the institution was therefore a little over £1000 in debt, which ought to be extinguished by the residents in a comparatively short time.

Mr. INGLIS, who was received with applause, expressed his gratification at being able to give his inaugural address since taking office in that handsome and commodious building. He referred to schools of arts in the old country and kindred institutions in many lands. He also referred to some early experience of his own in mechanics' institutes. Adopting the graver strain, he said it was always well to define the objects of any institution. There was no doubt that, apart from the ordinary and obvious objects of the School of Arts, it should, if rightly utilised, be the centre of the intellectual life of the district in which it was established. He was glad to see from the programme that the social side was not forgotten—(hear, hear)—and, perhaps, the most valuable use of all in such an institution was that it was the centre around which the young might be attracted for their moral, material, and social development. He suggested that scientific lectures might be delivered in the building, and if the services of eloquent lecturers were obtained the result could not but be a great benefit to those who attended. (Applause.)

A programme of music was then performed to the satisfaction of the audience, and the commemorative ceremony was brought to a conclusion by a dance.

ZOOLOGICAL SOCIETY.

A meeting of the council of the Zoological Society of New South Wales was held within the society's grounds, Moore Park, yesterday afternoon. The chair was occupied by Mr. Walter Bradley, and there were also present Messrs. W. Beaumont, James Hill, John Keep, Charles Moore, C. C. Skarratt, and Dr. Dansey.

The bankers' pass book showed a debit balance of £1841 12s. 9d. Unpresented cheques to the amount of £96 18s. 4d. being current, the actual debit balance was shown to be £1938 11s. 1d.

The Secretary reported that the receipts from the gates for the four weeks ended 3rd March amounted to £105 3s., representing the admission of 4885 visitors to the Gardens, 3527 being adults, and 1358 children. The above numbers were exclusive of members and their friends. The receipts from the elephant amounted to £5 15s. 9d., and from the ponies and donkeys to £2 19s. 6d., bringing the total receipts for the four weeks up to £113 18s. 3d. The Gardens were also visited by 2478 Public school children, accompanied by 67 teachers: total, 2545 persons. He further reported that the elephant house was finished and was now ready for the reception of Jumbo. The wet weather had kept the gardeners fully occupied in keeping down the weeds and mowing the lawns, and the carpenter had been occupied in many little alterations and repairs. The most noteworthy donation received during the month had been a gazelle, which was presented to the society by the proprietors of Fryor's Circus, through their agent Mr. Willison. A species of viverva had also been acquired by purchase. A civet cat had also been purchased.

The following donations were reported:—Carpet snake, presented by Mr. C. H. Fitzhardinge, Dubbo; a gazelle, presented by Mr. Willison, agent for Fryer's Circus; 4 young kingfishers, presented by Mr. Albert James, Sherwood; two white swans, presented by the Government of New South Wales.

The subject of the proposed opening of the Gardens on Sundays was again brought forward, and after being briefly discussed was further postponed.

Another matter brought under the notice of the meeting was the financial condition of the society. Bearing upon this subject Mr. Moore moved, and Mr. Beaumont seconded,—"That a deputation, consisting of Messrs. W. Bradley, J. Keep, C. C. Skarratt, and J. Hill, wait upon the Hon. the Colonial Secretary to explain to him the position of the society, and to ask him to place a sum of money upon the estimates for the current year." Mr. Bradley undertook to interview the Principal Under-Secretary, Mr. Critchett Walker, regarding the day and hour upon which the deputation would be received.

Towards the close of the meeting, the Mayor (Mr. A. J. Riley, M.L.A.) arrived in his official capacity at the Gardens. His Worship was accompanied by Aldermen Withers, Beare, E. Jones, A. Dean, T. Playfair, Palmer, Kippax, M. Harris, Buckle, and Bryen. The company also included Mr. P. T. Riley and Mr. F. Bennett. The party were received by Mr. Walter Bradley and other members of the council of the society, who with the secretary (Mr. W. H. Catlett) and the Superintendent (Mr. W. Powell) subsequently pointed out to the guests the various objects of interest on view. Before leaving, the Mayor took the opportunity to thank the authorities and officials for the kindness extended to him and to the other visitors. He also commended the management for having done so much in a limited time, and expressed the belief that the society was doing good work from an educational point of view.

THE PRIMATE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—May I be allowed, through you, to express on Mrs. Barry's behalf her deep sense of the sympathy and kindness which have been shown her on every side, and her great regret that she has been unable personally to take leave of her many friends? Should any names have been omitted in the list of those to whom cards have been sent, she trusts that the inadvertence may be pardoned. On my own behalf, I also beg to acknowledge most warmly the great kindness which has been shown me on my own departure, and to say once more that I hope not to lose a day beyond what is absolutely necessary before returning (God willing) to my duty here.

BRITISH MEDICAL ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the New South Wales branch of the British Medical Association was held yesterday evening, in the Royal Society's rooms. The president, Dr. Knaggs, occupied the chair. There were present—Drs. Creed, Scot Skirving, Hankins, William Chisholm, Sydney Jones, Quaife, Fiachi, Chambers, Clubbe, Bowker, jun., Brady, Lovell, Kendall, Martin, Marshall, Worrall, O'Reilly, Ellis, Crago, Shewen.

The following new members were elected:—Drs. Graham, M'Culloch, Jarvie-Hood, Sydney Jones, Clay, Fischer, and O'Doherty.

The hon. treasurer, Dr. Hankins, read the financial statement, which showed a balance to the credit of the association of £207 1s. 6d.

The PRESIDENT delivered a brief address. In the course of his remarks he said:—In casting about for some subject upon which to address you to-night it has forced itself upon me that the subject of "Public Health and State Medicine" would not be inopportune, considering the present sanitary condition of this colony. I admit that I have been kindly and considerately cautioned to avoid such a threadbare subject, but it is my opinion that all the threads and tissues of this subject have not yet been sufficiently bared and exposed. In addressing a skilled audience, such as I have before me to-night, I am quite conscious that I can say nothing new to you upon this science. I have some hope, however, that I may so frame my remarks as to suggest matters of thought to the outside public and non-professional people, who have fully as great, if not a greater, interest in this subject than the medical profession, and who may possibly in some indirect way learn the substance of my remarks. I shall therefore treat it from two or more points of view, principally dwelling upon the political and the professional or medical, and endeavour to indicate the part to be taken by each in this important reform. In the home country sanitary progress has made rapid strides within the last 30 years, and various enactments and laws have been passed from time to time of such a nature as to exhibit the keen interest which those in charge of the political helm have taken, and certain measures which they have deemed it their imperative duty to convert into laws. It has often occurred to me to inquire how it is that in this colony, where our legislators have shown great acumen in improving upon and converting to our local use so many good and useful statutes of the old country, they exhibit such tardiness in following the beaten track regarding the all-absorbing subject of public health. It is true that in this colony we have some attempt at legislation, such as the various Acts regulating quarantine, the slaughtering of cattle, the licensing of slaughter-houses, the powers and duties of the commissioners of Sydney, the better drainage of lands, the prevention of nuisances in Sydney and other municipalities, the prevention of the adulteration of food and drink, regulating the sale and use of poisons, and last of all the Dairies Supervision Act of 1886. These Acts, no doubt very effectual for the purposes for which they have been intended, form but a small item in striking at the roots of the various evils which contribute towards the sacrifice of human lives by preventible diseases. One Government of this colony tacitly acknowledged the liability of the State to follow the example of the home country by introducing an admirable Public Health Bill. It is in the hope of securing the co-operation of the profession towards influencing public opinion in favour of this very desirable measure (which has been constructed upon the lines of the Public Health Act of 1875, and in which advantage has in its construction been taken of the experience of the mother country and those colonies which anticipated New South Wales in this beneficent form of legislation) that I venture to make these remarks. It is to be hoped that before long another and more successful effort will be made to make some such bill a legal enactment for this colony. And now, as to the professional or medical aspect of public health and sanitation. While Government is considering and Parliament discussing the propriety of introducing a suitable measure for the protection of lives against preventable disease, the individual members of the profession may prove a great power in educating and training public opinion on this subject; and it is much to be regretted that the majority of our profession deem it etiquette to shrink from boldly stating their opinions and convictions upon the public platform, and in the public lecture room. As an educated body it is to be regretted that we are so reticent on such matters that it is the daily business of our life to practise, and which really we should be most competent to teach. As to the etiquette of publicly advocating sanitary reform, Dr. Syrup, the well-known author of the most reliable work on medical etiquette—one by whose writings we know as one who would jealously guard the dignity of the profession against any breach of professional etiquette—says emphatically:—"It is a noble, unselfish task to promote health and obviate disease by the judicious application of hygienic science, and, by so prolonging life, to increase the productive industry, and thus, without assuming the function of moral and religious teaching, to advance the civilisation of the people," and further on, he thus discusses the duties of medical practitioners to the public: "That it is the duty of the faculty to be ready to advise the public on subjects specially appertaining to their profession, such as public hygiene, legal medicine, and medical police," as well as "their province to enlighten them with regard to drainage, water supply, ventilation, and sanitation generally, and in respect to measures for the prevention and mitigation of epidemic and contagious diseases." A duty that we should never neglect is to continually advocate, and carry into practice the proper vaccination of the members of families which we attend professionally. Thanks to an energetic head to our Health Board, several threatened dangers from a visitation of smallpox have been averted, and on one or two occasions, when it got footing within our city, it was fortunately stamped out; but there is yet a possibility that a day may come when such a happy issue from this dread visitor may not happen. Amidst the alarm and panic that then would arise, it would be impossible to properly vaccinate a fractional part of those who would then require it. It is clearly, then, our duty, as members of the medical profession, collectively and individually to use our professional and personal influence in advocating publicly, privately, and by every means in our power sanitary reform in the homes of those whom it is our daily duty to visit. One great factor in working up public and private interest in sanitary measures will be the cordial assistance that the profession will give in co-operating with the authorities as to the immediate notification of cases of infectious diseases. Much prejudice has been felt by some members of the profession against this measure, they deeming it a breach of professional confidence to give such information. As for my own part, after a calm and exhaustive consideration of all the arguments and discussions on this matter, I have come to the conclusion that the only way to arrive at statistics of preventible disease—which must be first considered before we can study the causes of all such—will be the voluntary and hearty co-operation of the profession in carrying out this movement. Ten years ago, when I was editor of the Australian Practitioner, I experienced the cordiality with which the profession of this colony responded to any movement tending to ameliorate the insanitary condition of the colony by the numerous responses that I received in reply to a series of printed questions concerning the prevalence, cause, and proposed abatement of preventable diseases in various districts. I trust the members of this branch will not wait for Parliamentary enactment, but will, without delay, institute a quarterly inquiry by printed papers as to the prevalence of preventable diseases in this colony. By so doing, and with the assistance of our metropolitan and country colleagues, we shall be rapidly pushing on towards sanitary legislation of the right sort.

The following gentlemen were elected as members of the Council of the Association for the ensuing year:—Drs. Knaggs, Chambers, Skirving, Hankins, Quaife, O'Reilly, Fiaschi, Creed, M'Cormick, and Maclaurin.

The following office-bearers were appointed:—President, Mr. Creed, M.L.C.; Vice-President, Dr. Chambers; Hon. Secretary, Dr. Scot-Skirving; Hon. Treasurer, Dr. Hankins.

Drs. Ellis and Crago were re-appointed auditors.

A vote of thanks was passed to the retiring officers and Mr. Creed. The newly-elected president having formally taken possession of the chair and briefly returned thanks for the honour conferred upon him, the meeting terminated.

THE POOR CAB HORSE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Your correspondent "A. B." deserves the thanks of all humane persons in drawing attention to the cruel and brutal treatment given poor horses. There is, however, one particular class of horse which is the recipient of more brutal and savage treatment (in one way) than any other—I allude to the cab horse. Let any intelligent person—if a stranger to Sydney so much the better—take a walk through a few of our principal thoroughfares, and observe the conduct of our cab drivers, and he will see more ruthless, unmerciful, undeserved flogging meted out to beautiful, willing, and often nearly thoroughbred horses than probably in any other city he visits. Up-hill or down-hill the same rushing pace, empty or with a fare, it is all the same. If the horse goes too quick his jaws are sawn or nearly wrenched off; if not quick enough the terrible long and cutting whip is brought into requisition, indeed it is seldom out of the driver's hands, and the poor brute is rendered both stupid and spiritless; nearing the cabstand the game is still more lively, in order to show to other drivers how expert he is in the fancy line, such as cutting the nose, clipping the ear, picking the shoulder, &c. Sir, I am no novice in horseflesh, owning many horses myself, and I fearlessly say that the treatment, (especially in our hot climate, and fly and moquitoe bites annoying) given most horses is simply barbarous, and the most peculiar part is that the police never interfere to stop this treatment. I will most willingly send a fair cheque (as my means allow) to the Animals' Protection Society if it will only try to repress this great evil and give more publicity to the society's aims. Mr. Robertson Gladstone (the Grand Old Man's brother) was indeed a noble example of a man who tried to alleviate the wrongs of poor working beasts, and punish those who illtreated them. I only wish his like were among us. Trusting the foregoing may be considered worthy of your notice and an insertion.

SOUTH SYDNEY FREETRADERS.

A meeting of the freetraders of South Sydney was held at Rainford's Cambridge Club Hotel, Oxford-street, last night, for the purpose of adding to the strength of the branch of the Free-trade Association, recently formed in this electorate. The chair was occupied by the Mayor of Sydney (Mr. A. J. Riley, M.L.A.), and there were also on the platform Messrs. George Withers, M.L.A., R. Durnford, G. Pile, D. Hogarth, A. Drayton, and J. H. Rainford. Mr. Pulsford entered at a later stage of the proceedings. The audience, although not large, was very enthusiastic.

The MAYOR, in opening the meeting, said that the gentlemen present were no doubt aware that a preliminary meeting was held on Tuesday last, to take steps to establish a branch of the Freetrade Association of New South Wales, in the electorate of South Sydney. It was then announced that it was desirable to sustain the enthusiasm evoked in favour of freetrade principles at the late general election, and whilst these principles had a hold on the minds of the electors, it was also desirable that the committee-men and active workers in the cause at the late election should form themselves into a band advocating freetrade principles, so as to be always ready to meet any emergency that might arise to threaten these principles. (Hear, hear.) This course might also be advocated on other grounds, for the mere fact of a Freetrade Association existing in the constituency would have in itself a deterrent influence against any inroad on those principles we believed were so essential for the wellbeing of the country. (Applause.) Instead of leaving it to chance associations to spring up on the spur of the moment, when a general election should arise, a league or association of freetraders should exist with a powerful committee always ready to be brought into action at any general election, or, indeed, even at a bye election. Such an association would act very beneficially in keeping up to their pledges and promises the members of Parliament whom they had entrusted with their suffrages. (Applause.) He himself, as one of the members for the constituency, would not demur at those functions of the association. He believed firmly in their principles, but if he ever felt himself called upon to make any departure, if such were possible, and he did not think it likely, from the pledges he had given in favour of commercial freedom, he would feel it incumbent on himself to place his views first before the association, and then if they thought necessary, he would place himself again in the hands of his constituents. (Applause.) These were the twofold objects of the association which they were asked to join, and from the small beginning they made at the preliminary meeting a very large following would come if they held meetings in the different parts of the electorate. They had met to further the cause of free trade in this constituency, and they proposed holding meetings in various other parts of the electorate, with the view of evoking the enthusiastic support of the freetraders, and if possible, making converts. (Hear, hear.) At the conclusion of the meeting he would ask all those present who had not already joined the association, to become enrolled as members. After holding meetings of a similar character to this in the various parts of the electorate, they could call a general meeting of all the electors for the adoption of rules. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. G. WITHERS, M.L.A., then moved,—"That this meeting endorses the action of the preliminary meeting, and further pledges itself to support this association." Mr. Rainford seconded the resolution, which was supported by Messrs. S. Ellis and G. Pile, and carried unanimously.

Mr. D. HOGARTH moved, and Mr. R. DURNFORD seconded, a resolution to the effect that the names of those wishing to join the association be now taken.

At the request of the chairman Mr. Pulsford, who was received with applause, addressed a few words to the meeting in support of the resolution, speaking strongly in favour of the formation of a branch association of the Free-Trade Association of New South Wales. The one great enemy they had to contend with was ignorance, which was made use of by selfishness. If we succeeded in removing this ignorance no hope would remain for protection. South Sydney was the only metropolitan constituency which had returned a protectionist member, and that was through no fault of their own, as they had under-rated the strength of the freetraders in the electorate. He wished them every possible success in their association.

Mr. DRAYTON also supported the resolution, which was carried unanimously. A number of persons then came forward, and over 40 names were enrolled on the books of the association. Mr. J. H. Rainford was elected a vice-president of the association, and the meeting terminated with a vote of thanks to Mr. Riley for his services in the chair.

THE SPEAKERSHIP.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In your leading article on the Speakership you use the following words, which convey a serious imputation upon me:—"It is alleged that Mr. Young is put forward for the Speakership because he was not given a seat in the Cabinet; it has even been suggested that he was induced to waive his claim to office on the understanding that he should have the support of the Government for the Speakership of the Assembly. If any compact of the sort was made, it was highly improper." I was commissioned to form an Administration late on Saturday evening, January 15, and the Government was really formed by the evening of the following Tuesday. During those three days I can safely say that I never once thought of the election of the new Speaker; nor did I see Mr. Young, or communicate with him by letter or message. During those three days I consulted with no person whatever outside the gentlemen who are now my colleagues, with the exception, as explained to Parliament, of Mr. Reid and Mr. Wisdom.

If I could have so far forgotten myself as to make, or attempt to make, any such bargain as you so broadly speak of, it would certainly have been "highly improper." But may I not be pardoned in thinking that it is more "highly improper" to attribute to me this unworthy conduct without a shade of foundation in fact.

I am, &c.,
March 4th. HENRY PARKES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In your leading article of this morning the following paragraph appears:—

"It is alleged that Mr. Young is put forward for the Speakership because he was not given a seat in the Cabinet; it has even been suggested that he was induced to waive his claim to office on the understanding that he should have the support of the Government for the Speakership of the Assembly."

Whoever made either the allegation or the suggestion is to be complimented rather on his inventive faculty than on his common sense, or on his knowledge of political questions.

I have never at any time, directly or indirectly, put forward any claim to office, in this or any other Ministry; nor have I to the office of Speaker. So far as I am aware, no friend has made such claim on my behalf; and this being so, it is impossible that I could have been a party to such a compact as you suggest, and which you rightly describe as a "highly improper" one.

I am, &c.,

SIR HENRY PARKES AT THE FEET OF MR. GRAHAM BERRY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The cry which carried all before it in the recent general election was "Parkes and good government;" and we have the high authority of Sir Henry himself for it that "no man of sense can be a protectionist," and that payment of members lowers the character and effectiveness of Parliaments.

Yet, strange to say, the very first act of good government he gives us, the first instalment of performance of so many promises, is to hurry off to Victoria, to be instructed how to manage railways by a protectionist and a paid Parliament. If we have "nothing to learn" from free-trade England we have plainly something to learn from protectionist Victoria, and the first and greatest boon Sir Henry Parkes and his majority can give us is the Railway Commissioners Act framed by Mr. Graham Berry and passed by the most highly paid of Australian Parliaments. Mr. Speight says that the Act is perfect, and that no amendment in it could be suggested. We shall probably adopt it verbatim. Indeed, we could not do better.

Probably the next act of good government Sir Henry will give us will be to adopt equally enthusiastically the Victorian legislation upon local government and the Civil Service. I fully expect it, and we shall be most lucky if it be so.

One cannot help thinking, when did any Australian Premier ever come to us to learn anything? Yet our Parliament has not included protectionist men "of no sense," like the Victorian House, and it has been kept up to the full ideal standard of high tone, purity from corruption, and efficiency for work, by being unpaid.

Moreover, we have enjoyed the advantage of possessing "the greatest of Australian statesmen," and he tells us that he has placed more Acts on our statute book than any other man. And yet no Premiers come to learn of us! "A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, nor can an evil tree bring forth good fruit."

CONVENTUAL BURIALS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Regarding "Inquirer's" remarks on the above subject I crave space to inform him (as his common sense might have told him) that the laws regarding registration of death apply equally to inmates of convents as to other people. As a district registrar I have frequently registered the deaths of nuns, and in all cases a medical certificate from the local doctors—who, in my experience, were all Protestants—was produced. According to your correspondent the reverend gentleman who made a contrary statement "was careful to say he did not vouch for it as true," but knowing with what avidity some people will swallow any assertion on the subject he was discussing, he should surely, as a Christian and a gentleman, have made some inquiry before making such a statement.

PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS.

UNION CLUB.

The Union Club was started in the year 1858, in premises in Wynyard-square, as an institution for the use of professional and mercantile gentlemen, and was commenced in an unpretending way. The roll of membership lengthened so rapidly, however, that a removal to more capacious quarters became incumbent on the committee, and they were fortunate enough to be able to secure, on reasonable terms, the house and premises in Bligh-street belonging to the late Mr. Tertius Campbell, which they purchased, together with the extensive grounds and an old store adjacent. The land itself has a length of 500 feet, and a depth of about 200 feet at its widest part. The Union is the only club proper in Sydney where the members can luxuriate in the enviable dolce far niente beneath their own shade-trees, in a veritable rus in urbe, and imagine themselves seated in the grounds of a comfortable mansion far away from the worry and cares of everyday life. The original premises became in time too small for the accommodation of the still increasing membership, and Mr. W. W. Wardell, now of the firm of Wardell and Vernon, was requested to make out the drawings for the necessary additions and alterations to the old building. The present works were commenced in April, 1884, and the execution of the contract was entrusted to the excellent hands of Messrs. M'Leod and Noble. As it was requisite to study the convenience of the members, only a portion of the additions was carried out at first, which accounts for the apparently long time that the work has been in hand. The style of architecture adopted in this case by Mr. Wardell is Italian, and very suitable to the kind of building to which it has been applied, the severe character of the details of the elevation harmonising well with the fine site; those of the ground floor being the stately Doric, and those of the upper floors the lighter and more plastic Ionic.

The main front, towards Bligh-street, presents, as its central feature, a massive portico, 30 feet in height from the pavement line, 42 feet in length, and 9 feet in depth, with six bold columns flanked by well-balanced pilasters (a great improvement on the meagre antæ formerly in vogue), each angle of the portico being finished off with coupled columns at the proper distance apart. Under the portico are two flights of steps, semi-circular on plan, the curved sweep of which affords an effective contrast to the straight and square lines of the portico. Over the latter is a lead flat, with a pierced parapet, which can be used for a promenade if desired. Passing up the steps and under the portico, the visitor finds himself in a cool vestibule, 18 feet x 10 feet 6 inches, having on one side the hall-porter's room, 11 feet x 18 feet, and on the other the strangers' reception room, of similar dimensions. At the opposite end of the vestibule is a corridor running transversely, with a vestibule 36 feet x 9 feet, and leading on one side to the private dining-room, 34 feet x 24 feet, and on the other to the reading-room of similar dimensions, having a bay-window with a pleasant view of the garden and grounds. The ceilings of the vestibule and corridor are grained, and produce a light and airy effect. Beyond the corridor is the principal hall, 35 feet x 22 feet, light, and well ventilated, from which the main stairs, 6 feet in width, give easy access to the upper floors. These stairs are enclosed with an ornamental wrought-iron balustrade with scroll work, made in the colony, and starting from two massive newels supporting elegant lamps. This hall is divided by columns which carry galleries on the upper floors, the galleries affording cool lounging-places in warm weather, where the newspapers can be perused by members in quiet and in comfort. To the left of the principal hall is a spacious smoking-room, 44 feet x 24 feet, opening at the side, by a French casement, upon a large verandah fronting the pleasure-grounds. Passing on through the corridor, on the other side and down seven steps is the dining-room. Turning back and passing under the main stairs are the lavatory and the secretary's room—the latter a fine chamber, 24 feet x 18 feet, and beyond it is a passage leading to the billiard-rooms. To the right of the secretary's room are the back stairs, pantries, serving-rooms, clerk's office, bar, and the usual conveniences. The height of this story is 18 feet. On the first floor, fronting Bligh-street, is the library, a fine room 38 feet x 18 feet, with three large windows, one of which gives access to the balcony on the flat over the portico. There are also six good club bedrooms facing the street, and two smaller bedrooms at the side. The secretary's bedroom (18 feet x 18 feet), dressing-room (15 feet x 8 feet), and a bathroom are on this floor, and three card-rooms, one being 27 feet x 19 feet, another 27 feet x 14 feet, and the third 23 feet x 14 feet. The height of the story is 15 feet. The second floor is appropriated to club bedrooms (of which there are 15), four bathrooms, and sanitary arrangements. The height of the story is 12 feet.

The main elevations are executed in Pyrmont stone, and the building presents a very solid and imposing appearance. The joiners' work on the ground floor is in polished cedar, and that on the other floors is in clear pine varnished. It is expected that the entire building will be finished and handed over at Easter. The club at present numbers about 500 members.

THE SYDNEY PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY AND THE CENTENARY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Now that "Elijah" has been produced, and the Sydney Philharmonic Society is about to reconstitute its committee, I should be glad if you would allow me to express some ideas concerning such reconstitution, both as regards the appellation of the society and the part it should play on certain occasions not far distant.

The centenary of New South Wales is rapidly approaching, but not even yet, with the exception of some few proposals put forth in letters to the daily papers, do I see any preparation in the way of music, so essential in such national festivities. It is a matter of very great importance to Sydney that decisive steps should at once be taken in making the requisite arrangements, and that a musical society, constituted efficiently and specially for this celebration of the centenary, should straightway commence its work. It seems to me that the Town Hall of Sydney would be a very suitable place where, accompanied by the powerful organ which will soon be finished, the imposing choruses would be heard with majestic grandeur, inspired with the works of Handel, Mendelssohn, Rossini, Costa, Sullivan, Dvorak, Mackenzie, &c. The opening of this hall will be an event in the history of Sydney as a city, and I think that as the corporation has happened to make the opening in the year of the centenary it is necessary to celebrate this double event by an appropriate display. In 1876, the centenary of America, Philadelphia held a great exhibition, and for the concert at the opening ceremony Richard Wagner wrote specially a march, as had been requested of him by a committee of the American ladies, with the handsome reward of a purse containing 10,000 dollars. In Paris, at the Exposition of 1867, Rossini was officially invited to write a march, and in 1878, another Exhibition year, a musical choir was conducted at a cost of £1000 by Saint Saëns, a composer whose symphonies are very much admired in Germany. In 1880, M. E. Caron, who, indeed, conducts the orchestra at the Criterion Theatre, gained the prize offered by the Melbourne Exhibition Committee, and it could be easily shown that all countries furnish proof of the same interest, and reserve for musical art the place it deserves in every celebration of a great event or great national accomplishment. I shall be pleased to see the time when the Sydney Municipal Council establishes a committee which shall have for its object the judging of the composition of a cantata or a grand ode, specially written for the celebration of the centenary, for voice and orchestra. At the opening of the Town Hall a prize of £650 should be awarded to the authors of the best work, the author of the words receiving one-third value of the prize. I cannot agree with the proposal that the respective merits of works sent in should be decided by a select committee in London. I am opinion, moreover, that a committee formed in Sydney, and composed in part of musicians, partly of others having good discretion in judging of music, would considerably simplify the question. It will not be objected that the capability of judging is inseparable from great proficiency in musical art. Good musicians, professional and amateur, are not scarce in Sydney.

But for the production of these works it is necessary to have a grand musical society organised, and ready to commence at once the studies of them. And it is necessary that the society organised for such occasion should be called the Centennial Musical Society, bringing together as soon as possible all the musical elements Sydney possesses. The choir would be of 300 singers, ladies and gentlemen, and the orchestra of 70 musicians. The present Philharmonic Society, being already constituted, and in working order, could easily transform itself into the Centennial Musical Society, and the newly-elected Parliament, which ought to inaugurate this movement, might appoint an effective committee that would work sympathetically in the matter, and be always in full attendance at its meetings. The committee elected would present its programme, and, if personally I might be allowed to express my enthusiasm in this matter, I would say, in an earnest appeal to all the musicians of Sydney, singers and instrumentalists, come, bring the force of your talents and application of your energies to the new society. The artistic flag which will be hoisted will be national and appropriate to the events being celebrated. Come, enrol your names as followers ready to join the momentous band which shall be an army, powerful and harmonious. For, said Wilhelm, "Hearts are more willing when voices are united." Come, and let the year 1888 be characterised by the advent of a brilliant harmonic choir, which shall aid in creating between men a bond of solidity and of charity.

I regret that I am only yet a stranger in Sydney. There is often great power in suggesting, yet feebleness in acting. I shall, therefore, for my part, be satisfied to have expressed desires which I believe exist in the heart of everyone, and be happy in having aided in the task which I am ready to further assist in by co-operating with those who wish to see musical art exercise its due amount of influence on civilisation, and perform the part that should be expected of it in the celebration of the centenary of the nation—1888.

The Exchange Telegraph Company learns (says the St. James's Gazette) that an effort is being made to place Wales upon an equality with other parts of the United Kingdom, so far as the possession of a Lord Mayor can confer such equality. The Queen is to be asked to make this concession as a jubilee gift to the principality; and a petition for a royal charter for Cardiff, raising the mayoralty of that town to the dignity of a lordship, has been sent to the Privy Council.

"Ay, marry, now unmuzzle your wisdom."—ROSALIND.

Here is a slight addition which I should venture to suggest might be appended to the Governor's Speech:—"Gentlemen of the Opposition,—I am grieved to have to inform you that during the late Parliament the relations of the Government and of the Opposition were far from friendly. I have reason to apprehend that in the present Assembly there is a grave risk that peaceful relations will not be maintained. Circumstances to which I need not now draw your attention have led you to believe that during the late session the members comprising the present Government were inimical to yourselves and to the State; that they were prepared to proceed to all lengths in order to prevent you from carrying those legislative measures which you believed to be necessary for the promotion of a just equilibrium between revenue and expenditure, and for the advancement of the welfare of the country. Smarting under a sense of wrong, I am informed that it is now your intention to proceed to all lengths to preserve, not only freedom of discussion, but to prevent the passage of any measures which may tend to relieve the credit of the colony from the reproach which has been cast upon it by the deficit—that you propose to devote the first four weeks of the session to a debate upon an amendment which you intend to move, and if possible to keep moving, upon the address in reply, and to obstruct legislation by every means in your power. Gentlemen of the Opposition,—Don't do it. The country at least has done you no wrong. The country has elected you to the position which you now occupy; and there is a general desire that something should be done to relieve the colony from the embarrassing position in which it stands at the present moment. Measures will be submitted to you dealing with the finances of the country. While I am anxious that these measures should receive the freest and fullest discussion, I am most desirous that their passage should not be hampered by a factious opposition; and must warn you that if you should persist in pursuing those tactics—which I am informed it is your intention to adopt—you will simply dig your own political graves, and we shall make it our business to consign you to them at the very earliest opportunity." Let me put the matter shortly. We are in a hole. We have chosen Sir Henry Parkes to get us out of that hole; and we are not going to stand by and listen to ten-hour speeches while we lie in that unpleasant situation. We haven't done any wrong. Perhaps Sir Henry Parkes has. I don't know; but I don't see why I should suffer for what Sir Henry Parkes may be supposed to have done. I am told that the Opposition are going to give the Government a bad time—by way of retaliation, you see. But who is going to pay the piper? Let the Opposition start a proper indemnity fund, and then go in, if they like.) Why are we, the public, to suffer? We haven't done anything.

When the Loch Katrine water was first supplied to Glasgow, an aged resident made a complaint. The old water, she said, was good water, "but this has neither taste nor smell." No one will urge this objection to the Sydney water. But, not content with ordinary virtues, the City Engineer has something to say in its favour which is new to me. People, it seems, don't like a "milky whiteness" in this cheapest of temperance drinks. But why should they be discontented? The City Engineer tells us that this is a kind of glorified water—aërated—and laid on for nothing extra. The milky whiteness is due to air forced in gratis; and we are getting a sort of oxygenated water at ordinary rates. At the "Minerva" to-day I looked at my glass of sodawater attentively. It wasn't milky; but that may be the fault of the manufacturer. Or it may be that carbonic acid gas doesn't act that way—only oxygen, with the necessary proportion of nitrogen and trifling additions (chiefly compounds of carbon, ammonia, marsh gas, and so forth) which add richness to our Sydney atmosphere. And when I read what the City Engineer said I felt grateful. I thought how easy it would be to add the necessary proportion of claret, lemon, liqueurs, and what else might be needed to the reservoir; and to celebrate the Centenary by having claret cup laid on everywhere. Likewise, I thought that henceforth manufacturers of aërated waters might retire into private life. But having got home and enjoyed a "nightcap" of this aërated water—which only wants to be iced to be perfect—I found that a medical gentleman had written a letter to suggest that the aration might be caused by the presence of sewer gas. I now wait to know who is in the right in this somewhat interesting matter.

An unfortunate man of the name of Franklin adopted an expedient not unknown to bachelors who live in solitary chambers, on Tuesday last. He seems to have endeavoured to make his fire burn by pouring kerosene upon it. The kerosene in the can took fire and exploded, and so violently that portions of his flesh were found lying about the yard. He was picked up a blackened and unrecognisable heap—and died soon afterwards at the Prince Alfred Hospital. The City Coroner is reported to have been apprised of the occurrence, and to have decided that an inquest could be dispensed with. Why? I daresay it is all right; but it seems to me that it would have been at least useful to have learnt how it was that the kerosene came to explode at all, who sold it, and what we are to expect from our reading lamps. I always supposed that kerosene as sold required to be raised to a certain temperature before it became explosive. I may be wrong; but if I am, there is a danger in our midst that we ought to pay some attention to. There are a good many inquests which might be dispensed with, but surely this is not one of them.

Dr. Jefferis, in his sermon on "National Righteousness," which I noticed, not unappreciatively, a few days ago in this column, says, that at the close of a public election it is allowable for us to centre our thoughts on the Parliament shortly to meet. "Parliament," he goes on to say, "is a farce if it were not representative, and whatever sins were a reproach to a nation would be represented there. If the people were foolish, the Parliament would be foolish. If the people loved strong drink, the Parliament would have its drinkers." Now, unless our electoral machinery has been all out of gear, this new Parliament ought to be anything but a farce. That is to say it ought to be representative not only of our national virtues but our national vices. I have been spending a perplexed quarter of an hour or so in an attempt to analyse, not for political, but ethical purposes, these new levies of ours who are to enter on their legislative campaign on Tuesday next: and the first thing I find is that the newspaper classification into F.M.'s, F.I.'s, F.O.'s, P.O.'s, and P.M. (alas there is only one P.M.), gives me no clue to the moral character of those so labelled; whether those letters denote high, or low, or broad churchman, or some impious Agnostic. But far worse than these possibilities, there is this. One of our national vices—and a most accursed one it is—is the unblushing and sometimes even infamous way we canvass and "work the oracles" to secure some office, or advantage that we have no qualification for, except impudence. Can it be that this vice is represented in our present Parliament? Are men and their mean emissaries even now going about imploring votes, often on their own behalf, oftener vicariously, for such an office as the Speakership? If it is so, then, by no other proof, could the canvasser, so completely damn his own personal pretensions to that dignity.

* * * * *

And yet remember, my dear friends that much as episcopal etiquette requires the bishop designate to mutter "Nolo episcopari," Parliamentary etiquette is infinitely stiffer in exacting from the Speaker designate or undesignate the conduct, demeanour, and conscientious shrinking of a man who deprecates a great dignity proposed to be conferred on [illegible] Parliamentarian to woo the Speakership [illegible] lessly canvass for it, is as if if "Virgo" [illegible] summoned you to dance with her or to marry her. These things, however, seem to be a mystery to some people now advertising themselves.

* * * * *

Mr. W. J. Foster, they tell me, would have made an admirable Speaker, but he has refused to be shelved as Mr. G. H. Reid refused before him, and, if we are to believe rumour, as Mr. J. P. Abbott has refused after him. Mr. Barton, thinking he might run a bad chance of being shelved came down of his own motion from the shelf in time. All this proves that the Speaker is horribly overworked, or horribly underpaid, or that the dignity of the office is no consolation for the indignities put upon it. I hardly think that Mr. Foster could have been taken in hand by his chief, or he must have relented. It is well-established that the least relentless people—the least selfish, too—in the world are barristers. Think of Sir James Martin, think of Mr. Darley, C.J., and scores of others who have sacrificed their pecuniary prospects on the altar of New South Wales! And after all, Mr. Foster has little fighting in him; he can be of no great use to Sir Henry Parkes in a scrimmage such as the protectionists are concocting, we are told at this very moment. Mr. Foster is simply out of his element on the floor of the Assembly during a hot debate. On the other hand, these defects in Mr. Foster's fighting equipment would be almost excellences in a Speaker. As a Speaker, Mr. Foster would be impartial, decorous, and, as a rule, correct in his decisions; but it might be torture to him to be compelled at a moment's notice to make up his mind and to adhere to it, ruat coelum, when made up. If Mr. Dibbs would be impetuous in the Chair, Mr. Foster might be indecisive. And which would be the less evil?

"So lang man nüchtern ist,
Gefällt das Schlechte;
Wie man getrunken hat
Weiss man das Rechte.——"

I don't care to put this dictum of the greatest man of the century (Goethe) into plain English, because Dr. Jefferis has declared in his sermon that "Drinking had contributed a little to eloquence, but nothing to wisdom, and much to folly." But may be Dr. Jefferis will some early Sunday be able to confute Goethe, and prove that the temperance drink men have now taken the places of the poets, orators, statesmen, critics, men of science, yea even of the theologians, of the alcoholic age, now happily passing away; and (let us be thankful) to be succeeded by an age to be made illustrious among all ages by the scientific discovery just reported in a German newspaper. That discovery is of a potable, cheap, non-alcoholic stimulant, which possesses all the properties of schnapps, whisky, champagne, hock, brandy, and port, without that objectionable property of disturbing a man's equilibrium, mental or in respect of his legs. It is the very refreshment to refresh jaded members of Parliament, whose gorges rise at the bare idea of a dose of nervine, vigorine, or zoedone at 8 a.m.

I hear of much typhoid about, principally in the suburbs and country towns; and some complainers say that the Dairies Supervision Act is not being faithfully carried out. Speaking for myself, I am in this miserable condition of faith in sanitary Acts of Parliament that I decline to drink unboiled milk. I know I can catch typhoid from any number of sources, but it seems to give a man some comfort to think that he has annihilated even one "seedplot" of disease. Then catarrh has made its unwelcome appearance during the week. That Monday, followed by the inevitable change of temperature which such a day as Thursday gave us, was enough to set us all barking, sneezing, and oozing as to our mucous membrane. Colds in February forsooth! And yet some people still think that this is Australia, and that we are living in an Australian climate. I am not at all sure that it is past the power of science to alter our climate. The Professor of Physics (I take shame to myself for having forgotten his name) would be able to give a better opinion on this subject, but he will never make me believe that a fringe of icebergs each about the size of 10 cathedrals, judiciously disposed along our seacoast during north-east weather, would not break up an ordinary drought. The getting together of the icebergs might take time; and it might be expensive to tow them up here from the South Pole; but the "unemployed" have been put to jobs much less defensible than this, of towing icebergs, would be in times of drought.

CIRCULAR QUAY JETTIES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The suggestions which have been frequently made and recently strongly advocated by you to alter the ferry arrangements at the Circular Quay by starting the up river steamers from the west and the down harbour steamers from the east side of the quay, have at first glance a reasonable appearance, and I know have been looked upon with some favour both by the Government and the Marine Board, and would perhaps have been considered in a serious way but for a suggestion which also, at first sight, seems a reasonable one, and has been entertained by the authorities, viz., to start the traffic down the harbour from Fort Macquarie, and up the harbour and to North Shore from Dawes Point, reserving the head of Sydney Cove, generally known as the Circular Quay, for part of the large cargo traffic of the port. I do not think that either of these recommendations should be carried into effect. The first one because it would not lessen the danger of collision, and the second because it would be very inconvenient to the public, and dangerous, because the positions are exposed to all winds and close to the general fairway of the harbour.

There is no better safeguard for the public than a strict observance of the "rules of the road," and no collision need ever occur if those rules are rigidly observed, and if proper care is exercised. To carry out these rules steamers would cross each other more often were the starting points reversed as suggested than they do now. Suppose, for instance, Manly Beach steamers and Watson's Bay steamers coming in to the east corner of the Quay on their trips up from the Heads, they must enter the Cove well in the fairway or on the west side of the Cove, so as to allow any ships going out of the Cove to keep on their own, the starboard side. It would be unsafe for those coming in to keep near to Fort Macquarie, and to steam along by the quays of the Messageries and the Orient Companies, because they must leave room for boats going down the harbour, even from their own wharfs to pass on the starboard side of them, hence they are brought into the middle of the Cove, and must cross again to the east to get into their own berths, which they would then have great difficulty and danger in doing. Your proposals would work well only one way, i.e., for the boats going down the harbour, but the boats going up the harbour would still have to cross to the eastern side at starting, in order to be clear of boats coming in from up the harbour, and so they would have to cross boats coming over from North Shore just as much as they have to do at present. Moreover, room must be allowed for screw boats to turn when they back out from the wharfs, and screw boats are the rule now, and paddle boats the exception, and a screw boat requires nearly the whole width of the head of Sydney Cove in which to turn, so that it appears to me that crossing is inevitable, and unless you disregard the rules of the road as soon as a vessel enters Sydney Cove (which would be, I am sure, dangerous and disastrous) you would greatly increase the danger of collision by altering the position of the ferries. Quite unintentionally the ferries seem to me to have fallen into the best positions they can occupy, and to change them would be a mistake. More room is required for the passenger traffic to the North Shore, and the sixth jetty which was originally planned and contracted for, and which was to have been erected eastward of the North Shore Ferry Company's jetty, should be constructed with as little delay as possible. These arrangements would meet the requirements for some time to come; but the plan which I think should be adopted for the present would be to reserve the whole of the Quay from the A. S. N. Company's Wharf to the Floating Jetty for passenger and ferry steamers. As regards the statement that the traffic of the Circular Quay is dangerous, I desire to point out that there is a much larger traffic from the wharfs in Darling Harbour, more ferries, more steamers, more passengers, besides many more coasting and other steamers, dredges, colliers, and sailing craft passing and at anchor, and yet the traffic is carried on without many collisions, certainly not nearly as many as have occurred out in the fairway of the harbour opposite Sydney Cove or Bradley's Head. Let the masters of steamers strictly and carefully adhere to the rules of navigation as laid down by the Board of Trade and by the Marine Board, and there need be little fear of collisions or from what is absurdly called racing. Of course two vessels of about equal speed will race when they get side by side, and why should they not do so so long as jockeying is not indulged in, and if there is no gagging of safety valves? To commit either of these offences is to incur a penalty which should be strictly enforced; but to go as fast as the engines will permit when on a trip whether beside another steamer or alone is no offence provided it is not within certain defined limits in the harbour, and certainly is not dangerous. On the contrary, it is more dangerous in practice to go slow than fast, as I could prove to you were it necessary.

If any radical change is made in the arrangements at the Circular Quay, it seems to me that the best plan would be to run out a very long pier on piles or pontoons from the Princes Stairs northward, and let all the ferry steamers berth on each side of it. There would still be ample room for the large ocean steamers to berth on both sides of the quay, and for the harbour steamers to swing at the pier. All the ferry waiting-rooms could be placed on the pier, and the present jetties abolished, and the positions they occupy could be utilised for large ships. What we require now is a harbour trust with power and means to deal with all questions of wharfs and water frontages and the good government of the harbour; and this should receive early attention from the Government.

I am, &c.,
C. E. JEANNERET.

The railways of the United States (remarks an English paper) are increasing by leaps and bounds, and to all appearance the ratio is on the increase. In 1880 the total number of miles built in the United States was 87,801, and in 1885 that figure had increased to 102,000 miles. During 1886 the miles built numbered 8648, which is greater than in any preceding year. For the current year, however, no less than 11,000 miles of new line have been projected. The greatest activity has been shown in the south-western States.

REVIEWS.

Life of John Hullah. Longmans, Green, and Co., London.

The name of Hullah, the apostle of music, recalls a movement which took place some 40 or more years ago, and long labours in diffusion of the arts of good singing and clear speaking. These labours were cut short some two years ago, and the present biography, written by his widow, will be read with interest.

As a general rule, the writing of biographies by the widows or children of those who are the subjects of the stories, is to be deprecated; for, in the first place, too many lives come to be written, and in the second, nature forbids such writers to be impartial; also, their affection destroys their sense of proportion, and is prone to admit into the book domestic incidents, family small talk, and personal gossip, which often fall below the dignity of history. From such faults (except the last) this biography appears to be free. At any rate, there can be no doubt that Mr. Hullah's life was worth writing.

He was born at Worcester in 1812, of a Huguenot family, and in 1833, having meanwhile passed under various hands, was admitted into the Royal Academy of Music. After the completion of his studies he turned to composition, and supplied the music of an opera, "The Village Coquettes," of which Charles Dickens wrote the libretto. It was passably successful; and Mr. Hullah composed other pieces which met with varying fates. In 1839 he was appointed to teach singing at the Battersea Normal School, and thenceforth he became pre-eminently concerned with music as a factor in education; his method of instruction was not original, but his enthusiasm for the instruction of the people in music was, and his success in teaching and organising drew the attention of the late Prince Consort, the Duke of Wellington, and John Keble. Politicians began to see that the study of music had its political aspects; the taste for singing spread with rapidity, and it seemed as if there was going to take place a great revival of music throughout Great Britain. A letter to Mr. Hullah, published at p. 32, speaks of "carpenters, bricklayers, and labourers being seen at their dinner hours and after the day's work was done constantly busying themselves going over the do re mi on their fingers and practising themselves in beating time."

Mr. Hullah devoted himself to teaching, lecturing, and writing, in furtherance of the movement. His lectures on the history of modern music, delivered at the Royal Institution, have become a standard work, and a small volume published at the Clarendon Press, under the title of "The Cultivation of the Speaking Voice," takes an equally high rank. In 1872 Mr. Hullah was appointed inspector in music of the training colleges, and his annual reports to the Privy Council on the state of musical education are reprinted in part and contain much interesting matter. As to singing "by ear" in elementary schools, Mr. Hullah reports in 1874:—"Whatever its value as 'a means of moral discipline,' singing 'by ear,' regarded from a musical point of view, is simply worthless. That the possession of 99 songs got 'by ear' will not enable the possessor to add another to the number by any independent effort of his own is obvious. The process of learning them in this way adds nothing to the power of the learner. It is absolutely sterile and ends with itself. On the other hand, the least skill in reading music and the least acquaintance with musical science—and some of both may be given to every child who remains even a year at school—might easily, with subsequent opportunity be developed, and has often been developed, into a means of innocent and even ennobling recreation."

The following passage is germane to the use of the bagpipe as an instrument of music:—"The Celts of Wales are, perhaps, the most musically apt of any people in Great Britain; on the other hand, those of the Highlands of Scotland are least so. I have never met with a Welsh student with what is called a defective ear. I have taken the utmost pains to get a Highland student to imitate even approximately the simplest succession of musical sounds quite unsuccessfully; and this not in one instance only, but in half a-dozen consecutive instances. The cause is not far to seek. Music is an imitative art. From time immemorial the Welsh ear has been formed, consciously or unconsciously, by the harp; an instrument not merely refined in its quality, but an instrument of harmony, and therefore of necessity tuned on the system which European use has made into a second nature. The Highland ear has been formed on the coarsest variety of one of the most imperfect even of monodic instruments, the bagpipe.

In his report of 1878 he offers some remarks on the necessity of training the voice from the earliest age:—"Moreover, a truth has latterly been dawning upon me, for the confirmation of which more experience is perhaps as yet needed, but which I so far believe to be a truth, and even one of universal application. The young men and women in the training schools, probably all others, who have indifferent voices—I find none who have no voice—are simply those who have never sung as children. . . . If only fathers or mothers with the slightest musical knowledge or skill would, for a few minutes every day, apply either to the cultivation of the musical ears of their children, what a musical people we should be in a few years time!" From the number of his employments and undertakings, all bearing upon the one result of the diffusion of musical knowledge, Mr. Hullah seems to have been, towards the end of his life always in an overworked state. The usual result followed—partial paralysis—in 1880, and final break-down in 1881. He was then granted a Civil Service pension, but lived only a short time to enjoy it. We would strongly commend this book to all who are concerned in the musical instruction of classes.

Echettus. By GEORGE WHETENALL. Fisher Unwin, London.

Echettus, according to the old story, was presumably a demigod, who when the Athenians were joining battle at Marathon with the invading Persian host, appeared clad as a rustic, and did havoc amongst the barbarians with a ploughshare for his weapon. In similar fashion Mr. Whetenall, in doing battle against some of the evil influences of modern civilisation, and showing how an ideal polity might be set on foot, adopts as to himself, and those who may choose to become his disciples, the old imagery of ploughers at work in the great world field, and having stones and thorns and the like to cope with; hence the title of the book.

According to Mr. Whetenall the whole times are out of joint. "We must allow," says he, "with gain of seasonable modesty at least, that we are, in all probability, the ugliest, sickliest, puniest, most undignified and most miscalculating, most meanly wicked, and altogether ungodliest and dirtiest age the earth has ever held." We have, in fact, lost our ways in the complexity of modern social life; we have forgotten the real ends and conditions of existence, and have become idolaters to the machinery of life. We must return to simplicity and nature. The broad condition of existence is for every son of Adam hard work, for all daughters of Eve motherhood. Man's work lies in the direction of tilling the ground: he ought to exist, not by selling, but by eating, the labours of his hands. Therefore the ideal polity will consist of a dominant peasant proprietary, with here and there a town built upon the lines of high art, with little or no commerce, absolute monarchy, and Roman Catholicism.

That the times are out of joint Mr. Whetenall attempts to establish by consideration of the phenomena of to-day—the race for wealth, the remorseless universal competition, the pretensions of science, the dirtiness of party government and representative assemblies, the decline of art, and the degeneracy of human nature itself under such conditions of life. Most of his bitter things have been said before by Ruskin, Carlyle, or Matthew Arnold. When we come across the tirade against "that abortion of middle class, that proper shame of ours which, failing both of higher fineness and lower strength, ass-obstinate toward a righteous cause or a noble zeal, swine-ravenous of its own muddy pleasures, has been long enough the clog upon England's duty and the spur of her base desires, being, in truth, such an exposition of contemptible haste, greedy fear, weather-cock opinion, pompous folly, as might have been looked for from the exaltation of sapient butcher, baker, and grocerdom upon a belauded throne as world's arbiters, and the sources of all moral and mental light," we seem to hear the ideas of the apostle of sweetness and light expressed in the bad language of the Shimei of Chelsea. But, even if Mr. Whetenall were not so indebted, the fact that the unsparing critic finds many bitter things to say is no great argument; the systems which the labour of generations have put up bit by bit are from the condition of their growth lacking in symmetry, and make a poor show before the ideal creations which religion, poetry, art, or dreaming have enriched us with; but they are necessary until there is something to take their places. Mere blowing of trumpets will not bring down the walls of Jericho until they are become utterly useless, and Mr. Whetenall obviously underates the difficulties of social regeneration when he writes:—"I am inclined to believe that a simple and forcible blasphemy, directed against the topmost godheads of the economic and philosophic pantheon, delivered in unison by certain spirits which at present content themselves with scattered raillery or silence of contempt, would reduce the mass of worshippers to such a gasping horror of astonishment, that anything further beyond a going up and taking possession would be quite needless." In fact the weak part of this, as it generally is of other schemes of regeneration, is the part which tells of the manner how it may all be done. Plato founds his new order of things on labourious education. Mr. Whetenall seems to trust more to the potent effects of mediæval excommunication with bell, book, and candle.

There are many noble thoughts in the latter part of the book which outlines the ideal life, and dwells on the love, the labour, and the arcadian influences which are to characterise it. Such ideals require to be persistently forced upon our attention, lest we become too contented in the thraldom of commercialism. And for the graceful imagination with which they are sketched, one may with profit undergo the labour of learning the writer's language; for his delight has been in "twisted words" and archaisms, and in a total neglect of the common words which appeared to him spoilt by the associations of the stock market, the party journal, and the betting-ring. Oracles in every age have spoken in their own styles; otherwise they might not have seemed to be oracles at all. But, style apart, the freshness of feeling, the contentment with country joys, and the desire for repose which marks Mr. Whetenall's pastoral in prose, remind one strongly of Horace. The coincidence that such yearnings for the old rustic peace, as being more religious and more beautiful than the tumult of the town, should find a voice in Mr. Whetenall and others of the same school, almost at the same time as three-acres-and-a-cow is launched as a policy, is at least worth reflecting on. The revolution of turning the people from town life to country life may in time be effected; but it can only be effected by a great change of scene. Mr. Whetenall's scheme might be achieved in Canada or Australia; but in such a case he would have to withdraw all the hard things he has said of steam, electricity, and modern science.

Critical Miscellanies. By JOHN MORLEY. Vol. III. MacMillan and Co., London.

The third volume of Mr. Morley's Miscellanies is, except as to an essay on Comte, and a sharp criticism of Monsieur Taine's Ancien Régime, concerned exclusively with English subjects—Mill's autobiography, the life of George Eliot, Harriet Martineau, W. R. Greg, Mark Pattison's memoirs, and (somewhat harder to group) a panegyric of Mill, a lecture on popular culture, and an examination of Professor Seeley's popular "Expansion of England," and attack upon plans proposed for the better organisation of the Empire.

Mr. Morley is happy in the possession of a system which in all its parts is so clearly reasoned out that it serves as no uncertain touchstone for the testing of men and ideas; and he is equally happy in the possession of a style which conveys the lucidity of his thought until a feeling of intimacy grows upon his habitual readers, and they seem to know how they may expect to have him, and what he will say. It was therefore obvious what he would say of Comte and of the abovenamed English writers on sociology. They all of them had definite ideas, and occupied positions in the hierarchy of acknowledged thinkers. The papers on Mill express a gracious tribute of admiration for one who has to a large extent determined the direction of English contemporary thought. "He is," says Mr. Morley with a just appreciation of his services, "the latest chief of a distinctly English school of philosophy, in which, as has been said, the names of Locke, Hume, Adam Smith, and Bentham (and Mr. Mill would have added James Mill) mark the line of succession—the school whose method subordinates imagination to observation, and whose doctrine lays the foundations of knowledge in experience, and the tests of conduct in utility." And there are few acquainted with the story of his laborious and self-denying life who will not also accept Mr. Morley's judgment of its unaffected splendour. But one part of Mill's doctrine seems to us to want an abiding value. In considering England's colonies he lacked the imagination or the knowledge which the topic required, and therefore certain portions of his representative government are already out of date. "They are not," said he of the colonies, "part of the same public; they do not discuss and deliberate in the same arena but apart, and have only a most imperfect knowledge of what passes in the minds of one another. They neither know each other's objects, nor have confidence in each other's principles of conduct." This was Mill's minor premise: a cursory review of the way things have gone since his death proves that it fails in point of fact, and the conclusion must therefore be equally groundless.

Weak and unsatisfactory as it is, Mr. Morley accepts it with all the ready faith of a true disciple, and appeals to its authority when he comes to deal with the "expansion of England," and the political problem which the Imperial Federation League has set itself to master. In dealing with the book itself, Mr. Morley inclines to petulance, and he is compelled to resort to strange and far-fetched explanations of its popularity; he questions its originality, and opines that the strong reaction against its doctrines of a quarter of a century ago will be proved by events to be superficial. The old case against colonies is once more paraded, and that part of it which states that the mother-country and her colonies cannot have sufficient knowledge of one another does indeed receive a passing illustration. In the course of the article, at p. 318, is the remarkable statement that the aggregate debt (public and private) of the colonies to the mother-country amounts to the truly alarming sum of one and a-quarter millions, a statement followed soon afterwards by the assertion that the colonies annually take 32s. worth of English manufactures per head of the population. Mr. Morley also makes himself responsible for the following:—"The Australasian colonist lives from hand to mouth, carries on his trade with borrowed money, and pays his way by the prompt disposal of his produce. Hence it is that the smallest frown of tight money sends a swift shock thrilling and vibrating all through the Australasian communities. War would at once hamper their transactions. It would bring enhanced freights and higher rates of insurance to cover war risks. This direct dislocation of commerce would be attended in time by default of payment of interest on the colonial debt—public, semi-public, and private."

The real object of the article is, as it seems, to attack the different proposals which have been made by Sir Henry Parkes, Lord Dunraven, and the late Mr. W. E. Forster, to obtain co-operation between all parts of what Professor Seeley has called the British Realm. Mr. Morley finds them unsatisfactory, and thence appears to conclude that no scheme is possible—a somewhat hasty generalisation. With much of his criticism of the aforesaid proposals we cannot but concur, but Mr. Morley seems to us to regard the matter from a wrong standpoint, whence comes it that not a few of his arguments appear capable of being turned against himself; for instance, it is maintained by him that emigration is guided, not by emotions of patriotic sentiment, but by calculations of prudence; proof, the emigration to the United States is greater than that to Canada. Now, this instance really proves that emigration is not in the main determined by calculations of prudence. British emigrants go to the United States because they will there find themselves amongst a population of the same tongue, the same religion, and nearly the same laws; they do not go outside the circle of English-speaking men; calculations of prudence are not strong enough to conquer the desire for fellowship which is mainly the stuff of which patriotism is made. There is a similar weakness in the argument on p. 327, that because the colonies of a given region, e.g., Australia or S. Africa, cannot readily be brought into union, à fortiori, portions of the realm which are wide oceans apart cannot be brought into one system. The Australian colonies do not greatly care to pin themselves into smaller unions for the very fact that they feel themselves members of a larger whole and aspire to keep that rank. If this were not so, the policy of the Australian colonies might well appear to be fatuous and suicidal. Mr. Morley's argument that an Imperial Union ought not to be attempted, nor secession deprecated, because the free development of the colonies would be checked, is sufficient to show that this article has been written before Sir Henry Maine's Popular Government, in which it was shown that the United States have stereotyped in their constitution the form of administration which prevailed when George III. was king, and it may with advantage be in this connection considered that the check, if any, on development which an Imperial union would entail would in all likelihood be infinitesimal as compared with the check to be created by the reality or by the fear of foreign aggression. Mr. Morley professes that he is not misled by any spurious analogy between a colony ready for independence and a grown-up son ready to enter life on his own account, nor by Turgot's comparison of colonies to fruit which hangs only on the tree until it is ripe. So far so good, but there are other requisites for a correct envisaging of this problem, and not least of all a constant watchfulness against the fallacy born of the double use of the word "country," first as a geographical and secondly as a political term. England is a country in the first sense, the British realm is a country in the other, and being such it stands in urgent need of some improvement of its organisation.

VICTORIAN YEAR-BOOK.

We have received, from the office of the Government Printer of Victoria, a copy of the "Victorian Year-Book for 1885-6," compiled by Mr. Henry Heylyn Hayter, C.M.G., Government Statist, &c., &c. The publication has now reached its thirteenth year of issue, and has grown to a volume of 850 pages. Victorian statistics are exhaustively dealt with, but Mr. Hayter finds a place in his pages for the principal figures of all the Australasian colonies; and, by means of cleverly-constructed tables, the whole mass of information is presented in convenient form for reference and comparison. The three folding tables at the beginning of the book, with which previous editions have made us familiar, have been revised and brought down to latest dates. The letterpress has also been carefully revised, and parts entirely re-written; additional tables and subjects of information have been taken in; and, in a word, a publication which has already made Mr. Hayter's name an authority in all matters of colonial statistics has now been made more valuable than ever.

One of the most interesting tables supplied is the summary of Australasian statistics. Very few readers of the book in this colony will fail to open out this table and follow the race between Victoria and New South Wales for pre-eminence in the leading lines of national progress. The comparative figures are given for the years 1873 to 1885 inclusive, and as population is the first requirement of new countries, the comparison in this respect is specially interesting. At the end of 1873 Victoria had a population of 772,059, and at the end of 1885 the numbers had risen to 991,867, showing an increase of 28·47 per cent. At the end of 1873 New South Wales had only a population of 553,833, but at the end of 1885 the numbers had risen to 957,914, thus showing an increase of 72·97 per cent. Mr. Hayter estimates that Victoria attained to a population of a million about the end of the first quarter of last year, or about one month in advance of New South Wales. But inasmuch as the net increase of population by immigration in New South Wales was almost double that of Victoria in 1885, he concludes that if the same rates of increase were maintained through 1886, Victoria has before this lost the pre-eminence as far as the population test is concerned. Important as increase by immigration may be, natural increase by excess of births over deaths is still more vital to a country's progress; and in this respect also the comparison is most strikingly favourable to the older colony. During the year 1873 there were 28,100 births in Victoria, and 21,444 in New South Wales. In 1885 there were 29,975 children born in Victoria, or an increase of only 6·67 per cent. over the figures for 1873; whereas in New South Wales there were 35,043 births in 1885, or an increase of 63·41 per cent. over the numbers in 1873. It must be mentioned, however, that the number of births in 1873 in Victoria seems to have been above the average for that colony. But, making the largest reasonable allowance for this, the contrast between the birth rates in the two colonies seems almost inexplicable.

Turning to statistics of colonial produce, it is singular to note that whilst New South Wales had only 868,093 acres under cultivation in the year 1885-6, against 2,405,157 acres in Victoria, the value of exports of home produce of all kinds from New South Wales slightly exceeds the value of exports of home produce by Victoria.

A paper by the president of the Board of Health forms a valuable appendix to the book. In addition to information as to the objects and operations of the board, the paper discusses the prevention of contagious diseases, regulations for public buildings, model bylaws for local boards of health; special measures for the prevention of smallpox, cholera, hydatids, typhoid fever, diphtheria, croup, &c. From the information given in this paper, it would appear that Victoria is specially threatened by typhoid and hydatid disease. It is estimated that 456 deaths are caused by typhoid in that colony every year; and that as regards the spread of hydatid disease, Victoria ranks second to Iceland, where one-sixth of the mortality is traced to its ravages. Another valuable appendix contains a summary of labour reports furnished by the municipal authorities throughout the various districts of the colony. Complete tariff tables of all the Australasian colonies are also given. In fact, the "Victorian Year Book" may be confidently turned to for conveniently summarised information on all colonial subjects of public import.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

We have received from the publisher "Fuller's County of Cumberland Directory for 1887." The sixth annual issue of this publication was purposely delayed somewhat in order that the directory data might be brought down to the commencement of the New Year. The information it previously included has been carefully revised, and several new features have been introduced. Amongst the additions will be found the more important clauses of several pastoral and agricultural Acts—such as "The Brands Registration Act," "Cattle Driving Act," and the "Impounding Act."

A pamphlet by the editor of the Daily Northern Argus, describing the history, geological formation, and prospects, of the famous Mount Morgan Gold-mine, is also to hand. The contents appeared in a series of articles in the author's newspaper, and are reprinted for wider circulation in the hope of preventing "any more bogus concerns being placed on the English market, in however deceptive a manner the name of Mount Morgan may be linked with North, South, East, or West."

From Messrs. B. D. Morehead and Co. we have received "Explanatory Remarks" on the Amending Acts of 1885 and 1886 of the Queensland Crown Lands Act of 1884. This is a supplement to a synopsis of the principal Act issued some time ago by the same firm.

We have also received, from the local manager of the "Queen Insurance Company" a copy of the company's "Jubilee Almanac" for 1887. Besides the diary and useful information to be found in previous issues, this number appropriately includes a portrait of her Majesty the Queen, and reminiscences of her life and reign. Really fine views of the Royal Palaces are also included in this neat little souvenir.

The following publications from the Institution of Civil Engineers, London, are also acknowledged:—"List of Members" as at the 69th anniversary, January 2, 1887, "Report of the Council for 1885-6," "Address of Mr. Edward Woods, President, November 9, 1886," and a Series of Papers and Discussions on "Concrete as applied in the Construction of Harbours." The last mentioned is illustrated by elaborate plates, and is a very valuable book on its subject.

EARLY DAYS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In your notice of the eighth part of the "Picturesque Australia" reference is made to the gravestone of James Ruse at Campbelltown. It may interest your readers to know that this James Ruse was the first person who landed in Australia to settle here.

In proof of this assertion let me quote the Sydney Gazette of Wednesday, June 20, 1827:—"A man named James Ruse, the first settler in New South Wales, was examined as a witness in a cause a few days since before the Supreme Court. He stated himself to have come out with the first fleet under Governor Phillip, and that he was the first person who set foot on New Holland on that occasion. Colonel Johnson claimed the honour of being the first who landed, but it appears he was carried ashore on the back of Ruse, who consequently must have been the first who trod the soil."

In the same paper is a paragraph which reads rather curiously now-a-days, and I may be pardoned for quoting it:—"The organ for St. James's Church is daily expected from England. Those who have never had an opportunity of experiencing its influence can scarcely form an idea of the sublime effect produced by the deep full tones of the organ, in addition to the voices of the choristers, in the performance of sacred music.

'Devotion borrows music's tone,
And music takes devotion's wing,
And, like the bird that hails the sun,
They soar to heaven, and soaring sing.'"

From the latter paragraph it would appear that colonists up to that date (1827) had had no organ to listen to.

Can any of your readers say when and where the first organ was erected in Sydney? I am, &c.,
EDWARD CAMPBELL.
Wanstead, near Sydney, March 2.

The Pall Mall Gazette says it is announced that the National Company's mail steamer America has been sold to the Italian Government, who intend to add her to the navy as an armed cruiser. The America was one of the Liverpool steamers altered by the British Government to adapt her for an armed cruiser during the war scare. She is a remarkably fine vessel, and steams, according to the American official record, between 15 and 16 knots an hour.

AMUSEMENTS.

THEATRE ROYAL.

A very good audience witnessed the final performance for the present of Mr. Leonard Grover's comedy-drama, "The Tomboy," at the Theatre Royal, last evening. Miss Swain acted the character of Carrie the Tomboy with the same artistic verve and unflagging animal spirits that distinguished her first performance. She was well received, and her rendering of Arditi's vocal waltz, "Il Bacio," generously and deservedly encored, while her singing, acting, and dancing secured great applause. There can be no doubt that a play like "The Tomboy," invertebrate and impossible thought it be, is much appreciated by Sydney audiences when it serves to show off such original talent as this American comedienne possesses. Miss Swain has made herself a great favourite with all sorts and conditions of Sydney playgoers, and should she appear in any of the roles with which her name is associated in the States, she is sure of a good reception.

This evening Mr. Martin Simonsen's Royal Italian Opera company will make their first appearance in Sydney at the Theatre Royal, when Verdi's opera, "Il Trovatore," will be produced with a strong cast. Signora Emilia Cinte will appear as Leonora, Signorina Giovanna Cavallieri as Azucena, Signor Pasquale Lazzarini as Manrico, Signor Guiseppe Pimazzoni as the Count de Luna, and Signor Attilio Buzzi as Fernando. Signor Robert Hazon will be the conductor, Signor Sormani, of Milan, has provided the scenery, Signor Tomsperoni the dresses, and Mr. Harcourt Lee is chorus master. The overture will commence at 7.30, and the performance at 8 sharp.

WELSH CONCERT.

On Tuesday evening a grand Welsh concert was held in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, to commemorate St. David's Day. The hall was crowded with an enthusiastic audience, and the occasion being essentially a Welsh one, the programme included a large number of Welsh songs and melodies, with names which the average Englishman is utterly unable to pronounce. Amongst the most successful numbers were the Welsh chorus, "Cydgan y Morwyr," by the Welsh Glee Club; the song, "My Life for thee," by Mr. A. Edward; the Welsh song, "Myfi Syn Magur Babar," sung with great cleverness by Miss Mary Jones, a precocious little maiden of six; the song, "At the Ferry," by another Miss Jones; the Welsh duet, "Fleu Forgan ai Wraig," by Miss Morris and Mr. J. Davies; and the Welsh song, "Mae Robin yn Swil," by Mrs. Parker. Mr. Fred. Leston, the well-known serio-comic artist, also sang a number of "mellifluous melodies," with immense success. Altogether the concert may be said to have been most successful, and the promoters are to be congratulated on the manner in which the programme was arranged and carried out.

Signor Agrati's European Variety Company has been drawing fair average audiences at the Academy of Music during the week, and the hall was well filled last evening. Wainratta's performance on an almost invisible wire is a very perfect exhibition of balancing, and the whole of his "act" is astonishing and graceful. Miss Ida Heath is a well-trained danseuse, and her changes are effected with great quickness. Many of her dances are the embodiment of the poetry of motion, and in all her steps she shows more than common skill and knowledge. Miss Ada Venetta, Miss Alice Conway, the Ryans, and the Heaths are above the average music hall artist in ability, and secure great applause; but Mr. Clark, a fairly clever banjo player, does not display either discrimination or good taste in many of his witticisms. Signor Agrati's exhibition is a novelty in Sydney, and should secure a good attendance.

Mr. Walter S. Craven's comedy "Hide and Seek" has only drawn fair audiences at the New Opera House through the week, but the play is so intrinsically amusing that it should increase in public favour. In addition to being a cleverly-constructed and smartly-written piece of stage workmanship, it is efficiently acted by Miss Valance, Miss Gray, Miss Melville, Messrs. Gerald, Hesford, Stilling, Duff, Thompson, and the author. There will be no change of programme at this theatre for the present.

Messrs. Dampier and Kruger's drama, "An English Lass," was played for the last time for the present last evening, and to-night Henry Pettitt's domestic drama, "A Royal Pardon" will be revived for one night only. Mr. Dampier will appear as Job Totterag, and in the course of the play will assume four other characters. On Monday evening the spectacular play "Michael Strogoff" will be produced for the first time at the Standard Theatre with a strong cast.

There will be no change of programme at the Alhambra Music Hall until Monday evening, when Mr. Hosea Easton will make his first appearance. Mr. Frank Smith's Company, which is now an excellent one, including Mr. Cowan, Mr. Alfred James, Mr. Sam Keenan, and Miss Beatrice James, have been doing excellent business during the week, and last night the Alhambra was filled with an audience who appreciated the programme thoroughly.

A very large attendance has been the rule at the Exhibition Building, Prince Alfred Park, and the new Japanese Village Company, in conjunction with Fryer's Circus, have been very successful in pleasing the visitors. On Tuesday next, in addition to present attractions, Mr. W. S. Maltby, the champion tricyclist and trick bicycle rider, and Mr. A. G. Agenton, the roller skater, will make their first appearance in Sydney at the Exhibition Building under the management of Mr. Pemberton W. Willard.

The mechanical model of the Strasburg Clock is still on view at the Apollo Hall, corner of Market and George streets, from 2 till 5 and from 7 to 10. There will be a special matinee this afternoon for children, admission sixpence, or family tickets can be obtained admitting six adults for four shillings.

Dr. Lynn's latest sensational mystery "Ihdas" is on view at the Australian Waxworks from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.

The Cottier Family will give their popular entertainment at the Protestant Hall this evening.

A dramatic version of Mrs. Henry Wood's phenomenally successful novel, "East Lynne," was played at the Gaiety Theatre, and attracted a fair audience, who much appreciated the performance. This evening Augustin Daly's play of "Leah, the Forsaken" will be produced. Miss Julia Esmond will appear as Leah, Miss Marie Wilton as Madalina, and Mr. Claremont as Nathan. Mr. South will appear as Rudolph, and other characters will be sustained by the Gaiety Dramatic Company.

Les Cloches de Corneville was played at the Criterion Theatre last evening, and will be withdrawn to-night, when Miss Emilie Melville will make her first appearance as Clarette in Sydney, and the other characters of Madame Angot will be interpreted by the members of Messrs. Rignold and Allison's Comic Opera Company.

A grand concert, the feature of which was the engagement of Mons. Poussard, the well-known violinist, was given in the School of Arts, Ashfield, last night. The attendance was not so large as was to have been expected from the high-class character of the concert, but the audience made up in their expressions of appreciation what they lacked in numerical power. The first number was the overture "Semiramide" (Rossini), arranged as a duo for piano and violin, by Mons. Poussard and M. de Valmency. Both performers displayed great power and accuracy of execution, and well merited the applause with which their efforts were received. Mr. Hallewell, the favourite basso, who was in splendid voice, gave "Vulcan's Song" (Gounod) and Mendelsohn's "I am a Roamer." M. de Valmency had full scope for the display of his taste and power as a pianist in the solos "Air Hongrois" (Liszt) and "Minnehaha." (Wely). Madame Poussard sang the "Jewel Song" (from "Faust") and the ballad, "Old Old Words" (Boeckel), and took part with Mr. Hallewell in the duets "La ci darem" (from Mozart's "Don Juan"), and "Master and Scholar" (Firanante's). Mons. Poussard played in the first part the "Caprice Hongrois (Ernst) and, overcame the difficulties of bowing in that composition in such a manner as to obtain an enthusiastic encore. The closing item was the violin solo, "Scotch Carnival," a composition of M. Poussard's, comprising several well-known Scotch airs and an imitation of the bagpipes. Mr. C. Huenerbein acted as accompanist, and deserves considerable credit for having organised the concert.

"C. W. C." ON PLOUGHS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Your correspondent's knowledge of ploughs is about in accord with his knowledge of Political Economy, or, perhaps, to speak more correctly, his apparent want of knowledge is only on a par with that of all protectionists, who make all sorts of rash assertions to try and prove their theory.

The latest production in this respect is from the pen of "C. W. C.," who, in the most unblushing way, states that in "Sydney you can scarcely get a locally-made article of this description for love or money, and simply because they are not made." A more gross inaccuracy was never written, as anyone may see by passing down Pitt-street, at the corner of which street and Bridge-street Messrs. Hudson Brothers, Limited, have any number of ploughs for sale; and if none suitable can be obtained there, Mr. Ritchie, and others who have agricultural implement works between Sydney and Granville, can doubtless supply the article required.

Let me tell "C. W. C." that there are farmers and farmers. In Victoria a very large area is under the plough, and the farmer, with an average crop of six bushels to the acre, and price 3s. per bushel, has to be, and is, content; but in New South Wales, with an average crop of 15 bushels to the acre and price 3s. 6d. per bushel, the farmer is said not to be able to pay his way. A little more energy and the more frequent use of labour-saving implements and machinery would place the New South Wales farmer far ahead of his Victorian neighbour, of whom "C. W. C." knows so little and writes so boastfully. I am, &c.,

The Chinese are noted gourmets, and the young Emperor of China, the Peking correspondent of the Débats tells us, has as keen a relish for the pleasures of the table as any epicure in his dominions. Gastronomic taste varies with the latitude and longitude more perhaps than any other; and the Emperor's notion of a good dinner is certainly not one that Brillat Savarin would have accepted. Eight plats form the staple of the menu. The Emperor insists on having "bear's paws, antelope-tails, ducks' tongues, torpedo eels' eggs, camel's hump, monkeys' lips, and marrow-bones" served at his table every day in the year; and, though the cordons-bleus of the imperial kitchen tempt his appetite with an endless variety of supplementary dishes, it is on these that he practically dines. They are esteemed the very choicest delicacies by all Celestial lovers of good cheer, and have been so from time immemorial.

In the Import markets to-day a moderate business was transacted. The week has been marked by the revival usual at the beginning of the month, though the volume of business done is far from being so great as should be ordinarily expected with such favourable prospects as are before the country. In breadstuffs there is a better trade. A considerable line of Adelaide flour was quitted on private terms. Quotations for bakers' lines are as follow:—Adelaide, £10 10s. to £10 15s.; South Australian country brands, £10; New South Wales, £9 15s. to £10 5s.; Victorian, £9 10s. to £9 12s. 6d.; roller makes, £10 10s. to £11 5s. Old flour selling at from 10s. to 20s. extra. Best samples New South Wales wheat are worth 4s.; inferior from 3s. 6d. More inquiry noticed for tea; about 600 halves placed at from 52s. 6d. to 70s., with some smaller transactions. Again there was a very large amount of duty paid on tea at the Customs to-day, no less than £4553 being received. During the week, duty has been paid on 35 chests, 10,432 half-chests, 5516 boxes, and 25 packages, or more than one-third of the whole of the bonded stocks. The quantity in bond now does not exceed 800,000lb. This great reduction makes it hardly worth the while of the Treasurer to increase the duty if so disposed until the new season's tea comes to hand. There is no special movement in coffee, the market being steady at 9½d. for No. 1 Ceylon plantation. Barry's chicory, 2½d. to 2¾d. Epps' cocoa, 1s. 8½d. Sugar is in brisk demand, and best whites are selling at from £25 to £25 10s. per ton; off whites, at £23 to £24; yellows, at £18 10s. to £21; ration sorts, from £17. In dried fruits we note sales of currants at up to 6d., close at hand—rather less accepted for fruit further off; raisins are commanding rather more notice—elemes at 5d., and sultanas at 5¾d.; dates, 3½d. Salt is dull of sale. Liverpool coarse at 67s. 6d., fine at 75s. to 80s. Candles are still depressed in value, and 6½d. to 6¾d. is quoted for stearines. Best table rice is scarcely so firm, though £16 to £16 10s. is still asked. Stocks of the lower grade are light, consequent on the recent irregularity in calling of steamers at the rice ports; £12 to £14 is the range of quotations. Sago and tapioca are scarce, owing to the same cause; 2¾d. is quoted, to arrive. In brewers' goods there is little to notice, only a small trade inquiry being experienced for both malt and hops. In liquids, we note sales of Tennent's ale at current rates; with a moderate inquiry during the last few days for all the favourite brands of ale at up to 10s. 6d. for quarts, and 7s. 6d. for pints. Pig stout is worth 9s. 6d. and 6s. 6d., pints and quarts respectively. Hennessy's brandy dull of sale at late rates. Considerable quantities of Geneva have been sold to arrive at 9s. 9d.; and as shipments advised are light, the statistical position is better for holders. Lowndes' rum is firmer, and up to 3s. 4d. has to be paid for small lines of quarters. The regular trade in wines and spirits has been materially interfered with by the realisation of stocks on estates in liquidation, and by the shipments, ex Glaneuse. In metals, there is a fairly good demand for galvanised iron at from £17 for the lower grades to £18 for Orb and £18 5s. for Gospel Oak. Somewhat more inquiry noticed for 24-gauge iron. Sheet lead is weaker, and £19 is a full quotation—business having been done at a lower price. Stocks of IC Coke tin plates are light, and, after sales on the spot at 18s., higher prices have been paid for forward delivery. Wire nails still done at 12s. 6d. Small lots of fencing wire continue to be moved off at the late quotations. Muntz metal is worth 5½d. to 5¾d., according to parcel. A good deal of business has been done in dynamite, consequent on an advance in the home market; and, although sales have been made at a lower price from second hands, 1s. 10d. is now the quotation. Oils are in but limited request, except China, which has been more freely asked for within the last day or two—2s. 8½d. may be quoted; castor, 2s. 9d. to 2s. 9½d., according to parcel; raw and boiled still at 2s. 10d. to 3s 1d. in [illegible]. In chemicals, we have to note rather more business in whiting, at 50s.; but few large transactions mentioned in other drugs. Soda crystals are going off at £5 2s. 6d.; caustic soda, 60 per cent., at £9 10s. For carbonate of soda, £18 10s. was paid. Cream of tartar, worth 1s. 4½d.; and tartaric acid, 1s. 10d. in bulk.

The Building Societies' and Mortgage Companies' Gazette, published in Melbourne, now issues a Sydney edition, and the paper in future is to be on intercolonial lines. The building society business of the colonies has now assumed important dimensions. It is of interest to many thousands of persons, and the Gazette will therefore, no doubt, obtain a large circulation.

The R.M.S. Carthage cleared at the Customs to-day for London with 1472 bales wool, 3715 ingots tin (125 tons 2qr. 15lb.) 1019 ingots copper (8 tons 18cwt. 0qr. 15lb.), 2155 cases meats, 9 bars silver ore (£2700), 30 bales leather, 30 bales basils, 122 pieces timber, 1 parcel jewellery (£303), 9 cases books, 1 cask wine, 1 parcel gold ore, 3 cases cigars and sundries.

The North German Company's steamer Hohenzollern cleared at the Customs to-day for Bremen, via ports, with 284 bales wool, 147 bundles sheepskins, 1800 sacks wheat, 5 casks arrowroot, 64 bags matte (4 tons 1cwt. 2qr.), 564 cases champagne, 15 cases kauri gum, and sundries.

In the exports by the ship Sophocles, for London, as published yesterday, the 160 tons malt should read 160 tons matte.

The following was the Customs revenue received to-day:—

Spirits, £2166 2s. 5d.; wine (still), £207 15s.; wine (sparkling), £27; ale, porter, and beer (in wood), £12 10s.; ale, porter, and beer (in bottles), £70 12s. 3d.; tobacco and snuff, £300 15s.; cigars, £77 6s.; cigarettes, £394 13s. 9d.; tea, £4553 3s. 2d.; sugar (unrefined), £723 0s. 10d.; rice, £59 2s. 10d.; dried fruits, £60; nuts, 9s. 4d.; malt, £9 15s.; specific duty, £900 14s. 8d.; ad valorem, £1130 6s. 3d.; harbour and light rates, £18 16s. 8d; pilotage (Sydney), £144 13s. 8d.; harbour dues, £22; excise on tobacco, £667 1s. 8d.; fisheries royalty, £29 8s. Total, £11,776 2s. 10d.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

SATURDAY, MARCH 5, 1887.

In view of the great dulness of the times here and elsewhere, the final report of the Royal Commission on Depression of Trade and Industry in England is worthy of attention. The Commission was appointed in August, 1885, and submitted the present report in December, 1886. It was composed of 18 members, among whom were the late Earl of Iddesleigh and Professor Bonamy Price. It selected the last twenty years for comparison and investigation, and confined its inquiry to four industries—iron and coal trades, textile industries, agriculture, and shipping. The subject of inquiry was one in which many conflicting causes and conclusions were involved, and it is not to be wondered at if the members of the Commission were not all in agreement. Upon the facts established they were in accord; but upon the remedy for the depression of trade they were at variance. They found that the depression began about the year 1875, and has continued until now, with the exception of the years 1881-2-3, and "has affected the trade and industry generally, but more especially those branches which are connected with agriculture." They found that it meant a diminution, and in some cases an absence, of profit for the capitalist, with a corresponding diminution of employment for the labouring classes. In the failure of the agricultural industry can be found many of the causes for failure in other industries. Continental countries, say the Commission, with the United States, by bounties and tariffs have been able to compete more than successfully with English industry. India and the United States have poured in grain at prices with which English farmers have not been able to compete. If agriculture declines, it is contended, all other industries must decline more or less. But while insisting on this, it is further submitted that in departments outside of agriculture there has still been a constant tendency to produce, even with less demand and falling prices. If there has been continuous production and falling prices, some sections of the population must, at any rate, get the benefit; and the Commission conclude that while there is a diminution of interest on capital invested, there is not apparent so proportionate a decrease in the labourer's wages, besides the fact that the value of his money is greater. With much that is discomforting, there are still some alleviating conclusions drawn by the Commissioners. They judge that the accumulation of capital, and the amount of property assessed to the income tax, are greater than ever before, and that the general prosperity has advanced. The number of persons with incomes less than £2000 a-year has increased at a more rapid rate than the population. While the number with incomes above £2000 has increased at a less rapid rate, the number with incomes above £5000 has actually diminished; and the lower the income the more rapid the rate of increase. The majority of the Commission held to the position that "if the aggregate quantity of commodities produced is on the increase, and is growing at a more rapid rate than the population, we cannot regard the depression in particular industries or among a particular class of producers as an indication of a corresponding national loss;" but from this a minority of four dissented. The weight, however, of argument and evidence was with the majority. It was shown that trade had not fallen off in volume, and the output of commodities had not diminished. The complaints have been from the producing classes chiefly. They have had to be satisfied with a lower margin of profit, and in some cases with no profit at all. Besides, it is shown that, while not at all universal in its application, the supply has been in excess of the demand.

The admission is frankly made that there has not been an expansion of trade during the years under inquiry, and that the great severity of competition that attends the accumulation has not been checked, as it generally is, by this expansion. Producers have gone on producing, and the volume of trade is as great as it ever has been; but there has resulted over-production in certain classes of commodities, for which there is no market, owing to the lack of purchasing power in some other producing classes; but there still remains the difficulty that the over-production has lasted over a period of twenty years. The home market is overstocked. In the year 1885 the loss in purchasing power of the classes connected with agriculture was £42,800,000, and previous years no doubt proportionately. For the decay in agriculture there seems to be little remedy. Other countries have soils superior, and can produce at less cost, and until they are worked out the decay must continue. From this declension have come a host of evils. It has not only seriously injured the purchasing power of some of the consumers of English manufactures, but it has driven to the cities from the rural districts large numbers of unemployed men. Unless the present rate of production continues, this evil will be increased, and there will remain but one resource for this class, and that is emigration. The Commission have concluded that, the condition of the labour classes in England is vastly superior to what it was twenty years ago, and, despite the present irregular employment, their condition, on the whole, compares favourably with that of their competitors in other countries. They are of opinion also that the Trades Unions have not contributed in any way to the present depression, and commend them for propriety and judgment in the conduct of their affairs during recent years.

The recommendations of the Commission are not very many, but they are important. As one great means of securing success, a necessary object to be aimed at is the cheapening of the cost of production, "so far as it can be done consistently with the maintenance of sound quality and good workmanship." Search must be made for new markets, and greater vigilance used towards the keen and successful competition of foreign countries, while a greater readiness to accommodate productions to local requirements and tastes must obtain. This, of course, is not very definite, even if it is not hopeless. It will be remembered that the Commission was appointed by the Conservative party on entering office a year or two ago, and its institution was not entirely without political purpose and significance. A number of statesmen were requested to act on the Commission, but declined the appointment. It is also understood that a number of those actually appointed were fair-traders, and not so much importance is, after all, to be attached to some their conclusions. The real causes of the depression are undoubtedly owing partly to over-production, and partly to the appreciation of gold. The important point to be noted is, however, that the volume of trade has not lessened, though there has been a depreciation in value; and this depreciation has fallen chiefly upon the employer, and not upon the labourer. The position of the operative classes is not greatly altered for the worse. The falling off in agriculture, and the unprofitableness of manufacture, have doubtless thrown upon the country a number of unemployed. But despite all this, there remains the fact that England is yet the centre of manufacture, while at the same time she is suffering from the protective tariffs of other countries and the superiority of German manufacture. It is also to be remembered that trade is looking up and the dark days are passing.

As every other man in the community is a consumer of raw oysters, or would be if he had his own way; and as nearly every other woman eats oysters raw or cooked, with the same condition annexed, there is likely to be considerable lamentation over the prospect of our oyster supply for the autumnal and winter months of 1887. The Northern fisheries seem to be worst off. To begin with the Hawkesbury River fisheries:—The natural beds in this river, perhaps the most valuable oyster river in the whole colony, if only the oysters could be protected from the smothering mud which even a small flood brings down the main channel, have for a long time been confined to a few small tributaries. Oysters, however, brought from the lower waters thrive wonderfully in places protected from floods and yet sufficiently removed from the raw and innutritious salt water of the Estuary. But even in the choicest spots there has been a very poor fall of spat, and, to make matters worse, the "worm disease" (as it is called) has been making sad havoc in both natural and artificial deposits.

The Hunter comes next. For nearly four years the beds in this river, once the pride of oyster lovers, and the harvest of oyster dredgers, have been in a deplorable state. The natural deposits seem to have come to an end, and the oysters placed on the denuded beds die. It is more than probable that the same agencies which have proved so fatal to the Hunter River oysters, will be found to extend to all the fisheries of the colony in a greater or less degree; and that they can be traced to a great extent to the sequence of drought years from which every product natural or artificial has suffered so severely. After the Hunter, come the Port Stephens' Oyster Fisheries. Port Stephens is in many respects a remarkable exception to the Northern Rivers Fisheries. It is not subject to floods as is the Hawkesbury, the Manning, or the Clarence. For that reason this fishery has never been brought to the state to which floods have sometimes brought those rivers. The Karuah River drains a very small area compared with the smallest of them, and its estuary is even larger than that of the Hawkesbury. Moderate crops of oysters have always been obtainable from the Port Stephens beds, even at the worst seasons; but this season not only has there been a bad fall of spat, but the "worm disease" has set in just as it has done in less favoured rivers. After Port Stephens come the Cape Hawke, Camden Haven, and Manning Fisheries. It is the same story with them. The spatting has been almost wholly a failure. There is no growth on the natural deep beds, and "bankers" or foreshore oysters laid down on those beds die. At Port Macquarie the condition of things is the same; that fishery produces only a limited supply of foreshore oysters, its one deep bed of drift oysters seems to have been completely destroyed.

The small fisheries at the Nambucca and Bellinger, and other places between Port Macquarie and the Clarence, have so little to show for themselves that they may be passed over. The Clarence, with its once famous lake beds, comes next. This fishery has also suffered from bad spatting, and from the same troubles which have afflicted the other river fisheries, particularly from the "Congewoi." The Richmond has suffered less, and there a moderate crop may be expected, but not before the spring of the year. We understand that the Tweed is in much the same condition as the Richmond. If we cast our eyes southward, there is, unhappily, only very little consolation in the prospect. The Southern Oyster Fisheries are hardly comparable in productive power with the Northern. The George's River beds have long been in a state bordering on destitution—the march of civilisation has been altogether too much for them. Port Hacking was never more than a reserve for foreshore oysters. It is gradually falling away from the same causes which afflict George's River. The next fishery of any importance is the Shoalhaven River. There has been a very poor fall of spat in this river, and therefore it cannot, at least during the forthcoming season, do much to raise the average to its normal figures.

The Clyde River comes next topographically; though, in productive power, this river is the first of all the Southern rivers. There has been a good fall of spat on the Clyde, and we are now obtaining from that fishery perhaps the best oysters in the market. Between the Clyde and Twofold Bay the oyster-bearing rivers and inlets are not of much commercial importance, although the Tuross and a few other fisheries are occasionally favoured with good seasons. It is, however, satisfactory to know that the "worm disease" so far has not been anything like so destructive on the southern as on the northern rivers. In a lecture delivered at the Royal Institution in 1883 Professor HUXLEY, after describing the ravages of the dog-whelk, whelk tingle, and the boring sponge, said that a very curious instance of mischief done by animals which mine in the oyster's shell is given by a burrowing annelid (Leucodire) which was recently brought under his notice by Sir HENRY THOMPSON:—"The Leucodire drives burrows into the shell, and lives in them without any evil intent towards the oyster. But the burrows fill with fine mud, and this, spreading into the vacuities of the shell, gives rise to inky patches, which look unpleasant when the oyster is opened, and damage its commercial value, though the flavour of the oyster is nowise impaired." One great cause of the destruction of oysters in the Hunter River beds was a black slime which made its appearance in the mantle, and soon became fatal to the oyster. Whether this slime has any connection with a worm or any other enemy we do not know, but are informed that the subject has been thoroughly considered and reported on by Mr. HASWELL. But, in addition to other adversities, the oyster supply has been suffering of late years from one which has become chronic in England and France—bad spatting years. The same authority, Professor HUXLEY, says that "Larval oysters are extremely sensitive to cold, and any sudden fall in the temperature of the air during the swarming time is fatal to them. Even the adult oyster is readily killed by sudden frosts if the water is sufficiently shallow to allow the change of temperature to penetrate. Great heat is equally pernicious."

It is a very unusual thing for our rivers to be visited by sudden changes of temperature which would be likely to destroy the oyster larvæ. It is likely that the destruction of the oyster in its early stages, which is now so widely complained of, is due to some other cause than change of temperature. Probably the drought years which have brought such havoc on terra firma, have had baleful results under water. In ordinary seasons our rivers bring down from their sources much lime in a state readily absorbed by the oyster young or mature. When the supply of lime carried down the rivers is insufficient—as it is in dry seasons—the oyster is deprived of the material necessary for his development, and probably the larval oyster dies in consequence. If this want of lime-water is found to be the accompaniment of dry seasons, we may, perhaps, safely ascribe much of the mischief which is now so rife in our fisheries to the cause to which Mr. DIBBS ascribed his falling revenue—the drought. On that assumption the river floods which have now succeeded to the drought throughout the colony ought to be the inauguration of good spatting seasons; and the oyster lessee ought to be as thankful as the squatters for the abundant rainfall of the spring and summer months. Some of our most experienced oyster cultivators declare that the fresh water will destroy the worm and clean the beds of quantities of spongous rubbish which have been accumulating during the last three years. Let us hope that the copious rainfall we have been blessed with will produce both these results, and that the beds on which so much money has been and is being spent will soon recover their original productiveness. The subject we have been treating is an important one, and if the attention of the Fisheries Commissioners has not yet been directed to it we now bring it under their notice, in the hope that they may be induced to institute a searching inquiry into the various afflictions from which oysters are now suffering. We are hardly on the threshold of successful oyster culture, but the present is a conspicuous opportunity of acquiring knowledge which may hereafter be turned to good account.

Both Sir HENRY PARKES and Mr. J. H. YOUNG, in letters which are published elsewhere, repudiate the suggestion that an understanding was come to when the Ministry was formed that, as Mr. YOUNG was not given a seat in the Cabinet, he should have the support of the Government for the Speakership of the Assembly. Sir HENRY PARKES says that in forming his Ministry he never once thought of the Speakership, and held no communication whatever with Mr. YOUNG; while the latter declares that he has never put forward a claim for office in any Ministry or for the Speakership. These denials must be accepted, of course, and the report to which we felt it our duty to refer must be put down amongst those statements that newspapers are obliged to take notice of—statements that appear at first sight to rest upon a foundation of some sort, but fall to pieces when the full light of day is turned upon them. The gentlemen concerned are to be commended for the explicitness of their denial. But after all, there is nothing so very extraordinary in the rumour that has got about. Understandings and compacts of the kind referred to are not unknown in political life; if not in this colony, at all events in other communities, and some politicians would fail to see any great harm in them as a reason in itself why the Press should call attention to such reports as that to which we referred yesterday. We are glad to find, however, that both Sir HENRY PARKES and Mr. YOUNG take a more exalted view of the obligations of Minister and supporter when the selection of a Speaker for the Assembly is in question, and we may express the hope that our politicians generally will do their part in maintaining the high standard that has been placed before them.

We are quite in sympathy with Mr. SUTHERLAND in his desire to place the trams upon a more popular footing; but there is more than one thing to be considered. The tram system as a whole does not pay, and the Department, or the Minister, might well be proud of finding a solution of the problem that presents itself, namely, how to make the tram service cheaper and more frequent, and at the same time more profitable. Different authorities take different views of the question. Mr. SUTHERLAND, in reply to a deputation from Botany yesterday, said that the Department was losing money because it was short of motive-power, and was, therefore, unable to increase the accommodation. This is a very different view from that taken by the Department under the regime of a former Minister. It was said not very long ago that to make the service pay it would be necessary to reduce the number of the trams, and now we have the MINISTER FOR WORKS declaring that the Department loses money because the scarcity of motive-power prevents it from running trams more frequently. It is important that we should know which is the correct view, for upon the decision that is come to the future of our tramway system must in a large measure depend. Mr. SUTHERLAND'S view seems to be to run more trams and to reduce the fares with the object of encouraging traffic. He begins with the Botany line but in a partial way. What he proposes to do is to charge lower fares for those trams by which the workmen chiefly travel to and from Botany, establishing, in fact, workmen's trams, with the condition, however, that anyone who likes may travel by them. The innovation is a perfectly legitimate one, provided that the Minister can see his way to a substantial increase in the traffic. Cheap trams that attracted large numbers of passengers would be advantageous in a special way, apart from any benefit that the working classes might gain. They would be the means of drawing off population from the centre and distributing it about, thus relieving the congestion that is so greatly felt in the metropolitan districts. The experiment which Mr. SUTHERLAND intends to make will be watched with interest.

In another column a correspondent complains of the cruelty shown by cabdrivers towards their horses, and appeals to the Animals Protection Society to make every effort to suppress the evil. The complaint is a just one. In all large cities horses attached to public vehicles seem to have the ill-humour and carelessness of the driver put upon them by means of whip and bit; but perhaps more strenuous efforts have been made in a few metropolitan centres to stop it. In London great vigilance is used by the agents of the Animals Protection Societies, and with most salutary effect. In New York the name of Mr. BERGH has been a dreaded one for years to all tyrannical or neglectful drivers. Careless and fast driving and unnecessary whipping have become less common than formerly, and the extension of the principle here cannot be too warmly recommended. Our Animals Protection Society has done good work in connection with stockyards and such places, but its watchfulness might very properly be extended to prevent the ill-treatment of animals. Cruelty or neglect is to be condemned when applied to any animal, but it deserves special reprobation when such animals as the horse suffer. Where there are some flagrant breaches of the law a few summary committals would do a very great deal to repress the evil, but where there is no apparent check there does not seem to be enough native kindness in the nature of the average driver to give his horse reasonable and intelligent care. One of the brightest signs of the refining effect of modern civilisation would be the sensible and kind treatment of the brute creation by the human being, a little higher in the scale of existence. It is to be hoped that some move will be made in the direction named.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE Sydney portion of the English mails, ex Garonne, dated London, 28th January, will arrive in time for delivery from the General Post Office on Monday morning.

MINISTERS met in Cabinet yesterday afternoon and transacted a good deal of business, some of which is referred to elsewhere. Further careful consideration was given to the Estimates with a view to reducing them as much as possible, and it is probable that a very material reduction will be effected.

As the day for the opening of Parliament approaches speculation is busy with regard to the prospects of the session. So far as can be ascertained, the Opposition are inclined to let things go smoothly—that is to say, to take no factious or extreme course. It is said that Mr. Melville intends to indulge in a tirade against the Government, and particularly against Sir Henry Parkes, as soon after the opening of Parliament as an opportunity is afforded him: but beyond this it does not appear at present that on the opening day there is to be any waste of time. The Opposition have not yet chosen a leader. The member of the party said to be most in favour for the position is Mr. J. P. Abbott, but it is doubtful whether that gentleman will consent to be chosen. Mr. Abbott left Sydney for Wentworth on a visit to his new constituents last Thursday evening. The names of Mr. J. P. Garvan and Mr. W. J. Lyne are also mentioned for the leadership, and if Mr. Abbott should finally decline the position, the choice will probably lie between Mr. Garvan and Mr. Lyne. With regard to the Speakership, we are assured though Mr. J. H. Young has been spoken of as likely to be the Ministerial candidate the Government have not up to the present finally decided upon any candidate for the office. One gentleman has been asked to consider the matter, and he has taken until to-day to decide whether he will or will not become a candidate. If he should decide to allow himself to be nominated the Government will probably support him: but it is thought he will decline. Nothing in the way of details can, of course, be said of the Government programme for the session. Particulars of that nature will not be disclosed until his Excellency the Governor delivers his opening speech. But it is understood that it is the intention of the Government to make the session a financial one, by which is meant that the business will be confined to adopting measures for getting rid of the deficit, establishing the principles of public taxation, making provision for equalising the revenue and the expenditure, and in other ways putting the finances of the country in proper order. This, it is considered, can be done in seven or eight weeks, and the idea then is that Parliament should meet again in June or July, and proceed to deal with measures other than those relating to finance. It has been thought that a great deal of discussion will take place, and strong opposition shown, whenever the Government bring forward their proposal to repeal the Customs Duties Act; but this opposition will probably be materially lessened by the fact that the Government are not likely to propose the immediate repeal of the Act. The intention is, we believe, that the repeal shall take effect at the end of the present year. The Ministerial dinner on Monday evening will be very largely attended.

THE Government intend to appoint immediately a Royal Commission to inquire into the practice and procedure of the Supreme Court, with a view to their making, after their inquiry, any suggestions for improvement which may appear to be necessary or desirable in the way of furthering the administration of justice, or lessening the costs of litigation. The work to which the commissioners will set themselves is regarded as of urgent necessity, and is expected to have a very beneficial result. The president of the commission will be his Honor Chief Justice Darley, and the members generally of the commission will be so chosen as to be fairly representative of the whole community. Some will be members of the legal profession, and the others, gentlemen outside that profession who are likely to bring to bear on the inquiry the general abilities and knowledge of the subject requisite for a successful performance of the duties entrusted to them. All those who have been asked to accept seats on the commission have not yet replied, and, therefore, the names of the commissioners cannot yet be stated. Two who have accepted are the Hon. Dr. Garran, M.L.C., and Mr. W. M'Millan, M.L.A., president of the Chamber of Commerce.

AN important decision has been arrived at by the Cabinet with regard to the unemployed. Yesterday on a minute submitted by the Minister for Lands (Hon. Thomas Garrett) it was decided to open up reproductive works in the country, by which the redundant labour in the colony will be absorbed in needed and useful purposes, and an end put, it is hoped, to the agitation in connection with the question of the unemployed. The works upon which it is proposed the men shall be employed are, we are informed, necessary and such as ought to be undertaken, and they will be profitable to the Government. The details of the scheme will be made public in due course, but it may be stated here that one important part of what is proposed is the employment of the surplus labour in clearing the land in the interior infested with pine scrub.

LAST evening the Hon. James Inglis (Minister for Public Instruction) opened the School of Arts at Kogarah, in the presence of a large number of the residents. The Minister delivered a brief address, and a concert followed, which passed off successfully.

THE result of the inspection of the Central Police Court by the Hon. W. Clarke, Minister for Justice, on Thursday, is that he is going to recommend to the Cabinet that a new building be proceeded with at once, and that it be erected on the site upon which the present police court stands. Mr. Clarke regards the site that was some time ago purchased in Liverpool-street as unsuitable for the purpose in view in every respect; and in connection with that piece of land there are a number of leases current, extending from five to ten years, which, if the new Court were erected there, would have to be purchased. The Liverpool-street site would, in Mr. Clarke's opinion, be much more suitable for the purposes of a technical college, and he proposes to suggest to his colleagues that the land be handed over to the Department of Public Instruction with that object. If the new police court were erected on the site at present occupied, the business of the court could be carried on without interruption in the old premises while the new ones were being built.

IT will be remembered that sometime ago negotiations were opened between the authorities at the General Post Office and the owners of the land on the north side of the new street, which it is proposed should pass by the Post Office from George-street to Pitt-street, for the purchase at a nominal value of a certain strip of land required for widening the street. The idea of the Postmaster-General was that as this new street—or, more correctly, promenade—for it was proposed to restrict it to pedestrian traffic—would be 75 feet wide, and very attractive by reason of the Post Office colonnade, the erection of a large ornamental fountain and other embellishments, it would for business purposes be one of the most valuable localities in the city, and it was considered that the privilege of being able to erect a row of shops on the north side of the street would be an ample equivalent for the quantity of land which the owners of the property adjoining the street were asked to make over to the Government. The owners of the property, however, seem to have thought otherwise, and to have demurred to giving the land asked for at anything under its market value. This led the late Government through its Postmaster-General (Mr. F. B. Suttor), to threaten that if the owners refused to accept the proposal of the Government a stone wall would be built the whole length of the street on the north side, by which means the private frontage to the street would be rendered useless for the purposes of business, and at this point the matter remained up to the time when the late Government went out of office. Yesterday the subject was under the consideration of the present Government at a Cabinet meeting, and it was decided to confirm the decision of the late Government, and to erect the wall unless the portion of land asked for in order to widen the street is given at a nominal price. No unnecessary delay, we understand, will take place in bringing the matter to a final issue, as now that the General Post Office may be said to have been completed it is desirable that the street should be formed as soon as possible, and if the street cannot be widened as proposed the wall will be built and the frontage obliterated.

AN important deputation from the Pharmaceutical Society of New South Wales interviewed the Minister for Public Instruction yesterday in connection with several matters relative to the gratuitous services and the publicly recognised functions of that body. The particulars of the interview will be found elsewhere.

THE Secretary of State for the Colonies has recently recommended that there be appointed in each of the Australasian colonies a defence committee to suggest any alterations or new arrangements which may be necessary for perfecting the colonial defences, the recommendation being the result from the labours of several commissions that have sat in England to consider the subject of the defences of the Empire; and Sir Henry Parkes has made the necessary arrangements for the appointment of the New South Wales committee. The members of the committee will consist of the heads of the different branches of our forces:—Major-General Richardson, Colonel Roberts, Captain Hixson, Colonel Cracknell, and Captain Penrose, R.E. Their duties will be to a large extent of a secret or confidential nature; but the committee will act in conjunction with the committees formed in the other colonies, and with the naval authorities on the Australian station.

IN the Supreme Court, in Banco, yesterday, their Honors proceeded to deal with the Crown cases remaining on the list. In the matter of the Queen v. Trickett and another, in which the prisoners were convicted for stealing a quantity of lace, application was made that the verdict should be quashed, on the ground that the Judge who tried the case wrongfully rejected evidence, and that the evidence was insufficient to establish the charge. The conviction was upheld. In the case of the Queen v. Weaver, in which objection had been raised to the legality of the conviction on the found that there was no evidence to support the charge, the conviction was upheld. An application made on behalf of the Rev. James Jefferis, D.D., for a rule nisi calling upon the Licensing Bench at the Central Police Court to show cause why a writ of prohibition should not issue against their decision in granting a license to the Criterion Theatre, was refused. Mr. F. L. Rossi applied for a rule nisi, calling upon the magistrates of Goulburn to show cause why a writ of prohibition should not be issued against their order committing him for trial. His application was refused, on the ground that prohibitions could only be granted against summary convictions and orders.

A NUMBER of motions came before the Primary Judge in the Equity Court. In Taylor v. Jenkins and others power was given to sell so much of the land of the Berkley Estate, Illawarra, as might be necessary to put the remainder in good order. In the North Shore Ferry Company v. Jeannoret, which was a dispute about the sub-lease of a wharf, it was arranged that defendant should take up the original lease from the Government within 10 days, and execute a sub-lease, concurrently, to the plaintiffs, who were, at the same time, to pay him certain arrears due. There was an application by the trustees of Edward Hordern's will, for advice as to what allowance should be given to one daughter, Cecil Matilda, who, although a minor, 17 years of age, had married Frank M'Elhone, also a minor, who was in receipt of a salary of £75 per annum, as a clerk. The young lady had hitherto received £3 per week, and his Honor now increased this to £6, advising the parties to live economically until, at her majority, she came into her full fortune.

THE sittings of the Metropolitan Court of Quarter Sessions terminated yesterday. The only case on the list was an appeal case, in which Thomas Swan sought to set aside a conviction by Mr. Marsh, S.M., whereby he had been ordered to be imprisoned for three months upon a charge of assaulting Sophia Swan. Mr. Tarleton, instructed by Mr. T. C. Richards, appeared for the appellant. The chief ground of appeal was that the sentence was excessive. After having heard the facts of the case, his Honor Judge Dowling reduced the sentence to one of imprisonment until the rising of the Court.

THE Marine Board yesterday decided in regard to the collision between the steamers Emu and Waratah, on the 24th ultimo, that both captains were in default, and they are summoned to appear on Monday afternoon next to show cause why their certificates should not be cancelled or suspended.

HIS Worship the Mayor (Mr. A. J. Riley, M.L.A.) yesterday visited the Zoological Gardens in his official capacity. He was accompanied by several of the aldermen of the City Council. The party were received by Mr. Walter Bradley and other members of the council of the Zoological Society.

THE Primate and Mrs. Barry, accompanied by their two sons and the Rev. R. Relton (bishop's chaplain), were passengers by the mail steamer Carthage, which sailed at midday yesterday. A large number of the friends of the Bishop and Mrs. Barry went down to the wharf to bid them bon voyage. Amongst the number were the Bishop's Commissary (Ven. Archdeacon King), Mr. Justice Stephen, the Attorney-General (Hon. W. J. Foster), Hon. J. B. Watt, Hon. E. Knox, Hon. G. A. Lloyd, Revs. Canon Hey-Sharpe and Kemmis, Revs. Dr. Corlette, H. L. Jackson, W. Hough, Rich, A. R. Bartlett, J. D. Langley, S. S. Tovey, C. Baber, G. North Ash, C. F. Garnsey, D. Murphy, E. F. Salinière, A. Yarnold, Southby, Cope and King, C. J. Byng, A. C. Corlette, H. W. Mort, W. A. Charlton, R. A. Woodthorpe, J. L. Taylor, P. R. S. Bailey, G. E. C. Stiles, R. M. Walker, H. J. Rose, A. W. Pain, and W. H. Percival, the Sheriff (Mr. Cowper), Professor Anderson-Stuart, Sir Alfred Roberts, Messrs. C. E. Jeanneret, M.L.A., Robert Hills, F. W. Uther, Clarendon Stuart, H. E. A. Allan, Wilfrid Docker, Alfred Cook, J. Page, John Kent, C. H. Humphrey, E. Dease-Thomson, John Brush, and R. Atkins (official secretary to the diocese). The steamer Carthage will make a stay of four days at Melbourne, during which the Primate and family will be the guests of Sir Henry Loch, Governor of Victoria.

AT a meeting of the Chapter, held on Thursday last, the Bishop submitted a design, prepared by Mr. Blacket, for incising the Ten Commandments upon the four vacant panels of the Cathedral reredos in accordance with the original design. The Chapter approved of the work being carried out.

THE members of the Volunteer Force will be glad to learn that the Government has decided that the camp of continuous training will be held this year as usual. The period will extend over nine days, including the day of commencement and that of termination, the dates fixed being from Friday, 8th April, to Saturday, 16th. The garrison batteries of the Volunteer Artillery and the Torpedo Corps will encamp at Middle Head, under the command of the officer commanding the artillery forces. The field battery of the Volunteer Artillery, the Engineers, and the Volunteer Infantry on the partially-paid strength will camp at the National Park under the supervision of the Major-General commanding the military forces. The Reserve Corps of Sydney Lancers will also go to the National Park.

MR. JOHN B. DONKIN, of Messrs. Ryan, Hammond, and Donkin, No. 1, Spring-street, Sydney, has been appointed a justice of the peace for Victoria.

AN examination will be held at Sydney, Melbourne, and at such other places as may be determined, on Wednesday, 1st June, 1887, and the following days, for the purpose of filling up the Combe Scholarship in Trinity College, Oxford. The scholarship is of the annual value of £80, inclusive of all privileges and allowances. Any candidate holding a colonial scholarship to an English University is disqualified for holding this scholarship; but a candidate so disqualified, if placed first on the result of the examination, may receive an exhibition of the annual value of £40, two of which may in that case be awarded in place of the scholarship. There is no limit of age, but, other things being equal, preference will be given to candidates who have not exceeded the age of 20 years on the day of election. The scholarship will be awarded on an examination in classics and English composition, with questions on ancient and modern literature and history. The Scholarship is tenable for four years, if the President and Fellows are satisfied with the industry and good conduct of the Scholar. For special reasons it may be prolonged for a fifth year. Candidates are requested to send their names, with testimonials of good conduct, and certificates of the date of their birth, to Professor Scott, Sydney University, or to Professor Morris, Melbourne University, not later than 30th April. The scholar elected will be required to begin residence at Oxford in October, 1887.

A MOVEMENT has been successfully initiated in this city to provide facilities for teaching the German language to children. A meeting of German colonists was held last night in the hall of the German Club, for the purpose of forming a school Association, with a view of establishing a German school in Sydney. The association is under the patronage of the Consul-General for Germany. Mr. Von der Heyde was elected president, Mr. Wiesener hon. treasurer, and Mr. Weitzel hon. secretary. It is intended to open the school at the beginning of the April quarter, suitable school premises having been secured in a central position. The school will be entirely unsectarian, and will be conducted by a staff of competent teachers.

YESTERDAY was another of those peculiar changeable days lately so common, but so very rare a few years ago in Sydney. A strong southerly wind in the early morning brought up a heavy bank of clouds which partially discharged their contents, heavy rain for a short duration falling in some of the suburbs. Nearly all the morning dark clouds obscured the sun, but towards midday they cleared away, leaving a bright Australian sun, which to pedestrians was exceptionally hot. As evening drew nigh, a beautiful night was anticipated, but a smart shower fell between 8 and 9 o'clock, though its duration was very limited. The stars then again shone out, with every indication of a fine day to-day.

THE annual meeting of the New South Wales branch of the British Medical Association was held yesterday evening in the Royal Society's room, under the presidency of Dr. Knaggs. A brief address was delivered by the president, after which the election of a council and officebearers for the ensuing year took place. Dr. Creed, M.L.C., was elected president. A report of the meeting appears in another portion of the paper.

A MEETING of the freetraders of South Sydney was held yesterday evening at the Cambridge Club Hotel, Oxford-street, for the purpose of enrolling additional members to the local branch of the Free Trade Association of New South Wales which has been recently formed in the electorate. The Mayor of Sydney presided, and a resolution was passed endorsing the action of the preliminary meeting in founding a branch of the Free Trade Association. At the conclusion of the meeting over 40 members enrolled themselves.

THE monthly meeting of the committee of the Sydney Mechanics' School of Arts was held on Thursday evening. In the absence of the president, who sent an apology, the chair was taken by Mr. Richard Teece, one of the vice-presidents. The other members of committee present were, Messrs. Osborne and Thomas, Js.P., and Messrs. Beaver, Dowling, Holdsworth, Reid, Ritchie, and Walker. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. An apology for absence was received from the treasurer, Mr. Perkins. 71 new members were elected, they having joined during the month of February, as against 51 in the corresponding month of last year. The hon. treasurer's monthly report was read by Mr. F. J. Thomas, and adopted. This report showed the receipts from subscriptions during February to have been £120 1s. 6d.; £ x 50 (with waiting rooms, &c.); rooms for the caretaker, and other apartments. On the King-street ground floor there are three large shops, one at the corner of George-street, 26 feet x 19 feet, and the others about 24 feet by 15 feet, with 12 feet and 14 feet back shops, side entrance, &c. There is also a 10 feet entrance and staircase from the front to the great hall. This hall is 90 feet long x 59 feet wide, exclusive of the stage, which is 31 feet deep x 59 feet wide. It will seat 1700 or 1800 persons, and will contain two private boxes, orchestra, &c. The hall will have no less than seven means of ingress and egress, so that in case of panic it could be emptied in a very few minutes. The first floor contains seven large well-lighted offices, and the top floor a Masonic lodgeroom 29 feet x 30 feet, &c., also a room 36 feet x 19 feet, suitable for another lodge or other purposes. The building will be constructed of brick, cemented outside, and the style of architecture will be modern Italian. Tenders will be called almost immediately, and within 12 months the building will probably be completed and opened.

THE following particulars relative to the horse disease at Silverton have been received from Mr. Edward Stanley, the Government veterinarian, who is now at Silverton investigating the matter. Mr. Stanley states that in the first two cases of post-mortem examinations the lungs of the horses were putrid, and in the second case the lungs and bowels were affected with bleeding, and their deaths were hastened by drugging. None have died that are under observation. He further states that he had seen thirty consecutive cases in which the symptoms (which have been abnormally excited by excessive heat, exposure, want of food, and carelessness) were drowsiness, general debility, failing appetite, urine dark, bowels constipated, body hot, eyes red, lids swollen, flow of tears, mouth red, tongue furred, panting flanks, heart beating rapidly, legs swollen, severe fever lasting several days, and rapid loss of flesh. As the appetite improves strength slowly returns. Nursing is far more important than medicine. Treatment consists of salines, febrifuges, followed by vegetable and mineral tonics. The disease spreads by sick and healthy horses eating and drinking together, using the same bridle or vessel. The inspectors at Wilcannia, Bourke, and Wentworth report no horse disease there.

A CORRESPONDENT draws attention to the frequency of "runaways" in the Sydney streets, chiefly amongst cab horses, whose drivers carelessly leave them unguarded, and he recommends the transit commissioners to keep a better watch on the proceedings of persons in charge of horses and vehicles.

Fresh applications for relief, 16; cases reported by the inspector, 48; in 16 cases the relief was discontinued for various reasons; total number of cases relieved, 440.

THE INSURRECTION IN BULGARIA.

FURTHER DETAILS OF THE SILISTRIA REVOLT.

THE AUTHORITY OF THE REGENCY RESTORED.

[BY CABLE.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, MARCH 3.

It is reported that during the absence of the garrison the people of Rustchuk, a town about 50 miles up the Danube, from Silistria, have broken out into rebellion.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)

SOFIA, MARCH 3.

The actual position of affairs at Silistria is uncertain, owing to the insurgents having cut the telegraph lines in the vicinity of the fortress. The belief prevails that the insurgents, finding that they were not supported by the remainder of the garrison, fled from the place.

A serious rising has taken place at Rustchuk, where the Royalist troops attacked the rebels. A severe encounter took place, resulting in much bloodshed.

MARCH 4.

From fuller information received by the Regency in regard to the revolt in Silistria, it appears that on Saturday last the disaffected organisers of the rising, having first cashiered all the officers of Bulgarian nationality in the garrison, summoned a parade of troops and formally proclaimed M. Zankoff Regent. A considerable number of the soldiery and the inhabitants of the town, however, remained loyal. Frequent combats with the rebels ensued, lasting until Tuesday, when reinforcements arrived from Shumla and suppressed the revolt. Twenty persons were shot dead during the fighting, and a large number were wounded.

LATER.

The revolts in Silistria and Rustchuk have been completely suppressed, and order has been restored. During the disturbances at Rustchuk the entire population turned out under arms to oppose the rebels. Hostilities prevailed for 12 hours. The participators in the revolt fled to the Danube, but they were overtaken and captured, many of their number being wounded. The authority of the Regency is now completely restored in the disturbed districts.

MR. Pain to the Principal Under-Secretary being a contribution from the proceeds of last Thursday's display of fireworks in the Domain. Another exhibition will be given on Thursday next, which will be a "Hospital Thursday." His Excellency the Governor, the Lieutenant-Governor, the Premier, members of the Ministry, and many prominent citizens have put down their names as patrons to the affair. As the proceeds are to be strictly devoted to the benefit of the hospitals, no complimentary tickets will be allowed on this occasion.

ON Wednesday next the inmates of the Randwick Asylum will enjoy their annual picnic excursion to Chowder Bay. Through the kindness of many friends the superintendent has received a considerable amount of subscriptions towards defraying the cost. About 300 will leave the asylum about 8 a.m. en route to Circular Quay, where a specially engaged steamer will be in waiting to receive them. All arrangements have been perfected under the direction of the house committee, and the juveniles are looking forward to the treat with more than ordinary pleasure.

THE new St. George's Hall, shortly to be erected at the corner of King-street and George-street, Newtown, promises to be an architectural ornament to the suburb as well as a great convenience to the inhabitants, who have at present no public hall in keeping with the size and importance of the neighbourhood. Mr. David Ross, F.R.I.B.A., of the firm of Kirkpatrick and Ross, architects, was awarded the prize offered by the St. George's Hall Company, Limited, for the best competitive design, and has been entrusted with the carrying out of the work. He is now engaged in preparing the working drawings and specifications so that tenders may be called for without delay. The site has frontages of 66 feet to King-street, and 158 feet to George-street, with rights-of-way 10 feet wide at the lower end. The position is in the centre of Newtown, close to the Railway Bridge, and the building will command a view of Botany Bay, the ocean, and several of the surrounding suburbs. The building will be three storeys in height along the King-street frontage, and each of these will be 15 feet high from floor to ceiling. At the corner there will be a clock tower, 88 feet above the ground, and surmounted by a flagstaff. On the George-street side there will be four shops, each 14 feet x 28 feet; a billiard-room, 30 feet by 58 feet; lodgerooms, 30

THE monthly meeting of the Animals' Protection Society was held on Wednesday last. There were present—Messrs. A. W. Gilles (in the chair), W. W. Stephen, C. H. Myles (hon. treasurer), R. Cocks, W. Bradley, the secretary (J. Sidney), and Inspector G. Webber. After passing the usual accounts for salaries, &c., incidents in the society's operations for the month were discussed, particularly a case of cruelty—spurring a horse; but as the time had lapsed for taking action, and as the case was surrounded by many difficulties, it was decided not to prosecute. During the month 14 persons had been convicted of acts of cruelty. Two for not providing proper stabling; six working lame and decrepid horses; five working horses suffering from wounds, and one cruelly beating a horse.

THE second annual show of the Camden Agricultural and Horticultural Society will be held at Camden on the three days commencing with Wednesday, the 9th instant. There have been 1300 entries received, and the show promises to prove attractive. Special trains will leave Sydney at 8 a.m., and return at 6 p.m.

A MEETING of licensed cabdrivers favourable to the election of Mr. F. B. Mansfield (president of the Cabmen's Union) as the licensee's representative on the Board of Metropolitan Transit Commissioners was held in the Temperance Hall, Pitt-street, last evening. There was a fair attendance, the chair being occupied by Mr. Charles Prince. The chairman having read the advertisement convening the meeting, stated that it was high time the licensed drivers had their rights, and it was only proper that they should have direct representation on the board. Mr. Downey rose to move the first resolution, which was to the effect,—"That Mr. F. B. Mansfield is a fit and proper person to represent the licensees on the Metropolitan Transit Commissioners' Board." (Hear, hear.) The speaker said there had been a considerable amount of interest taken in the election of a fourth commissioner. The cabmen of Sydney had every confidence in Mr Mansfield, who was an excellent man, and worthy of every support. He hoped that he would be elected, as the drivers would then have some one to whom they could go and speak to about their grievances. (Hear, hear.) He also stated that efforts had been made by three paid servants of the Transit Commission to induce the cabmen to vote for Mr. J. D. Young, and not for Mr. Mansfield. That was the greatest tyranny that could possibly exist, and he hoped they would return Mr. Mansfield as their representative on the 9th of April, as he alone, being one of themselves, would do them justice. Mr. Thomas Westlake seconded the motion, and several gentlemen having spoken in favour of Mr. Mansfield's candidature, the resolution was unanimously adopted. Mr. Westlake moved, "That a deputation be formed to wait upon the Colonial Secretary, praying that he will cause all men who have had renewals to be entitled to vote. Messrs. Adams, Downing, and the mover to form the deputation." This was seconded and agreed to, after which Mr. Mansfield delivered a short address, and the meeting terminated. The [Act to amend the "Public Vehicles Regulation Act of 1873," which was assented to on the 24th of September, 1886, provides, amongst other things, that "in addition to the metropolitan transit commissioners, as constituted by the principal Act, there shall be a fourth commissioner, who shall be elected annually by persons licensed under the principal Act, and shall, when elected, be a member of the body corporate created by the said Act, and for all purposes thereof shall hold office for one year and no longer, and shall be eligible for re-election at the expiration of his term of office, and shall be entitled to the same remuneration as is granted to each commissioner under section 12 of the principal Act."

ON Thursday afternoon in the Chapter House, St. Andrew's Cathedral, Mr. Quong Tart, acting on behalf of the Rev. Soo Hoo Ten and congregation of the Chinese Church at Botany, presented to Bishop Barry for Mrs. Barry, an address accompanied by a box containing a China tea service of tasteful design and a number of other articles of Chinese workmanship. In the address the donors expressed their lively sense of gratitude for the deep interest which the Primate and Mrs. Barry had always taken in the Chinese of the city and suburbs, and particularly for the energy they had displayed in the establishment of the church at Botany. Very deep regret was also expressed at the illness of Mrs. Barry, necessitating the departure of their benefactors to England. In conclusion, the congregation heartily wished them bon voyage and a safe and speedy return. In reply, the Primate desired Mr. Quong Tart to convey to Mr. Soo Hoo Ten and his congregation his warmest thanks for their sympathising address and beautiful present. He much regretted that Mrs. Barry was unable to be present through illness, but he knew that she would be extremely pleased with the present, and that her heart would be touched by the spirit in which it was given. She had always taken the deepest interest in the Botany Mission, and would be gratified beyond measure at the thoughtful remembrance of the pastor and congregation. His (the Bishop's) feelings towards that church were also of the warmest description, and he trusted that on his return in a few month's time he would find that they had increased in numbers and strength, and that the harmony at present existing between the Rev. Soo Hoo Ten and his congregation would still exist to, if possible a greater extent.

YESTERDAY, another cheque on account of the public charities, to the amount of £84 4s., was handed in

THE FARMERS' ASSOCIATION IN ADELAIDE.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ADELAIDE, FRIDAY.

At the meeting of the Farmers' Association to-day a resolution was passed advocating legislation to protect the farmers in storing produce with the merchants. It was decided to ask the Government to appoint a committee to report upon the adaptability of the western country for agricultural and pastoral purposes. A deputation accordingly waited upon the Commissioner of Lands and presented the resolution passed by the association. The Commissioner would not substitute the box system for the auction system till the board system had been tried. He disapproved of dividing the leases into too small areas. He approved of the sale of Crown lands north of Blinman, in order to liquidate the deficit, and was also in favour of the present system of disposing of the land on credit. He thought that agricultural settlement on the Nullabone Plains was premature.

GENERAL SUMMARY.

LONDON, JAN. 28.

On the opening of Parliament Lord Randolph Churchill explained to the House the cause of his resignation, a summary of which has been already cabled. He stated that he was unable to become responsible for the estimates presented by the heads of the Army and Navy Departments for the coming year, and although there were other matters of grave importance on which he differed from Lord Salisbury, they were susceptible of accommodation. Considering he had pledged himself to a policy of retrenchment, and knowing retrenchment to be desirable and possible, it was impossible for him to retain his place in the Government, whose programme excluded retrenchment. The Army and Navy Estimates amounted to £31,000,000, which exceeded by £6,000,000 the average from 1874 to 1884, besides large supplementary estimates which he was asked to sanction. He strongly urged the Government to commence returning to the normal state of expenditure; and although he desired a million to be struck off the Estimates half that amount might have satisfied him. However, the Cabinet showed no signs of a disposition for retrenchment, and the country under the present arrangements would not get the full value of the money expended. He repudiated resigning in a temper, pointing out that controversy was going on since the formation of the Government. He finally re-read a letter dated December 22nd from himself to Lord Salisbury in which he stated that the character of the domestic legislation contemplated by the Government in his opinion fell sadly short of what Parliament and the country expected and required. The foreign policy appeared to him at once dangerous and methodless, but he took his stand on the expenditure and finance, which involves and determines all other matters, and reviewing his former public declarations on the subject, and having no reason to doubt their soundness, he took leave of the Salisbury Government with profound regret, but without doubt or hesitation. Mr. Goschen replied that while admitting the importance of retrenchment in the naval and military expenditure, and repudiating that the Government were actuated by a meddlesome foreign policy, he maintained that the present moment was inopportune to stop expenditure which was sanctioned and commenced by previous Governments. The expenditure on fortifications, commercial ports, and coaling stations, was undoubtedly necessary, but he promised that every opportunity should be afforded the House of inquiring into its necessity.

Switzerland is now following the lead of the European Powers in looking to its defences, and is overhauling her forces, which are by no means unimportant, since the Confederation possess a large supply of Krupp cannons, and her soldiers are marksmen only second to the Boers. Switzerland, although the last country to adopt a forward policy, is determined if need be to uphold her neutrality.

The Bulgarian question moves slowly. The continual pressure exercised by Germany upon Austria, to prevent a conflict being precipitated between the latter and Russia really governs the present situation. Austria is busy making warlike preparations against any possible emergency. It is practically allowed that the Czar's initiative in pressing on a settlement of Bulgaria is in his own interest. Russia, however, is making suggestions that the Ambassadors of the Great Powers should take advantage of the presence of the Bulgarian delegates at Constantinople to open negotiations on behalf of their respective countries. This virtually admits the rights of the delegates to speak as representatives of Bulgaria. This may result in an informal Conference, but future negotiations still remain in the condition of the dissolution of the present and the election of a new Sobranje. This will probably be conceded; but, in the meantime, M. Zankoff's proposals to the Porte have been refused, amounting, as they do, to the practical Russian administration of Bulgaria.

A serious panic occurred on the Continental Bourses on 24th January, consequent on an alarming rumour of an imminent war between France and Germany. The Daily News published an alarmist paragraph, stating that information had been received at the Foreign Office to the effect that Germany would probably within a few days demand an explanation from the French as to their war preparations on the frontier. Subsequent intelligence, however, allayed this panic to some extent, it being explained that the situation was no more critical than it had been for some weeks past. Notwithstanding this, it is greatly to be feared, should the two Powers continue increasing their armaments, that sooner or later a conflict will be inevitable.

News has been received that the Abyssinians made an attack upon the outposts of the Italian garrison at Massowah. They were driven back, and, although the garrison is already strong, reinforcements are being sent from Italy. THE WILCANNIA LAND BOARD.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

WILCANNIA, FRIDAY.

The local Land Board—Messrs. M. Trollope (chairman) and G. H. Gower—conducted an inquiry into the appraisement of Momba station. Mr. T. W. Barnes appeared for the lessees. J. T. Ranken gave evidence as Government appraiser of the leasehold area. Mr. Rankin deposed that the area extended back 64 miles from the river, and has 35 miles frontage. The Paroo runs through it for 60 miles. The average rainfall was 11 inches 34 points. Moorquong has natural water for two or three months after rain for 5000 sheep; it has a well giving 8000 gallons of good water per day, and will carry one sheep to seven acres. Curellie has natural water in a dam regarded as permanent, and will carry one sheep to seven acres. Purnama is watered by the Lestrange Creek, and will carry one sheep to 7½ acres; it has water for six months. Wonko South has natural water for one month after rain, and has a tank of 11,000 yards. The supply is sufficient for one sheep to seven acres. East Barigo has water from Lake Olepolokoo, and is considered permanent. Yantabangee has natural water when the Paroo runs, which is seldom. The catchment for tank is fairly good, and the water is sufficient. Mulga and Cabbage are reliable bushes, and carry one sheep to seven acres. East Peri has natural water from the Paroo, and overflows when available. This block is in general similar to Yantabangee. It has a well 50 feet deep, and permanent water to 1000 sheep, good stock water, the supply being sufficient for one sheep to seven acres. Portion of the Paroo overflow is only natural water. Sheep can reach Goorpoko Lake. On the resumed area the water without the lake is barely sufficient. The country generally is level, and a red, sandy soil. Mouth Jack North has only a natural supply from the overflow of the Paroo and Darling. It has various grasses, and grows foxtail, spear, and Queensland blue bush, all well represented. Mr. Hogarth, general manager of Momba's pastoral holding, deposed that he agreed in the main with Mr. Rankin. The Paroo overflow has several disadvantages. The country is cut off and made unavailable. Three hundred hands are employed to prevent the bogging of sheep. They lost over one thousand sheep within the last six weeks through the flood. A sudden fall in the river leaves the banks boggy, and some tanks of silt required cleansing. It would be cheaper at present to put down new tanks; some have been down for three years without water. The creeks are too rapid for damming, and wells are very expensive work. The country was hilly, and fencing was expensive work. Had 20 miles of fencing washed away by the heavy rains on one occasion. Stone was cheaper than timber for building, &c. The Darling twice delayed the clip—once for 12 months, and the second time for eight months. On two occasions sent part of the clip overland to Terowie. Spent £1000 in rabbit extermination during last quarter. The expenditure had been increasing since then. After other evidence had been taken, the board deferred their decision until the 14th March.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BRISBANE, FRIDAY.

The weather continues showery and unsettled. A very heavy fresh occurred in the Brisbane River today, the water coming down from the head of the Bremer and Brisbane rivers. A telegram was received by the Railway Department stating, in regard to the floods in the Central railway district, that the Comet River rose 8½ feet and the Nogoa River 7 feet over the rails. The floods are subsiding at Jericho. The Alice River is 3 feet over the rails, and on the Claremont line the Theresa Creek is 10 feet over the rails. All traffic on this branch is suspended, and also on the mail line beyond Pine Hill, Bundaberg. A telegram this morning reports that a second flood is coming down the river. MR. O'MARA, M.L.A., AT BOMBALA.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BOMBALA, FRIDAY.

Mr. T. C. O'Mara was accorded a most enthusiastic welcome on his arrival here yesterday evening for the purpose of attending the banquet given in honour of the two members lately returned for Monaro, himself and Mr. H. Dawson. The town was decorated with flags. The word "Welcome," in evergreens hung across the street. Prior to the banquet Mr. O'Mara addressed a large crowd from the balcony of Mr. Rowley's Hotel. Seats were provided at the banquet in the School of Arts for about 90 guests, but owing to the short notice given only between 40 and 50 attended. Later on, at the toast-giving and speeches a large crowd of spectators were admitted to the gallery. The chairman, Mr. Myers, read apologies for unavoidable absence from Mr. Dawson, the second member, and a few other gentlemen. After the usual loyal toasts, all of which were enthusiastically received, Mr. Myers rose to propose the toast of the evening, "Our Guest, Mr. O'Mara," coupled with Mr. Dawson. He referred in a most pleasant manner to the good old English custom of dining in public on occasions similar to this as affording the best means of sinking all political differences and burying the political hatchet. He spoke in terms highly eulogistic of Mr. O'Mara, referring to instances when the courage of that gentleman's convictions upheld him in the teeth of great Parliamentary opposition, and said that they could feel every confidence in their two members as tried men and upright gentlemen. The toast was enthusiastically received with musical honours, accompanied by the band. In reply, Mr. O'Mara spoke very feelingly and well, and saying that the people of Monaro had at all times treated him with an open generosity seldom met with. He heartily thanked all present and absent, and hoped his Parliamentary record would show that they had chosen the right man. He referred most gracefully to the chairman, Mr. Myers, who had from his freetrade principles worked in a measure against him, but between whom and himself existed warm mutual regard. Mr. O'Mara concluded amidst great applause. Several other toasts were honoured.

Although alone, he bravely gave chase to the animals, and succeeded in killing one, which he afterwards brought into the Capitol, where the usual reward of 100 francs was paid him. THE CITY STREETS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Will you permit me, through your columns, to draw the attention of property-owners to a most iniquitous resolution that was carried at the last meeting of the City Council. It was that the 121st clause of the Sydney Corporation Act be amended, to enable the council to borrow money for the purpose of purchasing property, with a view to widen the streets and otherwise improving the city, and to levy a rate of 6d. in the £ for 10 years, and 3d. in the £ for a further period of 10 years, to pay off the loan.

Now, sir, there is not the slightest doubt it would be a great improvement to the city, and also conducive to health, if all our narrow streets were widened to (say) 66 feet; but I would ask, why should land and property owners who have tried for years, and given sufficient land to form good wide thoroughfares, be made to pay for the purchase of land that some of our more grasping landowners have already received large sums for? Many of the estates that have been subdivided during the last 10 or 15 years do not reflect credit on their late owners; long narrow streets have been formed, so as to give as much frontage as possible, and so fill the pockets of those gentlemen. Any person taking a walk through portions of our city, and notably Ultimo—the very part that the mover of the aforesaid resolution was largely interested in, and in which he resides—will find miles of narrow streets and lanes that are a standing disgrace to those who formed them; and I would suggest that they should be compelled to pay all the cost of making them the necessary width that the public health demands.

I think, sir, it is nearly time the property-owners combined, and placed such gentlemen in our City Council as would bring forward wise and just measures to improve our city.

I am, &c.,
PROPERTY OWNER.

In the matter of substantial difficulties we do not stand alone. If our revenue returns (says a London contemporary) are not so favourable as a patriotic Chancellor of the Exchequer would desire, we are certainly in a better position than several of the Continental powers. The year's revenue in France has fallen £1,280,000 below that of 1885, and the Russian Budget for 1887 shows a deficit in the ordinary revenue of £3,655,868, and in the extraordinary, for railway and harbour construction, of £4,841,419. This deficit is ascribed to the continuous commercial depression. In the case of both France and Russia the deficit is not to be met by increased taxation, but by the easy and hazardous resource of new loans.

The South Australian Register of March 3:—"From Captain Heslop, of the barque Kebroyd, we obtain the following particulars of the stranding of his vessel in Anxious Bay, while on a voyage to Western Australia:—The vessel left the Semaphore on Friday, February 11, with a light north-east wind. The next day he passed Cape Borda with a fine breeze and clear weather, and on sounding the pump well on Sunday the barque was found to be perfectly tight. But soon after a strong southerly breeze set in, during which the vessel laboured a good deal, and on sounding again it was found that she had sprung a leak, which kept the crew continuously at the pumps. On Monday morning the southerly breeze continued, and it was attended with dark cloudy weather and a high confused sea. Although all hands were kept working with a will, the water was fast gaining when the starboard pump broke down and the port one choked. In this critical position one of the pumps was lifted and cleared, and the water reduced to two feet, but at 9 a.m. the water was again gaining, and the master thereupon resolved to bear up for the land. The vessel was then in latitude 35·6, longitude 133·9. The next sounding showed 4 feet of water in the hold, and owing to the strong gale the upper topsails and jib had to be stowed. At midnight there was no change in the weather, and the water increased to 5 feet 4 inches. Some of the crew were then drafted off to jettison cargo, thereby lightening the vessel to some extent. On Tuesday the wind veered to the south-east with similar dark cloudy weather. The captain set the upper topsails and brought the vessel to the wind, and at 8 a.m. Pearson's Island bore north-west, distant 13 miles. The water had increased to 7 feet as the vessel rounded Waldegrave Island, and when the pump soundings gave nine feet it was evident that the barque was settling down by the head and for the safety of all concerned she was run on the mainland. Next day the crew turned to landing the ship's stores and cargo, and in this work were greatly assisted by a bullock-team and some four men procured from the shore. On Thursday and Friday all hands were kept discharging cargo, and on Saturday at 5 a.m. the pumps were started again. At 7 a.m. the steamer Jessie Darling hauled alongside, and the transhipment of cargo from the Kebroyd was actively carried on. At 10 p.m. the wind increased, and the rudder was carried away. On Monday all hands were again at the pumps, and having reduced the water the Jessie Darling took the ship in tow, and proceeded to Flinders Island, where at 3.30 p.m. she was anchored in eight fathoms of water, and the steamer proceeded to Port Lincoln. All hands being kept at the pumps, the water was considerably decreased, and the rudder partially secured. On Wednesday the pumps were kept going till midnight, when the water was nearly cleared out, but during a strong south-east gale the vessel dragged her single anchor, and it was necessary to let go more cable. Next day the south-east gale caused her to pitch a little, and the water increased to 3 feet 6 inches, so more cargo was jettisoned to further lighten her. In the meantime some hands were engaged securing the rudder by wire-rope straps and spare chains, and others sent down the topgallant yards and masts. The weather became more moderate, and on Saturday, February 26, at 7 a.m., the steamtug Yatala arrived, took the barque in tow, and proceeded with her to Port Adelaide without mishap. The barque was taken alongside the Commercial wharf on Tuesday, and the work of discharging her damaged cargo was carried on throughout the day. A pump was kept at work for a few hours during the morning in order to reduce the water in her hold. It is hardly safe to say yet whether the vessel will ever again go to sea or not, but she has already had a long and useful career."

The barque Day Dawn (says the S. A. Register of the 2nd instant), which was stranded a short time back in Western Australia, was sold as she lay aground for £145. Her purchaser then sold the boats, anchors, and cables of the vessel for an amount over the purchase money; and having floated her she has now been sold for a hulk for over £1000.

The steamer Elamang left Melbourne at 12.30 p.m. on the 2nd instant, and arrived in port at 7 p.m. on the 4th instant. Experienced fresh southerly winds and heavy beam sea to Wilson's Promontory, thence light variable easterly winds and fine weather to port.

Another impetus has been given to the ship-building trade by the order of Messrs. Kirpatrick and Robinson, brassfounders, of this city, for two 8-ton boats, to be built by Mr. Hardman, of Berry's Bay, North Shore, for trading in Torres Straits. The measurements are: Length, 37 feet 6 inches overall; 10 feet beam, and 4 feet 6 inches deep. They will be built of the best hardwood and kauri pine, and will be copper fastened. It is some years since such boats as these have been ordered from the yards of local shipbuilders, the last boat of this description built being the Venus, which was launched from Mr. Sullivan's yard for Messrs. Finlay and Bain. Mr. Sullivan, who has built many of this kind of boat, will superintend the building.

Shortly after noon yesterday the P. and O. Company's R.M.S. Carthage hauled off from the Company's wharf, Circular Quay, on the commencement of her homeward trip, with a large cargo, and from Sydney a fairly filled passenger list; at Melbourne and Adelaide she will become a full ship. On the passenger list is noticed the Right Reverend the Primate (Bishop Barry), who with Mrs. Barry and son are proceeding to Europe. Fully 350 to 400 people were collected on the Whar to bid bon voyage to departing friends, amongst whom could be seen many clergymen and laymen, who had assembled to say adieu to their chief pastor, and, as the vessel moved steadily, they gave three cheers, which demonstration of goodwill and friendship was thoroughly appreciated by the Primate and duly recognised. Captain Hector had his vessel in the usual good order and pink of cleanliness always observable in this line, and in a very short time the Carthage was heading dowd the harbour. Under hatches she has a miscellaneous cargo of wool, tin, meats, leather, and silver ore. At Melbourne, where she is due to-morrow, her carrying capacity will be more severely taxed. She cleared the Heads at 1.5 p.m.

The Marine Board gave its decision in the Emu-Waratah collision yesterday to the effect that both captains are called upon to show cause why their certificates should not be cancelled or suspended, each man being deemed guilty of committing breaches of the steering and sailing rules. A fuller report will be found elsewhere.

The C. and R. R. S. N. Company's steamer Coraki, which recently encountered exceptionally heavy weather to the north, and had to run to Moreton Bay, has just undergone a complete overhaul at Mort's Dock. She leaves to-night on her usual trip to the Richmond River.

The steamer Corinna, which put back to port yesterday when outward bound to Launceston in consequence of injuries received by three of the crew, proceeded to sea early yesterday morning.

The N. G. Lloyd's steamer Hohenzollern, hence to Bremen via ports, left yesterday with a cargo of wool, skins, wheat, and champagne. Her passenger list is only fairly patronised, but it is expected to be considerably augmented ere the steamer leaves Adelaide.

The P. and O. Company's R.M.S. Massilia, known as the "cruiser," completed another successful voyage from London, via ports, yesterday, with a fair number of passengers and a large miscellaneous cargo. Her passenger list for all ports numbered 250, of which 163 were in the first saloon, the remainder being second-class. The voyage has been an uneventful one, with the exception of the death of a coolie employed in the stokehole, who died on February 29 from exhaustion. A few changes have taken place in the personnel of her officers. Mr. Cherry, who was formerly chief officer, has been appointed commander of the company's new steamer Geelong, and his post is now filled by Mr. Weston. Dr. Falia, who was formerly surgeon, has resigned, having decided to settle down to practise his profession at home. The position vacated by him is now occupied by Dr. Dawson. Captain Shallard reported that he left London on January 14, called at Malta on January 22, and arrived at Port Said on January 25. The voyage was continued on the following day. Suez was reached on January 27. A call was made at Aden on February 1, Colombo on February 10, and Albany was reached on February 21. A brief delay was made here to land mails and passengers, and the voyage was resumed on the same day. Glenelg was reached on February 25, and left the same evening. Melbourne was reached on the 27th ultimo, and, after a short stay, the Massilia left for Sydney on the 2nd instant. She experienced a fine-weather trip round to port. When lying in Melbourne another death occurred, that of the chief cook, who was buried at Williamstown. Since the Massilia's last visit the ship has been rendered still more attractive and comfortable for passengers by the extension of the electric light to the spar deck. At sea the quarter deck is nightly illuminated by clusters of incandescent lamps, enclosed in handsome globes. Every night dancing, and even reading (so effective is the light), may be indulged in if passengers so choose. Another new feature in the ship is the possession of a very powerful and efficient arc lamp and projector, similar to those now used by our latest ships of war for search purposes. The electric power required for the production of this light is taken from one of the ship's own dynamos, and under these conditions, the Massilia was the first ship to safely navigate the Canal in the dark hours. The nocturnal passage was performed with celerity and perfect success. So complete are the arrangements made for the successful handling of this projector, that a mechanical telephone is provided in order that an uninterrupted and ready intercourse may exist between those on the bridge and the operator in charge of the light, which is placed on a platform fixed on the stem of the ship. Another powerful automatic arc lamp is suspended above the bridge, and may be used in cases of emergency, such as grounding or touching the banks of the Canal. The Massilia, in the extent and resources of her engineering and mechanical appliances, is probably not equalled by any other mail steamer journeying to the colonies. The P. and O. Company show much enterprise in providing every modern, scientific, and engineering appliance, which their vast experience suggests and deem advisable to adopt, in pursuance of their determination to still further increase the comfort of passengers, and the safety of their vessels, combined with a greatly accelerated speed.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

THE TURF.

The autumn meeting of the V. R. C. will be brought to a conclusion to-day, when the Champion Stakes will be decided; but the great form displayed by Trident has quite deprived the race of interest, and with Volcano to help him and only Blair Gowrie to beat, it is not likely that the wonderful son of Robinson Crusoe will be extended at any part of the going. The All Aged Stakes should be a very fast race, and the places will probably go to Hortense, Nelson, and William Tell as named. The Nursery Handicap is too open to meddle with, and the best in the Autumn Handicap would appear to be All Gold and The Levite; while Abner, Kohai, and Mercury may divide the honours in the Free Handicap.

Mitrailleuse, the brilliant daughter of Musket, who won the Bourke Handicap at Flemington on Thursday, and who promises to further distinguish herself before her return to the land of the Maori, has already made a good record on the New Zealand turf. Her performances since four years old include (counting her victory on Thursday) 10 wins and an equal number of seconds. A detailed account of her performances follows:—At four years: Second in the Trial Stakes (Auckland), 1 mile, 8st. 9lb., time 1 minute 47¼ seconds, won by Fish Girl; won the Epsom Plate (Auckland), 5 furlongs, 8st. 9lb., time 1 minute 5 seconds; won the Stewards' Handicap (Onehunga), 6 furlongs, 8st. 4lb.; won the Spring Handicap (Takapuna), 1 mile, 8st. 8lb., time 1 minute 52 seconds; won the Stewards' Handicap (Takapuna), 1 mile, 9st. 1lb.; second in the Publicans' Purse (Auckland), 1 mile, 8st. 11lb., time 1 minute 46 seconds; won the Newmarket Handicap (Auckland), 6 furlongs, 8st. 2lb., time 1 minute 16 seconds; second in the Publican's Plate (Auckland), 1 mile, 9st. 1½lb., time 1 minute 44½ seconds; second in the Flying Stakes (Auckland), 6 furlongs, 9st. 5lb., time 1 minute 18¾ seconds. At 5 years: Second in the Trial Stakes (Auckland), 1 mile, 8st. 11lb., time 1 minute 48 seconds; won the Railway Plate (Auckland), 6 furlongs, 8st. 10lb., time 1 minute 18 seconds; second in the Newmarket Handicap (Auckland), 6 furlongs, 8st. 12lb., time 1 minute 14½ seconds; second in the Flying Stakes (Auckland), 6 furlongs, 9st. 6lb., time 1 minute 17½ seconds; second in the Free Handicap (Auckland), 1 mile, 8st. 7lb., time 1 minute 45 seconds. At six years: Won (easily) Railway Plate (Auckland), 6 furlongs, 8st. 10lb., time 1 minute 16½ seconds; second Christmas (1886) Handicap (Auckland), 1½ mile, 7st. 5lb., time 2 minutes 12 seconps; won Newmarket Handicap, 1887 (Auckland), 6 furlongs, 9st. 6lb., time 1 minute 16 seconds; second in the Victoria Handicap (Auckland), 1 mile, 9st. 4lb., time 1 minute 43½ seconds; won the Cup (Onehunga), 1½ mile, 8st., time 2 minutes 48½ seconds; and won the Bourke Handicap (Flemington), 7 furlongs, 7st. 12lb., time 1 minute 20½ seconds.

Trident's victory in the Australian Cup has caused the pen to be plied with great vigour among the remaining horses engaged in the Champion Stakes. Only Trident, Volcano, and Blairgowrie now remain to contest that event.

The newly-registered Warren Race Club have announced a two-days' meeting to take place on April 27th and 28th. The leading items on the programme are the Publicans' Purse, of 25 sovs., with a sweep of £1 5s. added; and the Warren Handicap, of 40 sovs., with a sweep of two sovs. The Inglegar Club are also in the field with a gathering on St. Patrick's Day.

The weights for the Gundaroo, Condobolin, and Paperchase Club Amateur Steeplechase (Canterbury Park) meetings will be declared to-day.

The Wallsend Jockey Club have issued a most attractive bill of fare for their Easter meeting, on the 11th and 12th April. There are 10 events on the card, and the stakes make up an aggregate of £540; the leading features of which are the Town Plate and Jockey Club Handicap, of 100 sovs. each.

The Paperchase Club meet this morning at Norwood Park, Stanmore, for a run. Members who intend to follow the trail, should be at the trysting place by 7.30 a.m.

A satisfactory balance-sheet was submitted to the members of the Hay Jockey Club at the annual meeting. A resolution was adopted to the effect that all bookmakers plying their vocation in the paddock shall be charged £2 2s. for each meeting.

The Tasmanian sportsmen are not going to let jubilee year pass by unnoticed. At a recent meeting of the Tasmanian Racing Club, held at Hobart, a decision was arrived at to hold a race meeting on jubilee day, the leading item to be the Jubilee Cup of 100 sovs.

The sum of £710 stake money will be competed for at the Easter meeting of the Maryborough (Q.) Jockey Club.

The annual race meeting, held at Binalong on Monday and Tuesday last, was favoured with fine weather, a good attendance, and excellent racing. The principal events—the Publicans' Purse, and the Town Plate—were secured by Mr. Palmer's mare Florence, who was ably piloted to victory by Bruce. Mr. Nash's Misty won the Ladies' Purse and Railway Handicap, with Bruce in the saddle on both occasions. The Maiden Plate fell to Steel Arrow, the Flying Handicap was appropriated by Alexander, and the Stewards and forced Handicaps were annexed by The Kid and Little Jack respectively.

Premier, who came in first in the Maiden Plate at the Chiltern (Vic.) races on Wednesday last, was disqualified on the grounds that he had won the Maiden Plate at the Yarrawonga meeting during the previous week, and the stakes were awarded to Fortune Teller. The Chiltern Handicap of 50 sovs., 1¼ mile, was won by Mr. Patterson's blk. g. Black Diamond, by Hercules from Gasworks Black Diamond's record for the past year is as under:—He won the New Year's Day Handicap at Beechworth; the Cup and Flying Handicap at the Corowa meeting in March; and the Wahgunyah (Vic.) Handicap in the same month.

The racing mare Woodbine, by Bluelight from a Thames mare, has been distinguishing herself at the Nhill (Victoria) races by winning the Nhill Handicap and the Ladies' Bracelet.

Three race meetings—Grabben Gullen, Collector, and the Oaks (Goulburn) were registered with the secretary of the A. J. C. yesterday.

PAPERCHASE CLUB AMATEUR STEEPLE-CHASE MEETING.

The weights for the undermentioned events in connection with the Steeplechase Meeting of the Paperchase Club, to be held at Canterbury Park on the 12th instant, were declared yesterday, as follows:—

The Northern Jockey Club races commenced to-day on the Rutherford Course. Extensive improvements are about to be made at the Melbourne Cricket Ground. In order to increase the dressing-room accommodation, the pavilion will be extended back to the outer fence, the estimated cost of this addition to the buildings being about £1000. The building committee will shortly submit a scheme to the club executive, in which further improvements, to cost altogether £3200, are recommended. These consist in pulling down the present curator's cottage and re-building it at the eastern wing of the grand stand. The space now occupied by the cottage will then be included in the lawn space. It is also proposed to replace the wooden building now used by the professional bowlers by a brick structure, in conformity with the general architecture of the M. C. C. buildings. This will be occupied by lawn tennis players, as well as by the staff ground bowlers attached to the cricket club. The additions to the pavilion will also include a ladies' room.

ENGLISH ELEVEN v. VICTORIA.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

The cricket match between a Victorian eleven and the English team of professionals was commenced on the Melbourne Cricket Ground to-day. There was a small attendance of spectators. Midwinter won the toss for the local team, and sent in Bruce and M'Ilwraith, who made 62 and 64 respectively. Bruce batted with great freedom, and he got his runs in about one hour, while M'Ilwraith was over three hours at the wickets. M'Shane, playing with his customary confidence and effect, contributed 45, but after the third wicket fell the batsmen came to the wickets and returned in regular procession, all being caught, and the majority from Flowers' bowling. Horan, however, made a long stand, and played steadily for 23, while Cotter, the last man on the Victorian side, hit merrily, and carried out his bat for 27. When play ceased for the day the Victorians had scored 245 for nine wickets. The game will be continued on Saturday. The Flemington races are likely to interfere with the attendance. A substitute fielded for Gunn, who was too ill to play, but who is expected to take part in the match to-morrow.

The following is the score:—

BICYCLING.

The Fernside Club will hold its annual race meeting on the Melbourne Cricket Ground on the 19th instant. An excellent programme of 12 races has been arranged. Bennett intends to take part in the races, and is now in excellent form.

AQUATICS.

SYDNEY AMATEUR CANVAS DINGY CLUB.—The monthly meeting of the above club was held in the clubrooms, Market-street, on Wednesday evening last, the Commodore (Mr. G. Hellings) presiding. Messrs. E. Clarke, J. James, H. Quadlin, W. Bolland, and G. Mortimer were elected members of the club. A motion, "That the club be called the Sydney Dingy Club," brought on a long discussion, and upon being put to the meeting was lost by a large majority. It was moved and seconded, "That a committee, consisting of three non-boat-owners, be elected to handicap the boats in all club races," but on a division being taken was lost by two votes. A notice of motion was given to repeal Rule 10. Mr. G. Foster resigned his position as a member of the club, and the seat of the auditor was declared vacant in accordance with rule 5. A motion was passed as follows:—"That any member lodging a protest shall deposit the sum of half-a-guinea, which he shall forfeit in the event of the committee considering the protest frivolous." The following are the entries, handicaps, and positions of the boats taking part in the race on Saturday afternoon, for second and third class boats for two prizes given by the club:—Pauline, 10 minutes working and 8 minutes leading; Ethel, 1 minute working and scratch leading; Acme, scratch working and scratch leading; Daisy, 2½ minutes working 1½ minutes scratch leading; Ella, 30 seconds working and scratch leading; Elmina, 9 minutes working and 7½ minutes leading; Julia, 9 minutes working and 7½ minutes leading; Nautilus, 5¼ minutes working and 3 minutes leading. From advertisement elsewhere it will be seen that the Sydney Amateur Sailing Club will send away two races this afternoon. In both races the entries have been very fair, and from the names of those entered, two good finishes are expected.

The monthly meeting of the Prince Alfred Yacht Club was held at Compagnoni's rooms, Pitt-street, on Thursday evening last. There were present—the commodore, Dr. Milford (in the chair), Messrs. W. Reeks, P. W. Creagh, A. A. Griffiths, H. Burgess, J. B. Dalton, and A. Dunn (acting hon. secretary). The minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed. Two gentlemen were elected members of the club. The motion which was to have been discussed re the repealing of Rule 16 of the Sailing Directions was postponed till next meeting, and the consideration of the report of the Yacht Racing Association of England on the new measurement for tonnage was also postponed. It was decided to have the race for first-class yachts on March 19. The further consideration of the race to Wollongong and back for Commodore Milford's prize, took place, and it was decided to start the race about 11 o'clock on the night of the 11th instant, and the conditions to be pleasure sails, and each yacht to tow a dingy, the only kites to be allowed being square sails and balloon foresails. The secretary was instructed to write to the different yacht owners to ascertain whether or not their yachts would compete. It was agreed to have a steamer to follow the race, leaving at 10 o'clock the next morning. A committee meeting to make final arrangements is to be called for Thursday evening next.

Foley's Athletic Hall, George-street, to Signor Sali, who is well known in the sporting community as champion heavy-weight lifter and Græco-Roman wrestler. Signor Sali is unquestionably in the first rank of his profession, and his debût here will no doubt receive due recognition.

CITY BOWLING CLUB.

A meeting of the City Bowling Club was held on Friday night, at the Oxford Hotel, to revise the rules of the club. Mr. J. Hunt, president, occupied the chair, there being about 30 members present. The rules were gone through very carefully, the principal alterations made being as follow:—The entrance fee of £1 1s., provided for under rule 3, was abolished. A new rule was added to the effect that members belonging to and playing for other clubs shall not be eligible to hold office. With regard to a meeting lapsing, it was decided that such should take place should there be no quorum present within half an hour after the time fixed for holding the meeting. In rule 10 the number of members set down as necessary to make up a requisition for calling a special meeting was increased from 6 to 20. In the same rule the number of members forming a quorum was increased from 9 to 20. Rule 15 was amended by the insertion of a provision to the effect that cheques shall be signed by the secretary and treasurer, instead of the president or one of the vice-presidents. Rule 28, which stated that "no rule shall be rescinded or altered, or new ones made except by a majority," was made more definite by the insertion of the words "two-thirds" before "majority." The rules as amended were adopted as the rules of the club, and a vote of thanks to the chairman closed the meeting.

LAWN TENNIS.

The committee of the Sydney Lawn Tennis Club, who are arranging the intercolonial match against Victoria, will be glad if the secretaries of the different clubs throughout the colony will nominate any of their members who they deem eligible for inclusion in the team, which will consist of six players. The nominations are to be sent to the hon. secretary, Mr. C. W. Cropper, 17, Bridge-street, Sydney, not later than Friday, the 11th instant. The practice will be on the courts at the Association Cricket Ground.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY CELEBRATION.

The united Irish societies are again to the front, and intend holding a grand demonstration at Botany on St. Patrick's Day. On this occasion the proceeds are to be applied to the relief of the evicted Irish tenants. One of the attractions will be a five miles bicycle race for prizes value £35.

COMMERCIAL.

THE WOOL TRADE.

Notwithstanding the unsettled aspect of affairs in Europe it is gratifying to learn from a London cablegram, dated 1st instant, to the New Zealand Loan Company, that the market there is gradually improving, and that a private inquiry existed, the result of which had been the quittance of some 1200 bales. Such a demand springing up within a fortnight of the close of last sales is a very sure sign of smallness of stocks and also of rapid consumption. It seems certain, too, that after deduction of shipments to manufacturers direct the quantity arriving in time for inclusion in the ensuing sales, to commence on 22nd instant, will be much smaller than has been reckoned upon. The prospects of the London market in view of these considerations, were peace but assured, are exceedingly encouraging, and a noteworthy advance in values during the near future is by no means improbable. The arrivals to 2nd instant amount to only 120,000 bales.

Under date January 11 Messrs. Helmuth Schwartz and Co., alluding to the future outlook for wool, write:—"Prospects.—Judged by a standard of values familiar 10 or 15 years ago, even the highest prices of last year can be called moderate, and its closing rates must be termed very low. The standard of those times is, however, not the standard of to-day. It is true the past year has revealed possibilities of recovery which were little dreamt of, and the recollection of which will no doubt continue to sway minds for some time to come. Still they have proved transitory, and we believe naturally so, for wool is not likely to prove an exception, and to return permanently to former levels, until the causes which have reduced the values of nearly all great articles of consumption have ceased to operate. With this qualification the outlook for wool is distinctly good. The stocks in the hands of the trade are probably not so low as a year ago, but they are moderate. The industry is everywhere fully and profitably employed, and the supplies are not likely to exceed those of the past year, for any increase in the production of Australian will be neutralised by the expected falling-off in the River Plate clip. The outbreak of a general war on the Continent might, no doubt, produce temporarily incalculable results; but assuming the political complications to be peacefully settled, the prospects of the article point at the present moment to steady improvement."

From Messrs. Windeler and Co.'s circular of the 12th January we extract the following:—"The fresh demand has led to the disposal of some 2000 bales here of wools withdrawn from last sales at an improvement of ¼d. to 1d. per lb. on the low bids then made. This, although in itself satisfactory, is important when compared with the amount of good which it has worked in restoring confidence in the trade generally. It has put an end to the fear of further depression at present, and considerable activity is already seen in our home-consuming districts, which, unless some unforeseen change should again take place, may be reasonably expected to lead to a steady and prosperous business."

Respecting the Antwerp wool sales, which commenced on the 17th January, Mr. J. J. Melges reports:—"The first series of our quarterly wool sales of this year opened to-day. The catalogue was composed of 1447 bales, of which 856 bales were sold. There was a full attendance of buyers, and biddings were rather spirited. The prices paid are fully up to those of the last November sales; and pieces, bellies, and lambs, which have been eagerly competed for, even fetched 5 cents to 10 cents more. These prices are much above those at which one could have operated in December at the lowest point, and show a rise of 15 to 20 per cent. on the depressed rates which were then current for scoured wools and tops."

No sales have been held here during the past week; but as there are plenty of buyers anxious to purchase in order to complete orders, a firm market with an active demand is looked for at the sales to take place on the 8th and 9th instant.

Exports.—Three vessels have cleared, taking 3880 bales as under:—

Date.	Vessel.	Bales.
February 22	Alameda, s.s.	6
February 26	Potosi, s.s.	1254
February 28	Parramatta, ship	2620
Total		3880

The total exports from the colony are, therefore, 279,622 bales, as compared with 304,521 bales for corresponding period of last year, showing a decrease for 1886-7 of 24,899 bales.

PRODUCE MARKET.—FRIDAY.

At Darling Harbour terminus this morning good supplies of wood and forage were submitted. The markets were moderately attended by the trade. Buyers of forage showed but very little disposition to operate, and their requirements were entirely for prime; other sorts were dull of sale. Late values were maintained. An easier tendency was noted in the wood market. On the wharfs a fair quantity was forward from the Northern rivers, Southern ports, and neighbouring colonies. Business was limited to lines for immediate wants. Butter and onions were firmer, but otherwise values were unchanged. The following rates were realised at Darling Harbour sales:—

Wood.—Supplies forward were in excess of requirements, and business was slack at per ton:—Billet, 9s to 11s 6d; bundle, 10s 6d to 14s 6d; foot, 10s to 14s; bakers', 9s to 11s 6d.

Hay.—A larger quantity of prime than of late, which was fairly competed for, but other classes were still dull of sale. Values unchanged. Oaten in bundles, 3s 3d to 5s per cwt.; other sorts, 2s 6d to 2s 10d; bales, 4s 3d; sheaves, 1s 9d to 2s; lucerne, in truss, 1s 9d to 2s; oaten and wheaten, in bundles, 4s 9d.

Straw.—Small market. Clean and bright, in bundles, realised 2s 3d to 2s 10d per cwt.

Chaff.—Fair consignments. Oaten in bags, 3s 6d to 4s 4d per cwt.

On the wharfs the following were the wholesale quotations:—

Maize.—A Clarence River addition to stocks last night. Market remains quiet at 4s 3d to 4s 5d per bushel for river parcels free from weevil; Noumean and Fiji sorts, 4s.

Oats.—Good bright feed lines continue steady at 2s 3d to 2s 6d per bushel; medium and dark samples in ample supplies are very slack from 1s 10d; seed, to 2s 7d.

Barley.—Cape seed unaltered at 3s 3d to 3s 6d per bushel.

Bran.—An Adelaide shipment received last night. Unimproved at 8½d per bushel.

Pollard.—Moving off steadily at 9d per bushel.

Hay.—Fair arrivals from the Hunter River this morning. Supplies sufficient for the requirements. Trade was inactive. Prime lucerne, £2 15s to £3 per ton; other descriptions, from £2.

Chaff.—Additional stocks from the neighbouring colonies last night. Adelaide and Victorian still weak at £4 to £5 per ton; exceptional lines to £5 5s.

Onions.—Rather a smaller Victorian shipment than of late received last night. Values firmer, and now range £3 to £3 5s per ton.

Potatoes.—Stocks supplemented last night and this morning, principally by consignments from Victoria and the Hunter River. Warrnambool steady, £3 15s to £4 per ton; Circular Head, £4 10s; Hunter River, £4.

Butter.—Market firmer. Illawarra, in keg, realised at auction by the South Coast and West Camden Co-operative Butter Company, at 9d to 10d per lb.; factory-made, 1s 2d; intercolonial packed, from 6d.

Cheese.—Colonial is unimproved at 3d to 5d per lb.; loaf sorts, 6d to 6½d; New Zealand, to 6½d.

Bacon.—Moderate inquiry exists for hand-cured Southern, at 7½d to 8½d per lb.; machine-cured, 5½d to 7d; heavy and rough, from 4d; hams, 7d to 8d; New Zealand bacon and hams, 8½d to 9d.

Lard.—Best, in bladder, nominally worth 5d to 6d per lb.; in bulk, from 4d.

Honey.—The inquiry is still restricted at 3½d per lb. for good and clear; other sorts, from 2d.

Beeswax at 9d to 11d per lb., according to quality.

Eggs.—Rather small supplies this morning. Demand maintained at 1s 8d to 1s 10d per dozen. Those forwarded by rail realised: Hen eggs, 1s 6d to 2s 3d; duck, 2s to 2s 1d.

Poultry.—Good qualities are saleable, other descriptions very slack. Fowls, 2s 6d to 3s 6d per pair; ducks, 3s to 4s; geese, 5s to 7s; turkeys, 6s to 12s. By auction this afternoon, the demand was dull, at 1s 9d to 5s per pair for fowls; ducks, 2s 6d to 4s 3d; geese, 5s to 6s 6d; cock turkeys, 8s to 11s 3d; hen turkeys, 5s to 6s.

Meat.—The Riverstone Meat Company report having disposed of 55 bodies of beef at 2½d to 2¾d per lb; 550 bodies of mutton at 1¼d to 1½d. Mr. H. M'Namara, of the Metropolitan Meat Market reports the sale of beef at 2d to 2½d per lb.; mutton, 1¼d to 1½d; lambs, in carcass, 5s to 9s. Retail values—Joints of beef, 5d to 6d per lb.; joints of mutton, 3½d to 5d; veal, 6d; pork, 8d; cornbeef, 4d to 5d.

Fruit.—At George-street Markets ample supplies of seasonable fruits were received, principally from the country districts. Business remains steady. Quotations range as follows: Tasmanian apples, 4s to 7s per case; colonial apples, 5s to 7s; Brisbane pineapples, 3s to 4s per dozen, or 8s to 9s per case; Fiji bananas, 2s to 4s per bunch; oranges, few available, quoted at 8s to 10s; lemons, 10s; pears, 6s to 10s; plums, 3s 6d to 4s 6d; quinces, 5s 6d to 5s; peaches, 6s to 8s; grapes, 2½d to 4d per lb.; passion fruit, 3d to 6d per dozen; cocoanuts, 10s to 12s per bag.

The hon. secretary of the Stock Exchange reports the crushing of the Band and Albion Gold Company, Ballarat for the week to be 300 tons stone, for a yield of 290oz. 16dwts. gold.

MANAGERS' REPORTS.

Webb's Silver-mining Company, Limited, March 2.—Cut lode in chamber at 200-feet level; rich in fahlerz and galena. Bulk assay of vein, 140oz. Do not know width yet.

Mount George Tin-mining Company, Limited, Branxholm, Tasmania, February 25.—Contractors doing well. They have sunk 8 feet 6 inches since taking contract on the 16th instant. The shaft is now sunk 57 feet, carrying the lode all the way. We are now getting out splendid tin stone, which would give from 20 to 40 per cent. The wall on the upper side of shaft is well defined, and underlaying into shaft. I will not break it, but follow it down. The stone on the north side of lode is getting cleaner, and carries the richest tin. Have now sufficient water to start two men sluicing, and can keep them going continuously. Have, therefore, put them on. The alluvial is very good where they are working. We hope to get plenty of water very shortly. [Later by wire, March 4].—Shaft sunk 63 feet to-day, and on splendid tin stone; lode improving.

The following telegram, dated 3rd March, has been received from the mining manager of the Broken Hill South Silver Mine:—"No. 1 Shaft, 167-feet level.—Driven north 4 feet, total 33 feet; driven south 3 feet, total 35 feet; no change. No. 3 Shaft: Sunk 3 feet, total 174 feet; ore improving. No. 8 Shaft: Resumed sinking."

Central Broken Hill Silver-mining Company.—Messrs. Watt and Dodds have received the following telegram from the mining manager yesterday day:—"Struck water in No. 1 shaft, 108 feet deep.

Great Western Silver-mining Company, Limited.—The mining manager reports for the week ending March 2:—The north level has been extended along the course of No 4 lode 3 feet; total length driven north from main tunnel, 22 feet. The lode in this level still continues pinched. No. 1 crosscut extended east 7 feet 6 inches; total driven east from winze, 165 feet. Have cut through another small copper lode formation, 1 foot 6 inches thick, some samples of which I handed the assayer to test. No. 2 lode, 200 feet from entrance of main tunnel. Have started to open out to drive a level along the course of this lode north; distance driven this week, 6 feet. The lode in this direction is at present split up, showing only small seams of galena leaders through it.

Victory Gold-mining Company, Limited, February 19.—No. 8 south level—driven 8 feet, total 20 feet—carries a nice reef fully 18 inches thick, of fair quality, with every appearance of making larger. No. 8 north still in blank ground, but shows signs of improvement; driven 6 feet, total 16 feet. Winze: Stone 15 inches thick and of excellent stone, ground very favourable; sunk 8 feet, total 13 feet. No. 7 north level driven 8 feet, total 214 feet; reef about 18 inches, and of splendid quality. Stopes above No. 7 north level yielding splendid quality stone, varying from 3 to 18 inches in thickness. Stopes above 7 South level yielding splendid stone, varying from 3 to 12 inches in thickness. Specimens carrying extraordinary coarse gold have been obtained and banked during the week from this stope. No. 6 south level: 12 inches of very heavy mineral stone, improvement in formation. No. 6 north level: 3 inches to 2 feet 6 inches of medium quality stone, which seems to be improving as we rise up towards next level. No. 5 level north carries about 6 inches in thickness of splendid heavy mineral stone. There is a considerable amount of ground to be taken out of this stope before it is finished. Raised 80 tons of excellent quality stone during fortnight—total, 110 tons in paddock. I have no hesitation in saying some stone, if crushed, would go 4oz. per ton. I do not consider it out of place to mention the late excellent crushing from the Papuan block, which gave 946oz. of gold from 198 tons, an average of 4oz. 16dwt. per ton. This, taken from the newly-discovered reef, which according to survey is 58 feet beneath the present Victory reef and workings, proves, beyond doubt, the existence of a new and permanent dividend-paying reef, traversing the whole of the Victory lease.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

DRAKE, FRIDAY.

Shakespeare and party have struck a reef 23 feet wide carrying rich gold 18 inches from the surface. M'Donell and party's ground was jumped this morning.

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

The report of the Victorian Mining Department, issued to-day, states that the yield of gold for the last quarter of the year 1886 was 174,107oz. 18dwt. 16gr., an increase of 5018oz. 14dwt. 13gr. on the previous quarter. The total yield for the year, however, as compared with the year 1885, is 70,022oz. 4dwt. 5gr. less.

BRISBANE, FRIDAY.

A Maytown telegram reports that a nugget of pure gold, weighing 20 ounces, was found near Maytown yesterday, and grand gold is being obtained in the Comet claim.

ADELAIDE, FRIDAY.

At the Forest Range a load of dirt was washed, with a result of 10oz. to the load. Two nuggets, weighing a little over 11 and 16 dwt. respectively, were found.

THE CONTEMPLATED REMOVAL OF THE ABATTOIRS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In considering this subject it is necessary to remember that for many reasons, notably the long and hot summers in the colony, any new buildings should be erected as near the city as possible, whilst still far enough away to prevent the possibility of unpleasantness from "odours" which to some extent attach to such works wherever situated.

To those who may have paid special interest to the question of the meat supply of Sydney, it is hardly a wonder that visitors to our fair city, both from abroad and from the country, do not compliment us on the quality of the article supplied, especially with regard to beef (excepting possibly what may arrive by rail or sea in carcass); and to such the reason is obvious. In whatever condition stock may be in the sale yards at Flemington, a drive of some ten (10) miles along a metal road, with the aid of dogs, with little water or grass, hunted and fevered, materially affects the condition of the animal, and when slaughtered the meat nearly always has no nutriment, is hard, tasteless, and unpalatable. It is therefore necessary for the health of the inhabitants of this city that to preserve the meat to be supplied in as good condition as when presented at the sale-yards, little or no driving of the stock after the sale should take place; the slaughtering should be done at or near the place of sale, with access, if possible, by water to the city and to sea. The large extent of ground at present lying vacant close to Flemington, on the north side of the Parramatta-road, affords exceptional advantages for the erection of buildings for slaughtering purposes, with good fall in ground, and being close to the waters of the river, would allow great facility for transit of what may be necessary to be so transported. That most necessary article, water, could be conveyed without much difficulty to the ground, and a short line of railway branching off from the Waratah line could be constructed right into the works; thus, by special meat trains, bringing the meat into the central meat market now being completed by the Government at Darling Harbour, to be thence distributed over the city, or sold to intended purchasers; the residue, i.e., hides, horns, &c., &c., could also be so conveyed if necessary. A visitor to the works of the Sydney Meat-Preserving Company at Rookwood would, I think, be satisfied that by judicious treatment of the offal and blood, without any offence, or but slight, to the olfactory nerves, a considerable profit would accrue, this treatment rendering the matter treated after a few hours into a substance that may be handled and a valuable manure, and readily saleable. Should, however, it be deemed advisable that such should be utilised, reclamation could be made of the large tract of land—semi-swamps—at the heads of the several coves or inlets branching out from the Parramatta River, one such large tract being situate close to the site proposed for the works, and valuable garden ground eventually obtained, to be either let or sold to great advantage. A plan that presents itself of a speedy treatment of the live animal by being in close proximity to the slaughtering-yards with all the attendant advantages, quick and certain communication, utilisation of the meat market at Darling Harbour, proper and effectual treatment of residue and offal, access by water, and continuance of yards at Flemington for the sale of stock.

The adoption of a plan such as is proposed would I think meet the oft-raised question of what is to be substituted for the Glebe abattoirs, and I would respectfully venture to submit it to the consideration of those in power with a hope that for it favour may be found.

I may add that my interest in the subject lies only in the desire, in common with the rest of my fellow-citizens, in having for our households something more wholesome and nutritive than the present hunted, fevered, and over-driven bovine.

I am, &c.,
F. L. BARKER.

NOTES EXPLANATORY OF MAP.

In the list of stations the column headed W.T. gives the state of the weather at 9 a.m., b standing for blue sky; c, detached clouds; d, drizzling rain; f, fog; g, gloomy; h, hazy; m, misty; n, frosty; o, overcast; p, passing showers; r, rain; s, snow; t, thunder; u, threatening. The next column, M'x gives the maximum temperature for previous 24 hours. M'n the corresponding minimum temperature; r'n, the rain for the previous 24 hours. The symbols used in the map are explained on the margin. At each coast station the wind symbol is placed like a vane pointing to the direction from which the wind is coming. A clear circle with it means fine weather; a circle with bar, cloudy weather; and a black spot, raining. Next to this symbol are placed figures denoting the number of miles the wind is moving per hour; next, a symbol showing the state of the sea; and, lastly, figures denoting the shade temperature at 9 a.m. The barometer curve shows the state of barometers round the coast from Perth to Cooktown:—Pt, Perth; Ay, Albany; Ea, Eucla; CB, Cape Borda; A, Adelaide; Re, Robe; P, Portland; M, Melbourne; W.P, Wilson's Promontory; Go, Gabo; E, Eden; Ma, Moruya; C G Jervis Bay; Wg, Wollongong; S, Sydney; N, Newcastle; P M, Port Macquarie; C, Clarence River; B, Brisbane; R, Rockhampton; Ct, Cooktown. Inland the state of barometer is given in figures at Albury, Deniliquin, Wentworth, Menindie, Bourke, and Alice Springs. The barometer curve enables one at a glance to trace the depressions, beginning with Western Australia, and passing along eastwards; northerly winds preceding them, and southerly following.

GREAT EXCITEMENT IN WALES about a MARVELLOUS CURE.

LIVING SIX YEARS WITHOUT GOING TO BED.

Mr. Editor,—While spending a few days at the pleasant seaside town of Aberystwith, Cardiganshire, Wales, I heard related what seemed to me either a fabulous story or a marvellous cure.

The story was that a poor sufferer who had not been able to lie down in bed for six long years, given up to die by all the doctors, had been speedily cured by some Patent Medicine. It was related with the more implicit confidence from the circumstance, as was said, that the Vicar of Llanrystyd was familiar with the facts, and could vouch for the truth of the report.

Having a little curiosity to know how such stories grow in travelling, I took the liberty while at the village of Llanrystyd to call upon the Vicar, the Rev. T. Evans, and to inquire about this wonderful cure. Though a total stranger to him, both he and his wife most graciously entertained me in a half-hour's conversation, principally touching the case of Mr. Pugh, in which they seemed to take a deep and sympathetic interest, having been familiar with his sufferings, and now rejoiced in what seemed to them a most remarkable cure.

The Vicar remarked that he presumed his name had been connected with the report from his having mentioned the case to Mr. John Thomas, a chemist of Llanon. He said Mr. Pugh was formerly a resident of their parish, but was now living in the parish of Llanddeinol.

He strongly vouched Mr. William Pugh's character as a respectable farmer and worthy of credit. I left the venerable Vicar with a livelier sense of the happy relation of a pastor and people, feeling that he was one who truly sympathised with all who are afflicted in mind, body, or estate.

On my return to Aberystwith, I was impressed with a desire to see Mr. Pugh, whose reputation stood so high. His farm is called Pancom-Mawr, signifying "above the dingle," situated near the summit of a smooth round hill, overlooking a beautiful valley, in which is situated the lovely ivy-mantled Church of Llanddeinol. I found Mr. Pugh, apparently about 40 years old, of medium height, rather slight, with a pleasant and intelligent face. I told him I had heard of his great affliction, and of his remarkable and almost miraculous relief, and that I had come to learn from his own lips what there was of truth in the reports.

Mr. Pugh remarked that his neighbours had taken a kindly and sympathetic interest in his case for many years, but of late their interest had been greatly awakened by a happy change in his condition. What you report as having heard abroad, said he, is substantially true, with one exception. I never understood that my case was ever given up as hopeless by any physician. I have been treated by several doctors hereabouts, as good as any in Wales, but unfortunately no prescription of theirs ever brought the desired relief.

Fifteen years ago, he said, I first became conscious of a sour and deranged stomach and loss of appetite, which the doctors told me was dyspepsia. What food I could hold in my stomach seemed to do me no good, and was often thrown up with pains and retching. This was followed after a time with a hoarseness and a raw soreness of the throat, which the doctors called bronchitis, and I was treated for that, but with little success. Then came shortness of breath and a sense of suffocation, especially at nights, with clammy sweat, and I would have to get out of bed and sometimes open a door or window in winter weather to fill my lungs with the cold air.

About six years ago I became so bad that I could not sleep in bed, but had to take my unquiet rest and dreamy sleep sitting in an armchair. My affliction seemed to be working downward into my bowels as well as upwards into my lungs and throat. In the violent coughing spasms, which grew more frequent, my abdomen would expand and collapse, and at times it would seem that I should suffocate. All this time I was reduced in strength, so that I could perform no hard labour; and my spirits were consequently much depressed.

Early in this last spring I had a still more severe spasmodic attack, and my family and neighbours became alarmed, believing that certainly I would not survive, when a neighbour, who had some knowledge, or had heard of the medicine, sent to Aberystwith by the driver of the Omnibus Post, some seven miles distant, and fetched a bottle of Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup.

This medicine they administered to me according to the directions, when, to their surprise and delight no less than my own, the spasm ceased. I became at ease, and my stomach was calmed. My bowels were moved as by a gentle cathartic, and I felt a sense of quiet comfort all through such as I had not before realised in many years. I could walk around the house and breathe comfortably in a few hours after I had taken the medicine. I have continued to take the medicine daily now for something over two months, and I can lay down and sleep sweetly at nights, and have not since had a recurrence of those terrible spasms and sweatings. I have been so long broken down and reduced in my whole system that I have not tried to perform any very hard outdoor labour, deeming it best to be prudent lest by over-exertion I may do myself injury before my strength is fully restored. I feel that my stomach and bowels have been and are being thoroughly renovated and renewed by the medicine. In fact, I feel like a new man.

I have been much congratulated by my neighbours, especially by the good Vicar of Llanrystyd, who, with his sympathetic wife, have come three miles to shed tears of joy on my recovery.

I bade Mr. Pugh good-bye, happy that even one at least among thousands had found a remedy for an aggravating disease.

Believing this remarkable case of Dyspeptic Asthma should be known to the public, I beg to submit the above facts as they are related to me. F. T. W.

UNIVERSAL PROVIDERS. UNIVERSAL PROVIDERS.

There is no Department in our Establishment can give a better account of itself this season than OUR DRESS GOODS DEPARTMENT, which is now full of the CHOICEST and NEWEST GOODS the home markets afford.

Our orders for the present AUTUMN and for the coming WINTER were luckily placed before the late rise in wool, therefore we are in a far better position than other and less fortunate houses. Particularly is this good fortune noticeable in our CASHMERES and MERINOS, in which we are prepared with the most perfect and beautifully assorted array of colours possible to imagine. Some of the NEW AUTUMN TINTS are loveliness intensified, and some very rich and delicious shades in brown have struck us as truly charming.

Our lowest price in CASHMERES OR MERINOS is ONE SHILLING and ELEVENPENCE per YARD, ONE SHILLING and ELEVENPENCE per YARD, at which remarkably low figure we can do something not to be found anywhere else under at least half-a-crown.

Ladies should come and see these very choice goods early, while the first blush of beauty is on everything, and the colours are in full assortment.

Turning from CASHMERES and MERINOS to other dress materials, we have quite as pleasant a tale to tell. This week we are showing the following, all of which are perfection in their way:—

WOOL FOULE CLOTHS — CHECK TAILOR TWEEDS
WOOL COSTUME CHECKS — COLONIAL CRAPES
WOOL COSTUME STRIPES — HOMESPUNS
WOOL MELTONS — WOOL BEIZES.

All these in useful and pretty colours, and at prices that cannot fail to prove tempting.

Going back to Cashmeres, we had almost forgotten a very special line of COLONIAL CASHMERES, manufactured expressly for this climate and for us, in the best shades.

COMBINATION COSTUMES.
In these we have for AUTUMN WEAR an assortment of tastefully and elegantly arranged COSTUMES in plain and check, plain and stripe, plain and broché, and other novel and very charming combinations. All after the very latest fashion from 15s 6d to 50s each.

In intimate connection with our DRESS DEPARTMENT will be found that devoted to BUTTONS and TRIMMINGS, And ladies will find a special advantage in our arrangements for matching all materials with appropriate Buttons and Trimmings.
The following are new and nice:—
PASSEMENTERIE TRIMMINGS in Black and Coloured, 9d to 3s 11d per yard.
PLUSH TRIMMINGS, very beautiful, 1s 7½d per yard.
ASTRACHAN TRIMMINGS in all Colours, 6d per yard.
FUR TRIMMINGS and FLOUNCINGS.
BEAVER TRIMMINGS.
SWANDOWN and PEARL TRIMMINGS.
CHENILLE TRIMMINGS in Black and Colours.
FUR ORNAMENTS.
BEADED DRESS SETS
800 dozen BLACK ORNAMENTS, 9½d each, worth 1s 11d
Fur Clasps, Pearl and Metal Cape and Dress Fasteners in every conceivable pattern and style BUTTONS in Wood, Steel, Silver, and Gold, all sizes and all prices.

OUR MOURNING DEPARTMENT.
This department is replete with every nice and needful material, and ladies who from either necessity or choice wear Black, would do well to give us their orders. Most wonderful value are our BLACK CASHMERES and MERINOS, and other materials are not one whit behind in this respect. At the present time we are showing a special line of One Hundred Pieces of STRIPED INDIAN CASHMERE, 34 inch wide, at 11½d per yard, worth at the very least 1s 6d.

We sell GROUT'S RAINPROOF CRAPES at very low prices; in fact, fifteen per cent. under down-town prices, and we quote 6 x 4 Crape, suitable for Widows' Skirts, from 10s 6d per yard.

STEEDMAN'S SOOTHING POWDERS FOR CHILDREN CUTTING TEETH.
CAUTION TO PURCHASERS.
The value of this well-known Family Medicine has been largely tested in all parts of the world, and by all grades of society, for upwards of FIFTY YEARS. Its well-earned extensive sale has induced SPURIOUS IMITATIONS, some of which in OUTWARD APPEARANCE, so closely resemble the original as to have deceived many purchasers. The proprietor, therefore, feels it due to the public to give a special caution against the use of such imitations.
Purchasers are therefore requested carefully to observe the four following distinctive characteristics, without which none are genuine.
1. In every case the words JOHN STEEDMAN, Chemist, Walworth, Surrey, are engraved on the Government stamp affixed to EACH PACKET.
2. Each SINGE POWDER has directions for the dose, and the words "John Steedman, chemist, Walworth, Surrey," printed thereon.
3. The name Steedman is always spelt with the two EE'S.
4. The manufacture is carried on solely at Walworth, Surrey.

DERMATOLOGY.
JAMES H. ADGER, Dermatologist.
Office, 131, Elizabeth-street, Sydney, treats successfully all diseases of the skin and scalp, loss of hair, premature blanching, and general cultivation and growth of the hair; and, as a result of this experience, he may point to his flattering success during several years' practice in this city, without reference to the many special cures he has effected, as the best proof of the general efficiency of his system of treatment.
Mr. Adger may be consulted at his office, 131, Elizabeth-street, where letters and testimonials are open to inspection, which must satisfy the most sceptical, signed as they are by persons of the highest positions in society. It will be obvious that no person could have obtained such names as an endorsement of his professional ability without constant proof of merit.

A MARVELLOUS MEDICINE.
FORTESCUE'S PILLS.
FORTESCUE'S PILLS, by their extraordinary purifying properties, carry away all those morbid humours which would otherwise become absorbed into the system and disease the various organs of the body. Being sugar-coated, they are easily taken by the most fastidious, without any of the nauseous feelings which so often occur in taking pills covered with objectionable powder. They are made solely from choice vegetable products (without mercury or any of the many drastic purgatives), and blended by a patent process, so as to combine a soothing and tonic with cathartic action. Consequently,
FORTESCUE'S PILLS
do not distress the system nor give cold, but fortify the digestive organs, stimulate the stomach and liver, assist the kidneys to work freely, and act gently but thoroughly upon the bowels without griping or any other annoyance.
FOR FEMALES THESE PILLS are invaluable, as they quickly remove all obstructions and irregularities, bring back the long-lost complexion, sharpen the blunted edge of appetite, and restore females of all ages to sound and robust health. These are facts and not fiction, as the experiences of thousands unite in testifying that
FORTESCUE'S PILLS
ARE THE SOVEREIGN REMEDY for constipation, biliousness, heartburn, wind, indigestion, dizziness, drowsiness, sick headache, impurities of the blood, rush of blood to the head, and disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels; and one of the best guarantees to the nervous and suffering is that have the largest sale of any medicine in Australia, being especially prepared for and adapted to the people's wants in this climate. Whilst is warranted to cure all sores, old wounds, burns, ulcers, and skin diseases.
FORTESCUE'S PILLS
No family should be without this famous household remedy. There is no salve to equal
FORTESCUE'S OINTMENT,
for speedily cooling and healing every conceivable description of sore, and the most obstinate wounds and ulcers succumb to its magic healing power.
Fortescue's Pills and Ointment are sold in 1s sizes only. (Registered under Trade Marks Act.) All imitations are illegal. Sold by all Chemists and Storekeepers.

SIR JOSEPH BANKS, the great Botanist, whose illustrious name is so deeply enwoven with Australian history, in giving his opinion as to the propriety of keeping secret the composition of a medicine, very wisely remarks:—"I have no doubt a medicine will be found more beneficial to the public, in a high degree, when confined to the practice of one individual or firm, that it may be well prepared, of the best ingredients, and that the maceration be properly conducted; matters of vast importance to the afflicted." This is the sole explanation of the astounding success that Marshall's "Tonic Nervine" has achieved, and its extraordinary hold upon the popular mind, as this great tonic strengthening medicine is now to be found throughout the length and breadth of the land—in the mansions of the rich and the cottages of the poor—everywhere. Thousands of unimpeachable testimonials from all parts, and from the highest medical authorities, prove unmistakably the great universal verdict, viz., that no other restorative preparation has ever received such speedy and pre-eminent recognition, as by its properties as a chemical food Marshall's Tonic Nervine purifies and enriches the blood, affords aliment to the brain, strengthens the nerves and muscular system, favours the formation of bone, promotes appetite and improves indigestion, nourishing and giving vigour to the whole organisation. Sufferers are solicited to test its value, as it is not only pleasant to the palate, but is warranted free from anything injurious to the most delicate constitution of either sex. Marshall's Tonic Nervine is sold by all chemists and storekeepers at 4s 6d.

CIRCULAR QUAY FRONTAGE.

The only available Block, and ready to be BUILT upon at an hour's notice, all Excavations and Drainage completed.

TO CLOSE ACCOUNTS.

127 FEET at the DEEP-WATER WHARF, where the very large steamers of the COMPAGNIE DES MESSAGERIES MARITIMES and other Companies berth without the aid of jetties.

100 7-12ths FEET to MACQUARIE-STREET NORTH, immediately adjoining the BLACKWALL WOOL STORES, and extending nearly to the commodious range of Stores erecting for Messrs. Hill, Clark and Co.

TO WOOL BROKERS, STEVEDORES, BOND WAREHOUSEMEN, MERCHANTS, CAPITALISTS, and SPECULATORS.

This Grand Block of CIRCULAR QUAY and MACQUARIE-STREET FRONTAGE is recommended, as from its good position it would command ready occupancy when buildings are erected; and the proposed EXTENSION OF THE RAILWAY to the CIRCULAR QUAY, coupled with the comprehensive scheme of WHARF IMPROVEMENTS likely to be carried out close by, should certainly make its present acquirement a desirable thing in view of the very largely ENHANCED VALUE SURE TO ACCRUE in a very few years hence.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, Sydney, on FRIDAY, the 11th day of MARCH, at 11 o'clock, The above described EXCEPTIONALLY VALUABLE BLOCK of CIRCULAR QUAY and MACQUARIE-STREET FRONTAGE LAND.

Seeing that this site, on the east side of THE CIRCULAR QUAY, is nearly the only one there obtainable where mercantile premises can now be placed, it must be apparent that in a comparatively short time this site must COMMAND ENORMOUSLY INCREASED VALUE, and also from the fact that the greater part of our foreign and intercolonial shipping trade is carried on AT THE CIRCULAR QUAY, which year by year must demand still further store accommodation.

THE RAILWAY must further develop the importance of the place, as it is proposed to pass this spot on both the MACQUARIE-STREET and CIRCULAR QUAY FRONTAGES, while the Terminus will be very convenient to it.

A RANGE of WAREHOUSES and OFFICES could be so designed as to have INDEPENDENT APPROACHES, via, CIRCULAR QUAY and MACQUARIE-STREET, thereby at a minimum of outlay the greatest income could be derived from the property.

The attention of buyers is invited to THIS GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY of securing a large double frontage block on which to erect a NOBLE PILE OF BUSINESS PREMISES which would prove a permanent and improving investment. Terms at sale. (970)

A RARE OPPORTUNITY.

By Order of the Trustees of the late R. Uther, Esq.

CENTRAL PITT-STREET, opposite Messrs. Hordern Brothers' Establishment, and near Messrs. Farmer and Co., and Royal Theatre, between King and Market streets, right in the track of the enormous traffic along this street, second only to George-street.

All that Valuable Block of Building Land, PITT-STREET, on the eastern side, as above described, with frontage of ABOUT 46 FEET, and the good depth of 103 feet, having a lane or entrance at side and rear, thus losing nothing from the frontage. At present there are four shops on the land, Nos. 168, 170, 172, 174, Pitt-street.

IT WILL BE OFFERED IN TWO LOTS.

Also, a small STORE at the rear of No. 168, on Lease for 21 years, from the first day of July, 1887, at a ground rent to be fixed at auction, and for the situation and extent of land the building covenant is not excessive, and to be expended within the first 3 years from date of issue.

To MERCHANTS, IMPORTERS, MANUFACTURERS, CAPITALISTS, SPECULATORS, LIFE and FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES, BUILDING SOCIETIES, and OTHERS.

This Sale affords an unusual and FAVOURABLE OPPORTUNITY of acquiring A GRAND CENTRAL CITY BLOCK of LAND so suitable for many commercial or trade purposes, and situated within that area in Pitt-street, that has proved itself so attractive and remunerative, for it is admitted that PITT-STREET is commanding yearly growing importance—the throng of travellers on foot and by vehicles pass this spot both by day and night, attest the fact that this street is fast running the race for chief place with its parallel neighbour, George-street, to which alone it is second in value. Who can tell the growth in rental value of premises in this locality EVEN 10 YEARS HENCE! and the ground rental will remain the same throughout the whole period of lease.

Either alone, or in conjunction with abutting property, it could be utilised to well reward the enterprising lessee.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, Pitt-street, on FRIDAY, 15th APRIL, at 11 o'clock, The lease for 21 years, of the above first-class block of land, Pitt-street. (1030)

THE VALUABLE SHEEP STATION, CAMERON DOWNS.

MITCHELL DISTRICT, QUEENSLAND.

HILL, CLARK, and CO. (in conjunction with J. V. Suter and Co., Hughenden) have received instructions from the executors of the late Thomas M'Knight Christison, Esq., to sell by public auction, at the Chamber of Commerce, Sydney, on 13th APRIL, 1887,

The well-known station property, CAMERON DOWNS.

This property consists of 280 square miles of the finest rolling downs and lightly timbered ridges, abounding in salt and cotton bush, and grassed with the finest fattening grasses of the far-famed Mitchell District, watered by the Landsborough River, which rises close to the property and runs right through it; also by the Lee and Ingalinde Creeks, and the billybungs of the Landsborough.

The improvements consist of a well-built homestead of six rooms, outbuildings, drafting yards, iron shed, store, &c., &c.

The homestead is pleasantly situated on a pre-emptive right of 2560 acres, close to a dam, which has never been dry since made.

Two dams of 7000 yards, and one of 20,000 yards, all full, and which have stood the test of the late heavy rains; 30 miles of 6-wire sheep-proof fencing, horse-paddocks, &c.

The stock consist of 9700 breeding ewes
5094 fat wethers
8250 dry sheep, mixed ages
5000 weaners
356 rams
Total, 29,000
70 head of well-bred cattle
50 good horses, draught and saddle.

Also, on the station, 10 tons of fencing-wire, plant, &c., for the complete working of the property.

The sheep have all been bred from the Talgai and Glengallon rams, the late owner making it a point never to change his class of sheep, and all good ages. The fat wethers are all fit for market, and can readily be disposed of.

The auctioneers would point out that this is a good and safely-situated property, which would not now be in the market but for the death of the late owner, and is situated on the direct road from Hughenden to Muttaburra, 40 miles from Hughenden, the railway line from Townsville passing within 40 miles of the station.

A chance such as this is not likely to occur again for years. The station is one of the first taken up, being the pick of the whole Mitchell district, now lightly stocked, and retaining all the virgin qualities of the soil, never having been eaten out during the late severe droughts.

The auctioneers would invite inspection, as no advertisement could do justice to this property.

In order to close accounts, the executors have given instructions that this property is to be sold positively without reserve.

For further particulars apply to HILL, CLARK, and CO., 125, Pitt-street, Sydney; or J. V. SUTER and Co., Hughenden.

TO ECONOMICAL HOUSEWIVES.—Your grocer can purchase inferior Soaps 8s a hundredweight less than he can buy Allen's No. 1 Crown Soap, and he charges for them the same price per bar. He reaps the benefit, and you pay for it. You lose 8s per box, your clothes last no time, and their colours are destroyed by the adulteration. To avoid all this, see that your bar of soap is stamped "ALLEN'S No. 1 Crown."
